York County Dairyman E. Wayne Beshore, left, welcomed U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland on his first official visit to Central Pennsylvania.

NEW CUMBERLAND — U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland, on a pre-primary swing throught the farmlands of Pennsylvania Thursday and Friday, made no pretense of why he was here.

"The interest of Pennsylvania's dairy industry and the re-election of President Carter are the reasons I'm here," Bergland told farmers and newsmen during his stop at York County's E. Wayne Beshore farm on Old York Road, New Cumberland.

Following the meeting at Beshore's, Bergland met over lunch with farmers and representatives of the state's farm organizations.

He then headed to Columbia County to the father-son dairy operation of Chris and Dennis Wolf. From there he went to State College to meet with Penn State Ag College Dean James Beattie in the evening.

Western Pennsylvania was on the Friday schedule, with stops at the farm of State Senator Patrick Stapleton, Representative Paul Yahner's vegetable operation, and the Westmoreland County dairy setup of Boyd Wolf.

Bergland noted the importance of the state's milk production industry, second largest business in Pennsylvania, and said he was especially pleased to be on the Beshore dairy farm.

"The dairy industry needs to be assured and reassured," he told a heavily milk-oriented audience of 125 gathered outside the Beshore stall barn.

But Bergland hedged on the industry's most pressing threat, the Community Nutrition Institute's proposal to hold hearings on allowing the reconstitution of powdered milk for fluid sales.

Acknowleging that over 8000 letters against the proposal have poured into USDA, most from the nation's dairy farmers, Bergland promised to try to announce a decision on the issue by the end of April.

"We have no intention of wrecking or eroding the effectiveness of the federal milk marketing order structure," he assured farmers each time the question was raised.

But the issue rankling most farmers was the mushrooming cost of money for production.

One Beshore neighbor, grain producer Geary Huntsberger, Etters, quizzed the Secretary on assistance for some 200,000 large farmers now in trouble due to increased interest rates.

Terming them "the fair-haired boys who balance this nation's trade deficit,"

Pseudorabies spreads into Southeastern Pa.

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

LANCASTER — Pseudorabies, an increasingly serious disease problem in western hog-producing states the past few years, has arrived in Pennsylvania.

Three cases of the highly contagious disease have been confirmed in Southeastern Pennsylvania, according to Dr. John W. Cable, Chief, Swine Health Division, Bureau of Animal Industry, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

The pseudorabies-infected herds which have been quarantined include:

– A feeder pig operation in the southeastern corner of Dauphin County.

– A hog breeding operation in the East Earl area of Lancaster County.

– Another feeder pig operation in the Myerstown area of Lebanon County.

In addition to these three herds, the state quarantine has been extended to nine other hog operations which received animals in recent months from the Lancaster County breeder. Among areas involved in these additional quarantines are the Manheim and Ephrata areas of Lancaster County, Fleetwood, Berks County; Phoenixville, Chester County; and Montgomery County.

The disease is very contagious and can be transmitted quickly to other animals, such as cattle, sheep, dogs, cats, rodents and even some wild animals.

In the Lebanon County infection, five heifers which were running with the pigs were lost very quickly within a 12 to 72-hour period, Dr. Cable said.

A number of young pigs, reportedly about 200, died in the Lancaster County breeding operation.

Also, some cats, which had eaten tissue of the dead animals, died within a 24 to 48-hour period, Dr. Cable added.

More than 100 feeders and breeders were told of the pseudorabies outbreaks at a special meeting on swine health problems Wednesday night at the Farm and Home Center.

Dr. Larry Hutchinson, Penn State veterinarian, cited the three cases and a brief discussion of pseudorabies was given by Dr. Neil Becker, veterinarian from the University of Florida.

"In a county like this where you have wall-to-wall hogs, this could get going and be a real problem;" Dr. Becker said.

He particularly stressed the possibility of spread of the disease through stray dogs and cats.

Dr. Becker said the best measures to follow are herd testing, absolute isolation of sick pigs to control the spread and avoid outside animal exposure, such as dogs and cats.

Young affected pigs can be

VVND: poultry precautions

HARRISBURG — A statewide alert concerning Exotic Newcastle disease, VVND, is being continued by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Three cases of VVND, one in Camp Hill, Pa., have been diagnosed in pet birds, yellow-naped Amazon parrots. The other two cases have been confirmed in Alexandria, Va., and Norco, Calif.

Thus far, ten pet shops in six different Pennsylvania locations are under quarantine in efforts by a joint state-federal task force to prevent additional exposure.

Poultrymen are advised to take the following precautionary steps to protect their flocks.

Don't keep caged pet birds on poultry farms and make certain employees don't have such birds as pets.

A strict program is needed to keep stray poultry or birds, dogs, cats, rats, mice and other vermin off poultry premises.

Near term outlook bleak

Fourth quarter egg upturn seen

BY CURT HARLER

LANCASTER — Producers of both white and brown eggs are in for another six months of lean times before there is any solid market upturn.

In fact, a panel of experts at the North Atlantic Egg Marketing Association meeting held in Lancaster Thursday, agreed that any price strength between now and the last three months of 1980 could be bad news for the egg industry.

Among the highlights of the meeting was a specific monthly price prediction for the coming year by NEMA Economist Cary Bradley.

NEMA President Allen Wenger, Rheems, said while the white egg market is dismal, producers in Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware are in good position to recover late in the year.

Although expansion in this immediate area has been blamed by poultrymen across the nation for increased output and the depressed market, Wenger said there are good reasons why expansion took place where and when it did.

He pointed out it used to cost two cents per dozen to ship eggs up from the South where today the price is seven to eight cents.

But, Wenger said, there needs to be a transition period when displaced eggs find homes and the less efficient producers are shaken out.

John Ricca, the vice president of NEMA, said the brown egg market is as bad as the white. He has 500,000 layers at home in Massachusetts.

Ricca said many Maine poultry buildings today are empty and never will come back to production.

He pointed out the upswing in fowl sales but added that Campbell's Soup, purchaser of over half of the country's spent fowl, is said to have frozen storages with four times as many pounds of chicken as last year.

He noted that prices in New England for the first quarter last year averaged about 71 cents per dozen. This year the average is 62 to 63 cents. And, he added, costs are up about six cents per dozen.

So, the overall spread farmers need to make up is 14 cents in one year's time.

Cary Bradley's price summary showed little hope

Packers and farmers beef about market

BY SHEILA MILLER

NEW HOLLAND — It was standing room only for some of the nearly 500 farmers, beef feeders, butchers, and meat packers that crowded into the New Holland Sales Stable on Wednesday evening.

What created this great interest on an evening when there was no scheduled sale? Beef—and information on raising and marketing the four-legged Porterhouses.

Abram Diffenbach, president and manager of the sales stables, sponsored the meeting. He said the purpose of the get-together was to meet the challenges of the '80s and to develop an atmosphere of mutual trust between farmers and packers.

Winning dairy honors . . . the Pennfield way.

Nearly 100 area dairymen — all Pennfield customers — were honored recently for achieving high herd production, high increases and high record cows last year. Of vital importance to their success is the way they continue to balance their home grown forage with nutrients that boost milk yields dramatically and enhance butterfat test results. This, of course, is exactly what the Pennfield Computerized Total Ration Service can achieve for you. And here's how it works: 1. We collect samples of your forage 2. Then we evaluate the quality of your forages. We determine the total digestible nutrients. The fiber content. The protein content. The amount of carbohydrates. 3. The computer quickly spots any nutrients lacking in the forage. For your milking cows. And for your dry cows. It immediately points out the overfeeding of nutrients. Underfeeding, too. Both, of course, may be different at different times of the year. And the printout will tell you what you need. And when. 4. Your Penn Pro Professional advises you on the quantity and type of nutrients that should be added, to balance your total feeding program to your cows' nutritional requirements.

Ask the Old Farmer. As a boy a long time ago we used to have a sort of relish called "pork scraps" They were pieces of pork scraps and came in a mass about the size of a potato chip, but thicker Can you give me any information? E F, Los Angeles

These pork scraps were what were left after making lard We have enjoyed them many a time Some packing houses still make them, but as good as they are, they do not taste like the homemade variety

Home Hints Try using hydrogen peroxide to remove ketchup stains

Lancaster Farming says...

Election is no farm popularity contest

It'll be a confused farming community that heads for the polls this Tuesday to vote in the primary elections

Neither the Democrats nor the Republicans seem to have a farm candidate running in the presidential primary Delegates, for the most part, are running uncommitted Farmers may find themselves choosing between the rock and hard place.

On the Democratic side it's fairly easy to narrow the field. Jimmy Carter would seem the logical pick for the Democratic nod He's the incumbent which gives him inside track in the White House race

Jerry Brown made the rounds, attended a few rock concerts and, thankfully, bowed out.

Edward Kennedy's campaign, still rolling along, offers nothing to the farm voter. A Kennedy vote is an urban vote, a big money spending vote.

Carter, billed as a farmer from Georgia, could do better for agriculture He promised farmers wouldn't be left holding the bag for the Soviet grain embargo. So far he has failed to deliver. But he has options.

He could raise corn loan rates to $2 35 or $2.50. He could stop raising farmers' interest rates He could end government sale of soybeans at pre-embargo prices.

Although the embargo may be a factor in November, for now Carter is the farmer's best Democratic choice.

The Republican card is a bit trickier. Ronald Reagan has cloaked himself in the mantle of the most conservative candidate in the race. But behind that cloak seems to be a shallow, uninformed man.

Only a fool would tour farm states and not be up to date on parity. The ex-actor went one better and said he didn't even understand the system.

The parity question isn't an isolated incident. Reagan made major goofs on questions ranging from government spending to the G.I bill.

It shows either a lack of understanding of the issues or a poor back-up staff, either one of which are undesirable characteristics in a leader.

Reagan has refused to attend the high-level briefings open to all candidates of both parties This allows him to throw darts at others' proposals and plead ignorance when asked specific questions Despite his knee-jerk conservative statements, he hardly seems the man of the hour.

George Bush has said little one way or the other about agriculture But he is a qualified candidate.

If a president were chosen by resume and past experience rather than popular vote, Bush would be the likely contender for the job.

He has a vast amount of experience in the Washington bureaucracy. He has a fine academic background. He has been a major cog in federal government circles for years. Nobody grouses about his age.

His positions are moderate and reasonable. He could beat Carter in November, an important consideration for a party which can't aford too many more losers.

John Anderson's campaign is somewhat quixotic, a sort of Republican version of what Jimmy Carter was doing six years ago. The Republicans deserve a better chance, though, than what Anderson offers.

Others like Howard Baker, Harold Stassen, John Connally, Benjamin Fernandez and Alvin Jacobson are either out of the race of their own choosing or not worth considering

Bush would seem the likely choice for a Republican seeking an intelligent candidate with a chance of winning later

A thoroughly disgusted farmer always has the option to write-in a candidate, recording a protest vote against the entire field.

However you vote, and for whomever you vote, remember that the winner may represent this nation's farmers through most of the 1980s

DAY OF THE LORD

Lesson for April 20, 1980

Background Scripture:
2 Peter; Jude
Devotional Reading:
June 17-25

There are two scriptural terms that appear to be similar, yet are miles apart in meaning: "The Lord's Day" and "Day of the Lord " The first of these is a reference to the sabbath day, a day "holy" to the Lord and set apart as a day of "rest and gladness." In the Christian culture of the Lord's Day is Sunday.

But "The Day of the Lord" is something else It is the day when it is believed, God will come to judge the world, "the day of Armageddon," the final struggle between good and evil

Stored Up For Fire

This month Doubleday is publishing an interesting and challenging book entitled. POLE SHIFT! — Predictions And Prophecies of the Ultimate Disaster, by John White. Author White has painstakingly researched both ancient records and contemporary scientific findings and come to the conclusion that our planet has probably experienced a number of pole shifts — a dislocation of the North and South poles causing the Earth to flip end-over-end in space — causing ice ages, reversals of the Earth's magnetic field, continental drift, animal extinctions, and other major cataclysms Some of these, he believes, are reflected in many Biblical passages, particularly the Psalms and the Prophets

The most alarming aspect of this book, however, is White's conviction — shared with many contemporary prophets and some scientists — that, just as our planet may have tumbled in space many times before, so it may do so again — soon! White interprets his sources as pointing to this "ultimate disaster" to take place at the end of this century!

New Heavens! New Earth!

Some of the New Testament writers also looked for such a "Day of the Lord " This seemed to dominate the mind of 2 Peter, who said· " the heavens and earth that now exist have been stored up for fire, being kept until the day of judgment and destruction of godly men" (3·7) Many are asking today: is ours the day of which Peter and others have written? Some suspect the answer is "yes," others are unsure, and still others remind us that every generation has suspected it might be the last

The Gospel gives neither a clear "yes" or "no" but it does have a message for us Consider "what sort of persons ought you to be in lives of holiness and godliness, waiting for and hastening the day of God, because of which the heavens will be kindled and dissolved, and the elements will melt with fire! But according to his promise we wait for new heavens and a new earth in which righteousness dwells " (3.11-13).

Whether this is "at hand,' as some believe, or "far off," as do others (myself included), the challenge, as we wait for the "new heavens and a new earth," is to live with holiness and godliness

TO PRACTICE STRICT SANITATION

Livestock and poultry producers must make a special effort to prevent contagious diseases. Many of these infections are brought home by the owner, or with the purchase of new animals At the present time there are several infections that can be spread very easily from farm to farm

In this part of the country where the desity of livestock and poultry is so great, producers should be very alert to the possibility of spreading the diseases. When returning from other farms, or public places, different clothes and foot wear should be used. Stray dogs, cats, and wild birds should be controlled as much as possible. New purchases should be segregated and tested before mixing with the home herd or flock

In many cases vaccination should go along with the very strict sanitation practices. Every producer is urged to give attention to the prevention of diseases through good management and the use of good sanitation practices.

TO BE READY WITH SPRING WORK

Adverse weather conditions have delayed spring plantings on many farms. There is little to do but to wait until the ground is dry enough; it might be necessary to change some plantings to other crops if the delay is much longer. However, it is suggested that farmers be ready with all equipment and materials so that the work can progress rapidly when the ground is fit It may be only a few days at a time when we can do the planting.

The grower that plans ahead and has everything ready to go, is the one who will get the crop in the ground. Those that have to make repairs, or go to pick up materials and seeds when they should be planting, are the ones who may suffer with poorer crops.

TO ERADICATE JOHNSON GRASS

I'm aware of the increase in the number of farms with Johnson Grass infestation. This sorghum-type weed is very agressive and will take over a field in a few years. There are two methods that give best control. The one is to disc the area several times this spring, during early May, and then spray with Eradicane between May 20 and 30th; then disc in the Eradicane and plant. This means delayed corn planting. There is little use to work in the Eradicane before late May.

The other method is to spray the growing Johnson Grass plants with Roundup when they are in the boot to early-heading stage. This would be in fields after winter grain harvest; this herbicide will go down through the plant and kill the massive root system. I do not know of any success with

Alternate market for tomato growers

EAST LEWISBURG — Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell and State Representative Reno Thomas Thursday announced that alternative markets are apparently available to those farmers affected by the American Home Foods cancellation of 1640 acres of tomato contracts in Central Pennsylvania.

"A successful meeting in East Lewisburg concluded with proposals from Furmans Canning Company and a green wrap packaging operation that could use up to 1800 acres of red and green tomatoes," said Hallowell. "A top priority of the Department is to help farmers who have been affected by the rapid disappearance of their markets." markets."

"Fortunately, the meeting was instrumental in finding new markets for this year's tomato crop and alternative crops for future years," said Rep. Reno Thomas, Snyder County, who had requested the meeting. "I am very interested in pursuing the progress of these proposals in the coming weeks."

Furman Canning Company announced plans to contract 500 acres, in addition to the 300 acres they have already contracted of red tomatoes for their plant near Allentown. In addition, Furman's will be paying a freight allowance to offset the cost of shipping. For further information, contact Norman Geise, at 717/473-3516.

Also discussed at the meeting were plans for a green wrap packaging plant that would create 30 to 50 jobs during the summer months and require up to 1000 acres of green tomato contracts for their operation. Rep. Thomas has worked with the Mifflinburg Bank and Trust and the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce to finalize the financial needs for the green wrap packaging plant.

Extension Vegetable Specialist Peter Ferretti discussed the cost of growing green versus red tomatoes. Barney Staller of American Home Foods discussed the possibilities of growing mustard seed, corn for popcorn and adzuki beans for chile as alternative crops in future years. Amos Zimmerman, Union County Extension Agent, discussed the potential for soybean production as an alternative to red tomatoes.

Regional Director Marlin McClellan chaired the meeting which was held Tuesday at the Farmers Best.

Ag trade surplus already up

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. agricultural exports were $8.2 billion greater than agricultural imports during the first four months of fiscal 1980, resulting in an agricultural trade surplus about 55 percent ahead of the same point in fiscal 1979, Thomas R. Hughes, administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Foreign Agricultural Service, reported Thursday.

Trade data for October 1979 - January 1980 show total export value was $14.3 billion, up 34 percent from the same period last year. Export values rose for all commodity categories except tobacco. Leading value gainers were cotton and linters, up 73 percent, and grains and feeds, up 65 percent from the year-earlier level.

Hughes said that although the United States produced a large cotton crop in 1978/79, strong world demand has pushed prices well above last season's level. In addition, cumulative (October-January) U.S. cotton exports of 2.8 million bales are far ahead of the 1.7 million shipped during the same period a year ago. At 238,000 bales, U.S. exports to Europe during January were 2½ times those of January reflecting the USSR's absence from the market.

The total value of leaf tobacco exports decreased nearly a fifth during the first four months of fiscal 1980 as slightly higher prices only partially offset a drop of nearly one-fourth in volume.

Beechdale Farm sells top-priced Simmental

FREDERICK, Md. — Beechdale Farms, Bird-In-Hand, had the top selling purebred Simmental cow at the Sixth Annual Free State Invitational Simmental Sale, held here last Saturday.

The only Pennsylvania consignor at the sale, Beechdale Farms' Becky brought a higher bid than the other 57 head of purbred and part-blood bulls, cows and calves, and heifers from Maryland producers and one purebred cow from Virginia.

The Lancaster bred cow will be returning to the county. She was purchased for $2100 by Russ Raush of Conestoga.

Beechdale Farms also consigned a 15/16 Simmental bull to the Maryland sale. Beechdale Vic, calved last December, brought $800. This bull calf was the top yearling weight bull in the Maryland bull test out of all the breeds entered.

Beechdale Farms also entered a bull in the West Virginia bull test. This animal was the highest selling bull at the tested bull sale in that state.

According to Beechdale Farms owner, Dr. Thomas Conrad, they had high hopes for their bull that was entered at the Penn State bull test station.

"He was gaining over 4 pounds per day," said Conrad, "the highest gaining bull at the test station. Two weeks before the sale, he died rather mysteriously. The University said it was death by unknown causes."

Conrad's disappointment was eased slightly, he said, when the two top selling Simmental bulls at the Penn State sale were animals bred by Beechdale Farms.

The high selling three-quarter Simmental cow was consigned by Ravenwood Farm, Mt. Airy, Md. Baron Donna sold to Scott Williams, Finksburg, Md. for $1900.

The half-blood cow that brought the highest dollar bid was consigned by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Matthews, Jr. The cow sold for $900 and will be traveling to the state of Maine.

Little Acorn Farm, Princess Anne, Md. had the top-priced purebred bull at the sale. Bill Miller of Sherwood, Md. bought Langdon's Elvis, calved September 28, 1977, for $350.

The sale average for the 59 head of cows, calves and bulls consigned was $959.SM

Dr. Thomas Conrad shows off his top-selling Simmental cow, Beechdale Becky.

Governor proclaims April 20-26 as Grange Week

HARRISBURG — To kick-off Pennsylvania Grange Week celebrations occurring throughout the state, Governor Richard Thornburgh signed a proclamation memorializing the contributions of the Grange to rural Pennsylvania, in Harrisburg.

Thornburgh pointed out that "agriculture has been a keystone to progress since our nation began," and that the Pennsylvania State Grange has been vitally interested in the agricultural and rural areas of the Commonwealth for the past 107 years.

Pennsylvania, having the largest rural population in the United States, has 48,000 Grange members in its population in 565 local Granges.

April 20 to 26 marks the 108th year of the Grange's continued "work to improve farming and rural life in the interest of all Pennsylvanians."

Throughout the Commonweaith, "local Grangers serve as community centers in small communities across the state."

"They are often the hub of community activity," the Governor said, "used by citizens and officials as a convenient forum for community planning.

Citing the Grange for taking "an active role in the process of legislation and government," he recalled that it "has participated in numerous community improvement programs."

In conclusion, Thornburgh proclaimed April 20 to 26 as Pennsylvania Grange Week and urged "all Pennsylvanians to recognize the contributions of the Grange in the growth and development of agriculture in the Commonwealth.

Region's dairy leaders meet to discuss concerns

BY CURT HARLER

LEOLA — Dairy leaders from eight southeastern Pennsylvania counties met Tuesday to discuss a wide range of dairy concerns.

Top on the list is the reconstituted milk proposal, a petition from the Community Nutrition Institute for a public hearing on the regulatory treatment of reconstituted milk under the Federal Order system.

The meeting was called by Jere Skiles, chairman of the Lancaster County Farmers' Association milk marketing committee.

In attendance were several dairy marketing experts and representatives from Lancaster, Chester, Berks, Bucks, Montgomery, Lehigh, Lebanon and Franklin counties.

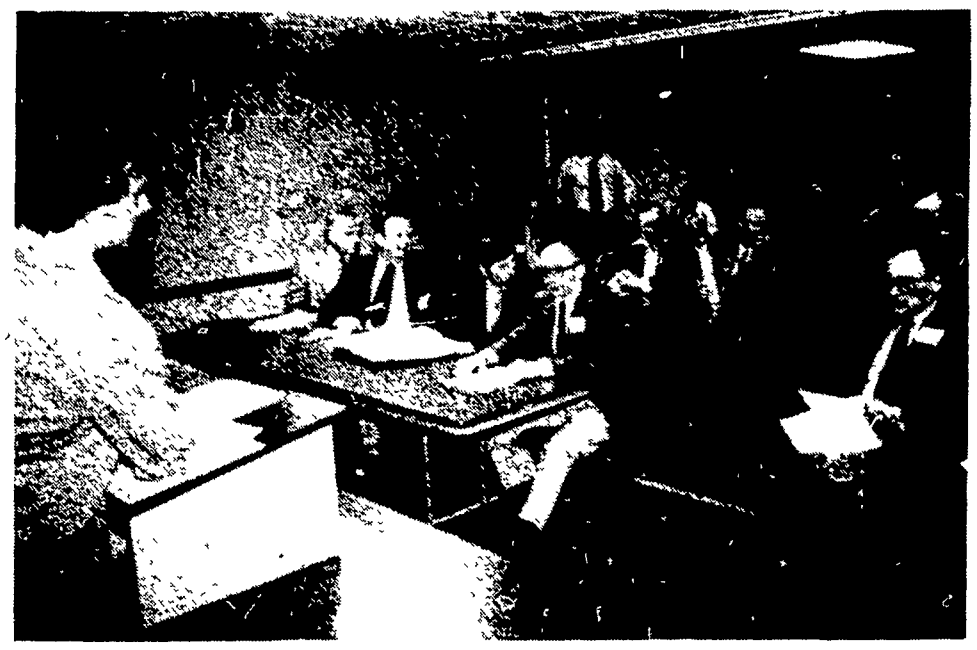
Members felt the meeting was successful enough that they agreed to meet on a quarterly basis. The next meeting is tentatively scheduled for somewhere in Lancaster County this summer.

Skiles said he asked for the meeting because he felt dairy committees were not really doing their job.

He pointed out that dairy farming is the state's largest agricultural industry.

He said the meetings were to distribute general information.

"If a reporter calls a dairy leader, the farmer will get proper information out to the consumer if he is well informed. These meetings should give us the chance to get that information and exchange ideas."



Jere Skiles, left, chaired a meeting of Pennsylvania Farmers' Association dairy leaders held in Leola. Topics of discussion included parity and the CNI proposal on reconstituted milk.

Among those impressed with the meeting were Berks County representatives Don Duncan, Robesonia; and John Stump, Bernville.

Duncan pointed out that farmers often don't get the chance to hear the kind of expertise that was available at the meeting.

"We got a full story plus the behind-the-scenes things," he noted.

To promote free discussion, the workshop part of the meeting was closed to the public.

"We constantly are being hit for what we have," Duncan continued. "We'll all get ulcers before we find a solution."

Stump said the meeting gave some direction, gave hints as to which way to go.

He said a proposed pricing program to drop parity in times of surplus should help cut back on surplus milk.

The proposal, explained by Farm Bureau's Hollis Hatfield, calls for a sliding scale on the dairy support price.

Hatfield pointed out the potential for problems of using parity as a political tool.

Under the proposal outlined, if the government is buying up to three percent of the milk marketed by all dairymen, then the parity level would be between 80 and 90 percent.

If government purchases represent three to five percent of milk marketed, then the parity level would drop to the 75 to 80 percent range to discourage production.

If the government buys over five percent of the milk produced, the parity level would be 75 percent.

More important to some farmers was discussion of the CNI proposal.

John Stoner, Franklin County, said he thought he knew about the reconstituted milk proposal before he came to the meeting but he discovered there was more to it than meets the eye.

"They say it is to get cheaper milk for low income families," he started. "But those families can get dry milk right now and add water to it.

"Really, the CNI proposal is a tool of consumer advocates to undermine some of the dairyman's best marketing interests," he said.

Stoner pointed out those at the meeting took no stand on the proposal. Most were against it. He added there is a chance the hearings never will take place.

Norm Hershey, Intercourse, said the meeting brought out the full potential of what could happen if the CNI hearings ever got started.

"They could go much farther than what the original hearing calls for," he said. He said he feels such a hearing could destroy federal orders.

"The purpose of the orders was to assure a steady

Argentina should gain from Russian embargo

UNIVERSITY PARK — The effect of the U.S. embargo on the Soviet Union is going to be more of a "tough inconvenience" than a "real hardshop" says Penn State economist Louis Moore.

However, the real beneficiary appears to be Argentina which has been able to sell all the grain produced there at substantially higher than world prices. They have increased their own balance of payments and reversed their usual position of having to sell at lower than world prices, according to Moore.

For Russia it means paying higher prices while purchasing considerably less than they would like. The embargoed grain amounts to 17 million tons and Moore calculates that the Russians will be able to make up about 10 million tons from other sources. Included in that 10 million will be a certain amount of grain "transshipped" through other countries, possibly through some western European countries including France.

For the past few years the Soviet Union has been attempting to increase its beef production and cattle herd size Moore feels that this is where the most impact will be felt.

"The Soviets will be forced to buy some beef from foreign markets, starve or slaughter cattle they hadn't planned to, and get some cattle through the winter on a minimum amount of grain and then hopefully put them out on what will develop as food pastures this spring," adds Moore.

This will be the first time in recent years that the Russians will have to purchase meat from foreign markets.

The impact of the embargo on the American economy will be a lowering of the total volume of exported grain. The government is attempting to export the surplus to other counties but there just are not enough markets.

The net impact on domestic farmers will be an increase in carry-over or the amount of grain in storage.

"Our carry-over last year was 1.3 billion bushels and this October it is expected to be 1.8 billion bushels, an increase of a half a billion bushels," Moore predicts. This will mean lower prices for farmers.

Moore sees two effects on every American. First, the two to three billion dollars in lost foreign revenue will be picked up by the federal government.

"This is a double edged sword," he add, "because not only is the government having to pay a few billion dollars, but a few billion will be lost in foreign trade increasing the trade deficit."

For consumers this will tend to keep the price of grain related products down slightly—at least for a little while.

Meet your American Banker.

Your American Bankers William Hughes Gene Richard

The farmer's financial Almanac.

When it comes to providing dependable farming information, you can't beat the people in the Agri-Business Department of American Bank. They go right to work for you, giving advice and coming up with a bumper crop of good ideas that help farmers. Each has a farming background, so when they come out to see you, they speak your language

Since the turn of the century, American Bank has had a special kinship with farmers and their land Over the years we've kept pace with their needs with loans for livestock, new equipment, construction, and remodeling. As times and needs changed, we helped with lines of credit and operating capital. Today, we're still maintaining that pace with additional financial services like trusts, retirement and estate planning, and savings and checking accounts

We're proud of the way our farming background has helped. Together, American Bankers and local farmers have been right as rain. And together, our future looks even brighter If you'd like to see our ideas at work, just call (215) 375-5993.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

The article entitled Airport Zoning leaves Lebanon farmers up in air by Sheila Miller in the April 5 issue of Lancaster Farming contains some statements which need clarification.

"If a farmer wants to expand his farm, he has to buy more land. If a man wants to expand an airport, he should have to buy some more land too," commented Joe Eckenrode, a South Londonderry Township farmer. The truth is airport zoning does not call for land expansion.

Pennsylvania State Laws Relating to Aviation, Act of April 17, 1945 P.L. 237 states that an airport hazard area means any area of land or water upon which an airport hazard might be established if not prevented as provided for in this law. The newspaper article states that fifty acres of the Brandt farm lie in this area. This statement is in errors.

Runway approaches must be kept clear on the basis of a 20:1 glide ratio. The planes do not fly directly above the farm buildings. The farm buildings are not in the direct path of either landing or take-off and no planes at an altitude of 35 feet ever fly near the buildings.

The noise of the single engine airplanes present no competition to the continuous grating hum of the highway traffic of trucks, cars, motorcycles and other vehicles; or to the chop-chop of the helicopters which operate out of Fort Indiantown Gap and land at the National Guard Building south of Palmdale and Palmyra. Donald Hoffer need not worry about the noise of small airplane engines causing his cattle to stampede.

Airport zoning will not affect the height of silos possibly to be constructed in the future. As it is presently zoned the height limit is 35 feet. This fact again nixes Donald Hoffers concern.

In regard to Joe Eckenrode's remark about lighting, the runway lights are on during hours of darkness with special threshold lights.

Harold Brandt has voiced opposition to Reigle Airport through out the past forty years - ever since the airport was built and put into operation. His latest venture was to solicit and collect signatures for his support against a zoning change.

The farmers are confused. Eckenrode, Hoffer and others expressed concern that a zoning change might encroach on the agricultural use of the land. No so; the truth is it would serve to preserve farm land. Airport zoning is in effect in Bethel Township. It poses no adverse effects on surrounding land.

Another correction: Reigle Airport is a commercially licensed public use airport; not a private airport.

Firm pays $1500 fine in seed case

TANGENT, Or. — An Oregon seed company, Nomarc, Inc., has paid $1500 to the U.S. Department of Agriculture to settle a case of alleged violations of the Federal Seed Act. The act, administered by USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, is a truth-in-labeling law that protects farme s and consumers who buy seed.

The firm, located in Tangent, Ore., agreed to the settlement but neither admitted nor denied the charges.

The case involved four shipments of tall fescue, perennial ryegrass and white clover seeds into Connecticut and Florida in 1977. Three shipments into Connecticut were reshipped by another firm into Massachusetts and Rhode Island where they were officially sampled.

The alleged violations, while not the same for all shipments, were: false labeling of purity, germination and hard seed percentages and the presence of noxious weed seeds; failure to properly label grass seed mixtures; mislabeling of the kind of variety name and failure to keep required records.

Seed regulatory officials in Massachusetts, Florida and Rhode Island, cooperated with AMS on the investigations.

Conservation book

ANKENY, Ia. — A new book, published by the Soil Conservation Society of America, examines the current state of affairs in soil and water conservation programs.

Soil Conservation Policies: An Assessment contains a comprehensive review of soil conservation efforts over the past four decades, an evaluation of how effective existing training programs are, and possible strategies for shaping more effective programs in the future.

The book is based on material presented at the November 1979 National Conference on Soil Conservation Policies sponsored by the Society in cooperation with the National Association of Conservation Districts and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Its 20 chapters present a cross-section of current thinking about soil conservation efforts from the federal, state, and local points of view.

Single copies of the book are $6.50, postpaid. A discount is available on purchases of 10 or more copies.

Dairy leaders meet

supply of reasonably priced milk to consumers," he said.

Those at the meeting all said they would encourage farmers at home to contact their congressmen and take what Stoner called "a gentleman-like approach" to kill the CNI hearings.

They said they felt a hearing on the CNI proposal is neither required nor necessary.

They said the purpose for the federal milk marketing orders is as valid today as it was in 1937 when they were established.

They also said milk is being marketed under federal milk marketing orders in accordance with the Act of 1937 and charges that a lower-cost alternative to fluid milk is being eliminated from commerce by federal milk marketing orders can not be substantiated.

Future meetings of the dairy committee probably will center on problems other than the CNI proposal.

Among the hot topics which probably will be raised at the summer meeting are dairy prices and the potential for one giant federal order for the whole United States, Skiles said.

control profit-robbing flies

Feeding Rabon® Oral Larvicide turns your herd into an effective fly control army that kills face flies, horn flies, stable flies and house flies before they take wing. ROL passes through cattle to activate their manure — destroying all four flies' larvae before they rob you of profits. It is approved for lactating dairy cattle. Flies are more than a nuisance. They spread disease and reduce milk production.

The time to start your ROL fly control program is this spring with all summer follow-through.

Livestock auctioneer champion to be selected

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — June 21st is the date, and the Templeton, California, Livestock Market is the place for the 1980 World Livestock Auctioneer Championship

The Livestock Marketing Association sponsors the annual event, which is conducted by a subsidiary company, Livestock market Digest, Inc., to recognize the role of the professional auctioneer in livestock merchandising.

Contest manager Gerald D. Nevins said he anticipates another record-breaking number of entrants. Last year 100 contestants from the U S and Canada competed in Brush, Colorado

Terry Elson, Curtis, Nebraska, was named world champion and at age 22, is the youngest champion in the history of the event in its 17th year, Nevins said.

Contestants are judged by a panel of livestock market owners on the criteria they look for when hiring an auctioneer

Winners receive trophies and merchandise prizes. Further information can be obtained from the Digest, 4900 Oak Street, Kansas City, Mo., 64112, telephone (816) 531-2235.

The Championship will be held in conjunction with Livestock Marketing Congress '80, an annual industry conference devoted to livestock economics.

spraying Johnson Grass in growing corn without harming the corn plants The important thing is to get on the job and prevent these Johnson Grass plants from putting you out of business

TO UTILIZE WOOD ASHES

What have you done with your wood ashes this spring? Now that more folks are burning more wood we will have more ashes to use Our fertilizer folks say that we can use them on our fields or gardens with good success Wood ashes should help sweeten the soil and will add potash, as a fertilizer element Many gardeners have used wood ashes with success by working them into the topsoil before planting.

They could be used in making a new lawn but not suggested as a top-dressing over an established turf. I can recall our home farm when a pile of brush was burned along the edge of a woodlot and on cropland, this area would grown corn larger and much greener than the rest of the field Wood ashes should be utilized in the soil

NEDCO young dairymen attend dairy seminar

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Nearly sixty members and guests attended NEDCO's Young Dairymen's Organization semi-annual banquet, featuring a panel presentation by four keynote speakers who attended the National Milk Producers Federation annual meeting in New Orleans, La.

NEDCO President Edward McNamara was also part of the Tuesday evening program, a key segment of the two-day dairy seminar held at the Sheraton Inn, Ithaca, N.Y.

YDO President Charles Bratt, Baldwinsville, N.Y., presided over the opening business session wherein the delegates present voted on two proposed changes in the Rules of Organization

Article V of the by-laws was amended, limiting a director's term of office to no more than two consecutive years, and a proposed change in the procedure for electing officers was tabled, after much discussion, until the fall annual meeting.

"Expanding Milk Promotion in the 80's" was the theme of the afternoon slide and movie presentation by James Arnold and Frank Gamsby of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council of New York, Inc. Through this display, featuring ADA's new spring and summer "Milk's the One" promotional campaign, the YDO'ers were able to see precisely how and where their advertising dollars are spent in the Order Two Milk-shed comprising New York, northern Pennsylvania, and western New Jersey.

On hand also to provide an update of NEDCO policies and interests were NEDCO General Manager Robert Forsythe and Arthur Little, NEDCO economist, who spoke on the cooperative's operations and market order activity, respectively.

The Cornell University Teaching and Research Center in Dryden, N.Y. provided the setting for Wednesday's scheduled tour session. The NEDCO young dairy farmers surveyed the entire dairy-related facility, concentrating on several research projects including methane generation, computer controlled dairy feeding and milk harvest systems.

Milking time in the T & R Center's modern double herringbone parlor wrapped up the tour, which was followed by lunch and dismissal.

NEDCO Education Director Ralph Smith coordinated the two-day's sessions and tour.

Pseudorabies spreads

born dead or the incubation period can range from four or five days to a week or 10 days.

Pseudorabies is a herpes virus disease and prior to 1972 had primarily caused problems in western states where cattle and pigs were running together.

Heifers can develop the "mad itch," in which the animals rub themselves raw on solid objects or even chew their tails off. The animals go down within a brief period of time.

Then, in mid-1972 the virus apparently changed and started causing clinical illness in pigs, too. It is called pseudorabies because it imitates rabies in other animals, with central nervous system and respiratory signs.

The first confirmed case came to light in late-February in southeastern Dauphin County, according to Dr. Cable.

Problems developed in mid-March in the Lancaster County breeding operation. Of the nine locations which received animals from that operation in recent months, one has thus far been released from quarantine.

"The herds which received animals are quarantined," Dr. Cable said.

"They are being tested and as negative results are determined, they will be released from quarantine. One negative result concerning a gilt has been received and that quarantine has been lifted."

A confirmed diagnosis on the most recent case in Lebanon County was just made on Monday.

Pseudorabies is most acute in young nursing pigs and where it is transmitted to other animals, such as cattle, sheep, dogs or cats.

In these instances, it is generally fatal within a couple of days.

The effect on older pigs is not as individually serious, but they can become carriers of the disease.

A live vaccine, which is permitted in some states, is not allowed in Pennsylvania, according to Dr. Cable.

It is felt that the vaccine can actually contribute to the spread of the disease through animals treated with it.

Pennsylvania's measures, according to Dr. Cable, include quaratine, testing, isolation of the herds, slaughter of those animals where test results are positive and continuing retesting until negative results show the quaratine can be lifted.

"We're trying to trace all animals that may be involved." Dr. Cable said.

"So far, it has been limited to the three infected herds.

"Thus far, there is no indication that people who received breeding animals have had problems in their herds. But we are continuing to test samples."

Dr. Cable urged that any producers suspecting the disease should contact their veterinarian immediately.

He outlined symptoms to look for:

In suckling pigs, acute paralysis can develop, with death within 24 hours.

In breeding stock, a lot of abortions and mummified pigs are an indication, along with nervous system signs, such as convulsions, depression or even blindness.

In cattle and sheep, the "mad itch" develops, where there is licking, frantic biting and rubbing against solid objects until infected areas, such as the back and sides, can become lacerated, swollen and raw. The animals go down into a coma and death results within a couple of days.

In cats and dogs, there also is the intense itching and death generally results in a couple of days.

Besides stray cats and dogs, wild animals, such as possums, racoons and even birds, can become infected and be carriers.

Brown Swiss cow sets new milk, fat records

NEW LONDON, Wisc. — The Brown Swiss breed has a new world champion in milk and fat — Century Acres Liz C619223.

Calving on January 20, 1979 at 5 years 4 months in 356 days she produced 38,439 pounds milk, 4.4% test, 1695 pounds fat and 1272 pounds protein. Liz holds the breed's milk records both two times and three times milkings and the two times fat records.

Tested the first time 20 days after calving "Liz" gave 78 pounds milk with a 5.5 percent test. During her lactation she had 5 tests over 100 pounds with a peak of 135.5 pounds milk and a 4.2% test on July 21, 1979. In 305 days Liz had 33,680 pounds milk and 1471 pounds fat. This also was a new record for the breed.

Century Acres Liz C is bred and owned by William J. Faskell, New London, Wisconsin and made her record on the Faskell farm located in northeast Wisconsin.

Classified "Excellent", Liz is sired by the homebred bull Century Acres Noble Colonel 153269. Her dam, Century Acres Cheryl 529190, was also bred by Faskell.

The former Swiss Champion was Green Pasture's Rayetta who has held the record since 1974. Rayetta's 305 day and 365 day records were 31,900 pounds milk and 1401 pounds fat, and 36,160 pounds milk and 1611 pounds milk, respectively.

The 365 day former Fat Champion since 1968 was Larry Doris 350995 who had 29,396 pounds milk and 1637 pounds fat.

Bergland

Master Farmer Huntsberger asked Bergland how he plans to help this group survive the squeeze.

"Money problems are found in all sizes of farms," the Secretary noted, "especially with young people getting started and established farmers who lost their crops last year."

Some $2 billion in economic aid, carrying 13 percent interest, has been approved to finance those "with no other place to go."

Again and again, America's agriculture head hammered home the unhappy state of farm economics: "There is no quick fix."

He urged farmers to "borrow carefully. Spend less and save more."

Members of FUEL, York County's pioneer cooperative for on-farm fuel production, sought tips from Bergland on government help for grain alcohol distilleries.

He indicated that both research and credit assistance are available with Farmers Home Administration setting aside $111 million for grain fuel production.

Bergland warned, however, that only large capacity plants, with the ability to extract a variety of by-products, are economical at this stage of developement.

"The pigs have come home to roost," was his summation of the depressed state of the pork and poultry industries, both burdened with oversupply and depressed prices.

Part of the pork problem, Bergland admitted, is tax policy that incouraged off-farm business capital to build large hog houses, taking generous investment credit benefits against the cost.

Althought farmers will be expected to ride out the plunge until pork prices reach their own market level, USDA is purchasing some quantities for use in the school lunch program.

Speaking to the government's concern about severe soil losses from erosion, Bergland warned that 30 million acres had gone from grass to grain during the mid-1970s. While no clear policies have been drawn up to return this marginal land to sod, one solution might be "conservation easements that would put it back into grass on a business-like arrangement."

Following the question and answer session with York farmers, Bergland demonstrated his cow-milking ability and took a brief tour of the Beshore farm

E Wayne and son Jed Beshore are partners in the 50-cow registered Holstein farm. Barely a year ago the Beshores were also visited by a deluge of TV cameras and officials as one of the closest dairy operations to the stricken Three Mile Island nuclear plant.

All questions on TMI were neatly sidestepped by Bergland.

About 250 farmers turned out at Pen-Col to question the Secretary as he fielded questions from a wagon-bed stage

"The Russians are a pain in the neck ' Bergland replied to questions concerning the effect of the grain embargo at his next stop, the Wolf operation at Millville in Columbia County.

"We'll do business with them only as long as they don't endanger us." Insisting the embargo had not really hurt American grain sales, Bergland said grain is being shipped out at such rates that "we're having trouble loading the boats fast enough."

Several young farmers from the Danville area, angry at taking a beating from low prices and high costs, presented the Secretary with a letter of recommendations for ag policy changes.

Their key concerns were the lack of an effective energy policy, increased interest rates, cheap grain policies, and the widening cost spread between farm and retail prices.

Bergland promised to study their letter upon his return to Washington.

One trend Bergland approved is the slight backwards slide in land prices. He admitted it was not a welcome view from the standpoint of all farmers but is part of the "hard line" stance being taken by the Carter Administration to help cool inflation.

Farmers at the two Thursday dairy visits received Bergland's comments with polite applause, nodding agreement with some policy statements but murmuring among themselves over others.

Many questioned later agreed there were no easy answers to the hard economic problems and that "no one man, not even the Secretary of Agriculture, can solve any issue by himself."

"There's nothing any one individual can do," sighed one Columbia County farmer. "It's just too big. Everyone needs to cut back, but no one does."

Just across the hill from where Bergland was meeting with York County farmers, another part of the campaigning was going on.

Ted Mondale, 22 year old son of Vice President Walter Mondale, spent several hours visiting with voters and the civics classes at rural Red Land Senior High School.

"I'm the one who took it out," Bergland replied to the queery of grain grower Geary Huntsberger on the reinstatement of the government's lime program. Those conservation funds are instead being directed at stopping soil losses with terracing and waterways programs.

Tapping talents he learned as a boy on the Minnesota family farm, Bob Bergland perched on a milking stool before Beshore Lindy Louise, a VG 87 Harrisburg Gay Ideal daughter with four year records to 26,000 pounds milk and 900 of fat.

ULSTER — "Human association with black bears increase their size and reproduction - tons of food are deliberately put out for the bears," stated Gary Alt, Wild Life Biologist of the Pennsylvania Game Commission.

"The result is that the average weight of the Pennsylvania Black bear is 400 pounds compared to 250-300 pounds nationwide; and the average litter is 3 cubs compared to the usual one or two."

Gary Alt, whose specialty is black bear management, was the main speaker at the fourth annual Conservation Banquet held recently at the Ulster Fire Hall sponsored by the Bradford County Conservation District and the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The crowd of over 150 people chuckled repeatedly at Alt's amusing narration of his slides showing how bears are trapped and equipped with radio collars. The bear radios enable the Game Commission to monitor the habits of the bear and to gain much useful data for their future management

Lyle Harding, executive director of the Bradford County ASCS, served as master of ceremonies. He introduced Neal Halstead, chairman of the Bradford County Conservation District, who presented the Distinguished Service Award to Gary Strausser, general manager of the Canton Radio Station WKAB.

The Environmental Education Teacher of the Year Award was given to Ted Keir, a teacher of Earth Science at Athens High School. Keir is an avid sportsman, in addition to being an authority on local Indian lore with a large collection of Indian artifacts.

Ralph Bouse of Asylum Township was presented a certificate on behalf of the ASCS for the completion of a management seminar for ASCS committeemen. The award was given by Louise Rinker of Forksville, chairperson of the Pennsylvania State ASCS committee.

Chester Harris of Milan, Conservation Officer for the Pennsylvania Game Commission, presented an award to Barry Bradley of Mosherville, for having a conservation farm plan and for doing outstanding work in developing wildlife habitat. According to Harris this is only the fifth such award given in the state of Pennsylvania.

Entertainment was provided by the vocal music of Mary Bruce and Doug Yale of Ulster. The meeting was adjourned after the presentation of numerous door prizes donated by local merchants.

Neal Halstead, left presents the Environmental Education Teacher of the year Award to Ted Keir at the 4th annual Bradford County Conservation Banquet.

Gary Alt, Black Bear Specialist of the Pennsylvania Game Commission, laughs with Barry Bradley, winner of the Wildlife Conservation Award.

VVND alert

Lock poultry house doors. Prohibit all unauthorized entry unless visitors use proper sanitized clothing and boots.

Report unusual losses, egg production decreases or egg quality problems to the nearest regional office of the State Agriculture Department or the County Extension Office.

Good security is the main barrier against the disease. Vaccination against Newcastle disease may reduce losses but may not fully prevent infection. Use of La Sota Newcastle vaccine does blunt the spread of the disease.

Laboratory tests are needed to differentiate VVND from domestic Newcastle disease.

Poultry infected with the Exotic Newcastle virus sometimes die before signs of the disease appear. Death can occur anytime after the first symptoms of depression.

Infected birds appear listless with heavy breathing and become progressively weaker. They commonly have watery, greenish diarrhea, which may be bloodstained. They have swelling of the head, especially around the eyes.

VVND is a highly contagious virus disease that can affect all species of birds.

It is not a hazard to the consumers of eggs and poultry products.

Rohrer's Mill featured in Kountry Kitchen tour

BY PAT KAUFFMAN

STRASBURG — In this day of rising energy costs and periodic shortages, a visit to Rohrer's Mill situated along Calamus Run in Paradise Township can be a refreshing change of pace. The mill will be one of 6 stops on Lancaster County Farmers Association's Kountry Kitchen Tour, Wednesday, April 30 from 9-12 a.m.

As part of their annual Ladies Day Out, the Women's Committe has organized this 4th tour, featuring for the first time, kitchens.

Rohrer's Mill has been in the Rohrer family since 1852. Owned by Esther and Christian Landis, the mill currently is used to grind a variety of flour. The Landises live in the white stone house near the mill while their son James and his wife Mary Louise, the 7th generation, live across the road in the brick house which was built by Esther's great grandfather in 1877. Jim and Mary Louise operate a steer and hog farm.

Inside the mill, visitors will have an opportunity to view the 16 foot diameter water wheel which is used to turn a myriad of gears and belts. At one time the water wheel was also used to operate a saw mill, planing mill and slab wood saw.

The combination of the old brick and wood is particularly pleasing. Inside the structure, old grain bins, grind stones, gears and cogs are everywhere. As Christian pulls the ropes and adjusts the mechanisms, the water rushes or quiets going through the huge water wheel.

In its heyday, the mill was used for grinding both cattle feed and flour. Many remnants of an era long past are housed here. And as Christian relates the uses of the numerous ropes, pulleys and cogs, it becomes clear that milling is deeply engrained in his life. The sights, and smells, and particularly the sounds of the water rushing and gushing over the wheel have become part and parcel of him.

The Landis homestead is a picturesque combination of the old mill, 2 ponds along with races and an old line shaft once used to transfer power from the mill to the barn for use in various chores.

Currently, the family markets several flours which are stone ground on the premises. In addition to the regular customers, Christian said the mill is also regularly patronized by food cooperatives. To reach the mill, go east of Strasburg on Route 741 approximately 1½ miles. Turn right on Rohrer Mill Road, go south one mile on the left. In addition to the

An old line shaft once used to transfer water power from the mill to the barn in the background for farm work still stands on the Landis property.

"Since we started using Banvel* herbicides six or seven years ago, we hardly ever see morningglory anymore We get very good control of thistle Compared to 2,4-D, Banvel does a better job It gives a broader range of control of some of the more resistant broadleaves " Wayne McGinnis, White Hall, MD 600-700 acres of corn

"Go in with a half-pint of Banvel and a half-pint of 2,4-D With Banvel, control has been excellent Since we started this program, we just don't see weeds at harvest ' Fred Duncan, Broad Run, VA 1000 acres of corn

' Canada thistle is our biggest problem we went to Banvel herbicide because we got twisted corn with 2,4-D You have more tolerance with the weather Banvel is a lot safer than the old 2,4-D ' Breck Debnam, Chestertown, MD 2400 acres in corn

Successful minimum-till corn producers depend on Banvel* herbicide to stop tough, resistant, late emerging broadleaf weeds such as seedling Canada thistle, morningglory, pigweed and lambsquarter Tank-mixed with atrazine, Banvel knocks out horsenettle or combined with 2,4-D, it will stop velvetleaf, Canada thistle and many more for major improvement in the coming few months but offered a brighter outlook sometime around November.

Egg outlook

Bradley said the drop in egg prices was related to the general economic recession and the recession which has been felt for the past several months by all of the food industry.

His projections for Urner-Barry large white prices, monthly average, looked like this:

April, 59 cents; May, 57; June, 59; July, 62; August, 66; September, 69; October 67; November, 72; December, 77; January 1981, 74; February, 71; and March 74 cents.

He said the price projections for the coming quarter should be accurate within a penny. For the July-September period he allowed about two cents leeway, with three cents variation for the last quarters of 1980.

Bradley said the national laying flock numbers were down in March for the first time in three years.

He said there now are one to two percent fewer birds in production but his projections show there will be as many eggs produced because of younger hens and better production rates.

Bradley said the bright side of the picture was the fact 1980 is an election year, and the general feeling the recession will end in the fourth quarter of 1980.

The dark side is that USDA says breeder placements have not eased, that feed costs are going up dramatically, and that a potential short upward spurt in the price of eggs may tempt people to stop selling off birds and force the current price slump into the early part of 1981.

Al Wenger said Southeastern Pennsylvania producers are best located for survival.

He conceded that the inefficient producer and marketer is on the way out. He said the rest of the egg business will sharpen up its skills. He noted that most eggmen will think twice about future planning and expansion.

Wenger noted that local houses are modern and efficient, and that they are ideally located for the major Northeastern markets.

"We will survive. We will benefit," he predicted.

The conference, moderated by Lancaster County Poultry Extension Specialist Jay Irwin, was sponsored by the Northeast Egg Marketing Association.

Among other topics discussed were insurance for poultry houses, egg promotion and marketing, and problems with labor relations and wage and hour regulations.

Packers

The crowds of cattlemen listened intently to the comments of several packers and meat retailers. Carl Venezia, a retail butcher near Norristown, Mike Silverberg of Moyer Packing, Vernon Trueth from Trueth Packing of Baltimore, Max Rosenberg from Linden Packing in New Jersey, and Ozzie Petri, from Giant Food Stores in Carlisle delivered short speeches pleading their side of the beef industry.

High on all of the packers and retailers list was the need for Pennsylvania beef feeders to send cattle to market 12 months out of the year rather than just 3 or 4 months.

The packers promised the cattlemen they would have a top-dollar market for their cattle if they would just keep sending them steadily into the sales stables. They said a steady supply of beef to the packers would help to take the extreme highs and lows out of the current cattle market.

The packers emphatically stated they could pass on the dollars saved in not having to ship cattle in from the Midwest on to the Pennsylvania cattlemen. This raised eyebrows and some questions from the group.

One farmer asked if this was true, why weren't the Pa. prices better than the the Peoria prices now. The answer he was given was that Pa. cattle feeders are too undependable.

According to the packers from Linden and Moyer, it costs approximately $2.50 a head to truck cattle from Peoria, or about $1000 a truckload.

Silverberg told the group that Moyer Packing has to go out of Pennsylvania for 50 percent of its cattle needs. This will increase after the new Moyer plant is completed that will handle a kill of 100 head an hour.

The stand the packers were taking was economical. They want lean beef, they told the group, and they want it every week.

But is this really feasible for the beef industry? The packers were asked if they had ever raised beef cattle, and only one said he had some experience.

With cows normally dropping one calf a year, usually in the Spring, the steady supply of feeder calves for the feedlot is not a matter of just wishing it to happen.

Cow,calf operations schedule their calving intervals to take advantage of lush grass, warm weather, and as many conditions to give their calves a chance to grow without stress as possible.

This type of cycle does not lend itself well to 12 month out of the year feeding and marketing.

Will the packers eventually be given cattle on a regular basis throughout the year? If Pennsylvania farmers want a steady beef check from nearby packers, they may try to adjust their calving intervals. But it will take some time to make the needed management changes—it's not something that will be happening overnight.

In the past several years, farmers and cattlemen responded to the demand by consumers and packers for leaner, less wasty beef. They could probably handle 12-month beef demand.

The question is, do they want to? They know the market's there—now it's up to them.

It was standing room only for the crowd at the New Holland Sales Stable's beef meeting.

Farmers feeling effects of tight money policy

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The current high interest rates and tight credit conditions are having more of an impact on the agricultural sector this year than has been the case in recent periods of tight money.

According to USDA economists, this is partly due to the greater interdependence of agricultural and non agricultural financial markets. As a result, the high interest rates and tight credit prevailing in nonagricultural financial markets are spilling over into agriculture in a bigger way than in earlier years. In addition, agricultural production has grown more dependent on credit in recent years, increasing the agricultural sector's vulnerability to swings in credit conditions.

Economists of the Economics, Statistics, and Cooperatives Service report that the sharp rise in interest rates has added significantly to the cost of carrying inventories. This factor may be partly responsible for the pronounced weakness in spot and futures markets of industrial raw materials and agricultural products in late March and early April.

Higher interest rates have also been accompanied by a rapid appreciation of the dollar during the first quarter of 1980, which may in turn be contributing to the price weakness of some commodities most dependent on export markets.

The new controls on consumer credit likely will limit the expansion of consumer credit in coming months. Real GNP continued to increase moderately during the last half of 1979 and the first quarter of 1980 because consumers went deeper into debt to maintain spending levels.

The food market, however, has not benefited from the increase in credit-financed consumer spending. Constant-dollar sales of food stores and eating and drinking establishments have been weak for the past year or two.

Retail food sales—in constant dollars—are not expected to increase until real disposable income begins to rise.

Retail food prices, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, rose 0.5 percent from January to February—an annual rate of 6.2 percent. This was less than a third of the 21 percent annual rate of increase in nonfood prices. On a seasonally adjusted basis, the food price index was unchanged from January to February—the second month in a row this has occurred.

Grain harvest in the Southern Hemisphere is now in full swing, and total production appears about equal to last year's output. However, a record soybean crop in Brazil is contributing to downward pressure on world prices for soybeans and products.

As the 1979/80 production year draws to a close, international markets will become more senstitive to prospects for 1980/81 crops. Prospects currently are good for 1980 grain crops in the Northern Hemisphere, and world grain production for 1980/81 could be larger than in 1979/80, especially if crops recover in the Soviet Union.

Turn left on Lime Valley Road and continue about 1½ miles to Walnut Run Road. The farmhouse is on the left.

Joy and Richard Haas. Here a wing built in 1974 houses an elegant kitchen, and much of the family time is spent here. A Kountry Kitchen Favorite, Dutch Pear Pie will be demonstrated here. Judy Mentzer will demonstrate the making of a French dessert. To reach the Haas kitchen, from Route 222 South, at Mylin's corner go west on Long Lane approximately ½ mile. Cross the New Danville Pike and the Haas live on the right. Theirs is the first house beyond the Cherry Hill Orchard sign.

Joyce and Donald Hershey. In the kitchen of this active family, Lilli Ann Kopp will demonstrate a combination convertible and microwave oven. To reach the Hershey kitchen from Millersville, go past College and George Streets. Turn right onto Frederick Street and continue on the same road (becomes Letort Road) for approximately 4 miles. After Letort Road go approximately 1 mile and turn onto Safe Harbor Road. Pass Masonville Mennonite Church to a crossroads. Go straight onto Coffee Street Road. Hershey's live on top of the hill the first place on the left. Look for College Street Acres on chicken house.

Sue and John Groff. The Groff family has refinished the 69 year old farmhouse kitchen, maintaining as much of the original flavor as possible. Here Carol Henkle will have a display of Pig Suede Flowers from dyed tanned pigskins. To reach their home, at Bridgeport, take the Lampeter Road toward Lampeter. Go approximately 2½ miles. The Groff farm is on the right approximately 1 block beyond Valette Drive on the left.

In addition to the morning tour, the group will have luncheon at Historic Strasburg Inn. Speaker in the afternoon will be Aletta Schadler who will speak on Your Food Dollar, Who Gets It and Where Do You Spend It. Tickets for the day long activities are available on a first-come first-serve basis. Send a self-addressed stamped envelope and make checks for $8.50 payable to Lancaster County Farmers Association and mail to Velma Hershey, R1, Box 94, Kinzers, PA 17535.

Tobacco blue mold warning given

LANCASTER — Lancaster County tobacco growers are urged to begin preventive fungicide sprays in their tobacco seedbeds as soon as the whole plant reaches the size of a dime.

"This will be an important first step to avoid the disaster county growers had last year from tobacco blue mold", said John O. Yocum, Agronomist and Tobacco Researcher at Penn State's Southeast Field Research Lab, Landisville, and Arnold G. Lueck, Agronomist and County Agricultural Agent, Lancaster.

The blue mold fungus disease is "almost certain" to attack plant beds this year, the agronomists believe. The disease has already been reported in late March in Florida and Georgia, moving northward as spring progresses. Most of the tobacco infected in those states were plants not protected by fungicides.

All plant growers should start spraying early with a fungicide containing ferbam, zineb or maneb in the seedbed. The first treatment needs to be applied when plants are the size of a dime, repeated weekly, and continued until completion of transplanting to the field. In case of cool, rainy periods, the fungicide applications may need to be stepped up to twice weekly.

The following amounts of fungicide are needed for each gallon of water: ferbam, 5 level tablespoons, zineb 3 level tablespoons and maneb 1 level tablespoon. Growers with small plants (first three applications) are advised to use fungicides containing ferbam, a black material, and then switch to those containing zineb or maneb for remainder of applications. The zineb and maneb materials are more effective but may stunt growth of small plants slightly. All growers should read the fungicide label carefully and apply according to directions.

"Plant bed protection is the way to go this year" advises Yocum and Lueck. Reports from Florida and Georgia indicate that growers who have followed the preventive plan correctly have experienced good control of blue mold with an abundant supply of healthy transplants.

Following extensive damage last year to most tobacco grown in the U.S. and Canada, a blue mold warning system has been established for this year. Tobacco growers will be informed whether the destructive disease is present in nearby states and what action local farmers may need to take as the growing season moves along.

N.Y. order to receive $12.08 for March milk

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Dairy farmers supplying milk prices regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during March will be paid on the basis of a uniform price of $12.08 per hundred pounds or 26.0 cents per quart.

Market Administrator Thomas A. Wilson, who announced March's price, also stated that the uniform farm price was $12.24 per hundredweight in February 1980 and $11.12 per hundredweight in March 1979. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

The seasonal incentive fund removed 20 cents per hundredweight from the dairy farmers' uniform price for March, for a total of $1,843,252.37. Deductions for this fund will continue through June and will be returned in the August through November uniform price calculations.

The total amount of milk received from the 17,726 dairy farmers supplying the New York-New Jersey Marketing Area was 921,626,187 pounds during March 1980. This was almost 37.4 million pounds above last year. The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $114,024,060.66. Wilson explained that this included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not voluntary premiums or deductions authorized by the farmer.

Regulated milk dealers utilized 399,151,876 pounds or 43.3 percent of the total amount of milk for Class I. The Class I milk is used for fluid milk products such as homogenized, flavored, low-test, and skim milks. For March 1980, handlers paid $13.62 per hundredweight, or 29.3 cents per quart, for this milk compared with $12.80 a year ago.

The balance of the milk, 56.7 percent, was used to manufacture Class II products including butter, cheese, ice cream and yogurt. For this milk the handlers paid $11.54 per hundredweight.

The uniform price is based on milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat. For March 1980, a differential of 15.0 cents was applied to the price for each one-tenth of one percent that the milk tested above or below the 3.5 percent standard.

All priced quoted are for bulk tank milk received within the 201-210 mile zone from New York City.

What does estate planning mean to you, your farm?

BY SHEILA MILLER

LITITZ — Estate planning— these two words have taken on a new meaning for a lot of Pennsylvania farm families.

The importance and interest in estate planning can be seen by looking at the calendar of events of many farm organizations, banks, and the county Extension. Barely a week goes by that there isn't a meeting somewhere on this topic.

So what is estate planning? To find out, let's start with the basics.

If we look at the two words that make up estate planning, we might get a very simple definition of what it involves.

Relying on the expertise of Webster, we go to the dictionary and find that the word estate can be defined as 'possessions or property, especially a person's property in land and tenements'. It also includes in the definition the fact that an estate is the assets and liabilities left by a person at death.

Now, let's look at the word 'planning'. Webster tells us that planning means 'to arrange the parts of'.

Combining the two definitions, we see estate planning is the process of arranging a person's assets and liabilities they will leave after their death to their heirs.

An over-simplification of a complex subject? Yes, but Webster gives us a base on which to start building the system. By taking it one step at a time, you'll be able to watch the planning process proceed from start to finish, pulling out the parts that fit your life.

Now, let's go back to our experiences and memories for some more information on estate planning.

In books and novels about the past, we read how wealthy people in days gone by simply wrote their wills on a sheet of parchment. And upon their death, their wishes for the division of their personal property were solemnly carried out by the town's magistrate or their family lawyer.

In today's world, death and all its problems are not so easlily solved. Estate planning and inheritance regulations have become more complex.

The government, seeing a source of income slipping through its fingers, stopped the passing down of family fortunes without taxation.

In the United States, the government took the necessary action to implement the first federal estate tax in 1939.

The first set of stumbling blocks in estate planning were laid down with that legislation. Ever since then people have been trying to figure out what an estate involves, and how they can successfully pass on their farms and businesses to the next generation without paying too many taxes.

According to B. Wayne Kelly, an Extension Agricultural Economist at Penn State, an estate includes: real estate, cash, checking account, savings account, bonds, stocks, certificates of deposit, insurance, pension benefits, retirement benefits, revocable trusts, household property, automobiles, personal properties, machinery, livestock, and any gifts made to others within three years of the person's death.

No sooner has death occurred than property of the deceased in the above categories is 'frozen' and the Federal Estate Tax is invoked. The value of the property is determined by an appraisal, and taxed accordingly.

Without proper estate planning, the taxes levied on the estate of the deceased, now referred to as a decedent, can consume all that the individual has worked and struggled for during his or her lifetime.

Next week's Lancaster Farming will take a closer look at the Federal Estate Tax and its 1976 revision.

The continued series will be found in the front of Section B.

Know your equipment lease and its tax implications

COLUMBUS, Ne. — Two basic types of equipment leases require different tax treatments, so be sure to understand the plan you're considering.

That's the advice from Ben Polzkill, marketing manager for Lindsay Credit Corp., located here.

The two types of plans are the true lease and the lease purchase agreement.

Polzkill said, "The difference between the two plans are confusing and can sometimes be misleading. If you understand what you're dealing with from the very beginning, you shouldn't have any problems."

A true lease meets all the Internal Revenue Service requirements for tax deductions. The guidelines for this lease type are (1) no equity can be established, (2) rentals are substantially equal, (3) only a qualified estimate or fair market value may be offered, (4) renewals of purchase options are available at fair market value, (5) lessor bears risk of ownership and (6) estimated useful life is the greater of two years or 10 percent over original lease term.

Under a lease purchase agreement, normally the investment credit is passed to the leasee, according to Polzkill. In addition payments are usually substantially higher.

"Ususally this type of program offers a nominal purchase option at the end, that's the real tip-off when you're dealing with a conditional sales contract type lease."

Polzkill explained that "Under a lease purchase plan, payments cannot be deducted on tax returns. Depreciation is on the same basis as an outright purchase. Farmers cannot automatically just write off lease payments as the operating expense under the lease purchase This is the area you have to be careful about.

If the lease payment is written off as an operating expense and the IRS determines the plan is a conditional sales contract, you could be in line for penalties or additional tax payments.

He advises that when comparing lease plans for equipment be sure to find out what type of plan it is — a true lease or a lease purchase. Then, pick the one that fits your situation best. If you want to write your lease payment off as an operating expense, choose a low cost true lease. If you want to take ITC and depreciation, then choose a high-cost lease purchase plan.

Cereal Research Center established at Penn State

UNIVERSITY PARK — A Center for Cereals Research has been established at Penn State, with the goal of improving potential for production of small grains in Pennsylvania and the Northeast states region.

The center may be the first significant grouping of scientists from several expertise areas for a team approach to improving small grains grown under conditions of the region, according to Harold G. Marshall, coordinator of the center.

He is an employee of the U.S. Department of Agriculture with a joint appointment as adjunct professor of plant breeding at Penn State.

The general goal of the center is to improve grain yields and economic returns from small grains. Emphasis is on development and use of improved varieties, intensive cultural practices, and integrated pest management systems. Researchers will be from the expertise areas of agronomy, plant breeding, plant pathology, weed science, crop physiology, entomology, and agricultural economics.

Marshall views the center as a partnership involving all interests of the small grain industry. It was established in 1979 under a cooperative agreement between Penn State and the USDA, operating from the department of agronomy with full and part-time personnel from both organizations. Additional assistance will be sought from the grain interests of the region.

While the partnership between Penn State and the USDA is an important step toward improving small grain yields, Marshall emphasizes that support from grain producers, millers and feed dealers, and associated ag industries is essential for success of the program.

Marshall points out that the Northeast is a feed and food grain deficit area, and additional production in the Region would reduce expenses of transporting grain from other regions of the U.S.

Wheat has the potential to provide excellent cash returns to the producer if current yield limiting problems can be solved. The nearness to seaports puts the Northeast Region in an especially favorable location to capitalize on an increasing world demand for wheat.

"Small grains are the most neglected crops in the Northeast," Marshall says. "The potential for yield improvement is tremendous." He estimates that millions of dollars are lost annually because of disease and insect pests, unfavorable environmental conditions and stresses unique to the area. Also responsible are improper management practices.

Most small grain production in this region is with varieties developed for conditions and practices of other areas – generally the mid-western states. Current interest and practices of other intensive management practices now merit varieties adapted specifically to the region.

Team members see small grains as beneficial to the small farmers prevalent in Pennsylvania and the region. Many such farms need a cash crop or additional feed for animal enterprises.

Broiler placements up slightly

HARRISBURG — Placements of broiler chicks in the Commonwealth during the week ending April 5 were 2,202,000, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

The placements were three percent above the corresponding week a year earlier, but two percent below the previous week. Average placements during the past nine weeks were four percent above a year earlier.

Placements in the 21 key poultry producing states were 81,429,000, two percent below the previous week and one percent below the same week a year earlier. Average placements during the past nine weeks were four percent above a year ago.

Broiler-fryers slaughtered in Pennsylvania under federal inspection during the week ending March 26 totaled 1,986,000, with an average liveweight of 4.12 pounds.

Mervin Sauder, R6 Lititz, looks over site of new finishing operation as concrete is poured in excavated pit area.

900-hog finishing operation planned

LITITZ — Construction began this week on a 900-hog finishing unit on the Mervin Sauder farm along Temperance Hill Road, R6 Lititz.

The Nebraska modified open front unit will measure 200 feet long and 28 feet wide and have a capacity for 800 to 900 hogs, according to Sauder.

"I decided against remodeling an older existing barn," Sauder said.

He is presently finishing about 350 head in various locations, some on contract. The finishing will be consolidated in the new facility when it is completed in about two months.

Feeder pigs will be supplied from the 480-sow total confinement farrowing operation of L. and L. Pig Producers, Lebanon County.

Sauder is in partnership in the L. and L. Operation with three other farmers in the Lititz-Manheim area, including Ken Witmer, Jim Kettering and Marlin Cassel.

Feeder pigs are divided among the partners and replacement gilts are provided from the finishing operations.

The Sauder finishing unit will be erected by Craft-Bilt Construction, Inc., R2 Manheim.

Plans call for the feeding of high moisture corn and a new storage silo will be erected, too. A large 60 by 90-foot machinery shed was built on the Sauder farm last summer.

Sauder farms about 200 acres in three locations in the Temperance Hill and Sumac Road area, east of Lititz. Growing largely corn and alfalfa, he milks 40 head of Holsteins and also feeds steers.-da

Rising production costs demand fine-tuned cropping

GEORGETOWN, Del. — This year your soil test results may turn out to be your very best friend. With the drastic rise in the price of fertilizers for the 1980 cropping season, the soil test can be one of the best management tools for making a profit, says University of Delaware extension crops specialist Frank Webb.

Costs of nitrogen and phosphorus are way up this year, he reports, with nitrogen prices running somewhere between 20 and 24 cents a pound. And for the first time in the history of modern fertilizers, phosphorus costs more per pound than nitrogen — anywhere from 25 to 30 cents a pound. Th is a considerable inci e over 1979.

Potash has increased the least of the majc fertilizer inputs, with prices still running somewhere in the neighborhood of 12 to 14 cents a pound.

When you calculate your total fertilizer investment in terms of pounds applied per acre on your corn and soybeans, you can see that what you pay for these inputs alone is going to boost your production costs way up this year. Add the increases in what you pay for fuel and pesticides and it's obvious that you're going to have to sharpen your pencil and put all you know to good use, to make a profit in 1980.

The soil test is one farming tool that can be used with a fair amount of confidence today, says Webb.

Both research and extension demonstrations at the University of Delaware show that with the high level of phosphorus and potash in many Delaware soils, it's often possible to reduce — or even eliminate — applications of these materials in some fields.

So take a close look at your soil test results, rather than making routine applications of these nutrients. If you already have adequate fertility, this may be the time to use some of it.

Of course, where soil test analysis reveals that levels are low, you will need to apply phosphorus and potash at recommended rates. In spite of the rise in fertilizer costs today, remember these nutrients are still probably one of the best buys around, when it comes to making a profit on a crop

If you need any help in determining fertilizer rates for your crops this year, contact your county agricultural agent, Webb suggests. Just remember that in order to fine tune your fertilizer program you need good soil test results. Ideally you should have your soil analyzed each year.

There are other ways to economize on corn, soybean and small grain production. Take your weed control program. With the rising cost of herbicides, it pays to take extra care in their application. Also, price out the different materials available. You may find that a number of different ones will do the same job as far as broadleaf weed or grass control are concerned. But they may not all be priced competitively

What you're looking for are effective materials that will do a good job at the cheapest price This is the best way to optimize the return on your investment.

One other area which needs close scrutiny if you're trying to pare down your production costs is fuel use. There's not much we can do about fuel prices, says Webb But we can organize our tillage operations and consolidate some travel over our fields In some areas there's certainly the option of going no-till.

No-tillage can result in considerable fuel economy — especially on corn The savings from this cultural practice have been well demonstrated over the last six to eight years in Delaware.

The program is well described in the extension publication, "Recipe for No-Tillage Corn Production" This is available free from extension offices in Newark, 302/738-2506; Dover 302/678-4675; and Georgetown 302/856-5250.

No-tillage also works well for double-cropped soybeans after grain. But as in the case of no-till corn, certain procedures must be carefully followed in order to get the weed control and good crop stands that will result in a good yield.

If you need help in setting up a no-till program on your farm, check with your county agent on this matter, too.

PMMB to suspend tolling enforcement

HARRISBURG — At a public meeting held Friday, April 11, the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board voted to suspend the enforcement of the Board's tolling regulation, Regulation 141.4.

According to PMMB Executive Secretary Earl B. Fink, Jr., the move was taken pending the outcome of litigation with Dairylea Cooperative, et al, presently before the Commonwealth Court.

Lehigh Valley Farms, on February 13, 1980 had charged Dairylea with illegal tolling of milk.

The charges stem from an arrangement between A&P and Dairylea on the processing and packaging of milk from Dairylea's Scranton plant at a price Lehigh charged is below the cost of production.

Dairylea has denied the charges and said they were within full compliance with PMMB regulations.

NEW! RO-CROP CULTIVATOR with the Exclusive "No Wobble" Parallel Links

One of the weaknesses of many cultivators is that the parallel linkage is light weight and bearing areas are small. All too soon the assembly starts to wear and break down. Brillion's NO WOBBLE links are made of cast iron (12 lbs each). Each end is equipped with full 2" wide non-lube sleeve bearings.

The Brillion "S" tine cultivator (model BRS) with four-way tooth movement is designed for high speed cultivation, especially in conjunction with chemical weed control The "S" tines also mulch the soil and level the ground for easier harvesting Available in rigid and folding models for four to 12 rows

New levels of comfort and field productivity. 108 to 180 hp*

New Case 90 series tractors can move you up to the comfort and performance levels you should be farming with

A few minutes in the all-new cab — testing new controls, seat and steering listening to the comfortable low sound at operating RPM — will acquaint you with a new working environment hard to equal

New Case CON TROL hydraulics give you the best of both open center and closed center systems without the limitations of either Low noise, low heat and low power needs in the standby mode

Case 504-cube (8.25 L) engines in all four models are the kind that built a reputation for Case toughness

The new 90's fight rust. Hood, grille, grille screen and side panels are non-metallic

They're easy to service. New S-R-M (Simple to Remove for Maintenance) hood elevates and is held high by spring assisted cylinders (except 2090) Batteries are on a swing-out platform Easy-off side panels Swing-away oil cooler and condenser for radiator area access

And there's so much more than we can describe here If you've been thinking about higher productivity with big 2WD power, see and test the outstanding new Case 90 series From the Tractor Specialist At your nearby Case dealer

Bigger and better cab Our new 4-post roll-protective cab is roomier, quieter cleaner, easier to see from than any cab we've ever built The new fabric-covered 8-way adjustable President's Chair (optional) is so comfortable it may leave us no place to look for improvement And with optional air conditioning AM or AM/FM radio 8-track stereo tape deck and 40-channel CB you're getting close to an executive's office on wheels

New Case CON TROL hydraulics system is a closed center system that varies volume and pressure to meet demands of implement load Avoids power losses of an open center system which operates at full flow or of a closed center system which operates at full pressure in the standby mode

Permits multiple functions simultaneously More adaptable to implements designed for closed and open center systems

Primary hydraulic pump (above center) supplies up to 26 GPM (98 L/min) — with an individual 8 GPM (30 L/min) pump for power brakes and steering

Optional flow control knobs (above right) individually regulate flow and work speed for up to 4 remotes

We're parts and service specialists, too.

As the Tractor Specialist, your Case dealer serves you from a parts inventory designed for speed and efficiency Our dealers are also pledged to provide fast expert handling of your Case tractor service needs

HERE ARE TWO FIRSTS FOR PENNSYLVANIA:

One, the first Satellite Challenge Feeder sold and installed on a Pennsylvania farm, and the first Challenge Feeder we have sold in Chester County, Pennsylvania.

This unique feeder is a compact assembly of two challenge feeders and the concentrate Storage bin - all in one package, which can be located in most feed lots without any further concrete work.

This unique feeder was installed on Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hoopes Farm at West Grove, Pennsylvania in December, 1979.

Mr. Hoopes states that this feeder is operating exactly as it is designed to do and he is sure that the cows like it very much from the usage it is getting. He can't verify how much more milk he is producing because he just started a new milking parlor in October and his cows need to get adjusted to all the new facilities.

He also is using the new DV 300 parlor model milker control in his parlor and is really sold on their performance.

Why not stop in at Mr. and Mrs. Hoopes farm and look over his new system and talk to them about their challenge feeder. He will be happy to talk about them.

We will be getting two more Satellite Challenge Feeders in stock in April - so if you are interested in this outstanding feeding mechanism that controls the amount of concentrate you want to feed your cows, just give us a call at 301-658-6923, and talk to any of our service personnel about your needs.

Pennsylvania Flying Farmer Queen

Verna Noll is flying high with her new duties

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

For Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Noll, 201 Rohrerstown Road, Lancaster, flying their Piper two-seater airplane is as natural as getting into the family car and driving to the store. So it is no surprise that Verna should be honored as Pennsylvania's Flying Farmer Queen for 1980.

The nomination to be queen came unexpectedly for this grandmother, but she says, "I'm really excited about it and so are the children." She was crowned at the 14th annual convention at Beaver Falls in March.

To be chosen as the flying farmer queen, a woman must live on a farm and the couple must own their own plane. The Nolls are qualified on both counts. They have their own private landing strip nestled in their fields between Two Guys Department Store and Stauffer's of Kissel Hill near Rohrerstown. The wind sock on their silo is a familiar sight to people who travel the busy Rohrerstown Road.

The Nolls are long-time members of the Pennsylvania Flying Farmers, an organization which numbers about 200. To become a full-fledged member, a flying farmer must get over 51 percent of his income from farming. Nationally, there are over 2,000 members of the International Flying Farmers organization, which includes Canada and Mexico.

June 21 has been designated "Queen's Day" for the Flying Farmers, and members will be traveling to the Noll farm that day to meet with the queen and her family. It will also be a pilot up-grading day, the Nolls explained, and pilots will be taking their annual proficiency tests (APT) which are required of flying farmer members.

One of the things Verna is now learning to do is to become proficient at "Landits" which means she will be qualified to land an airplane. She will encourage other Flying Farmers' wives to become qualified at Landits. She talked about her other duties, "I will also be hostess at Fly-Ins and attend the regular monthly meeting. I will welcome old and new members."

While she does not have an interest in learning to fly herself, Verna says, "I go along with Bob a lot of the time. I enjoy going along, but I never really cared to learn to fly." When asked how she feels about her husband's flying, she answered, "I know he's happy doing it. He loves to fly."

Homestead Notes

Flying is not new to them. Noll says, "I've been flying for at least 30 years, and the airstrip was put in in 1949."

He recalls that he became interested in flying as a young man when basic instruction was given to pilots during World War II at the old Lancaster Airport, located where Landis Brothers now stands on the Manheim Pike. "One evening after work, in 1945, we went for our first lesson," he recalls, adding that it cost $5 per hour for the plane and $3 for the instructor. Now, Noll says, it would cost about $42 an hour.

"I was at it for three years before I got my private license. We only went when we had money." At the time, he pointed out, he was working for his Dad and was being paid 12 cents per hour.

Noll purchased his first plane in 1949. It was a Piper J3, and cost $600 as a two-year-old plane. He got his present "Super Cub" in 1958.

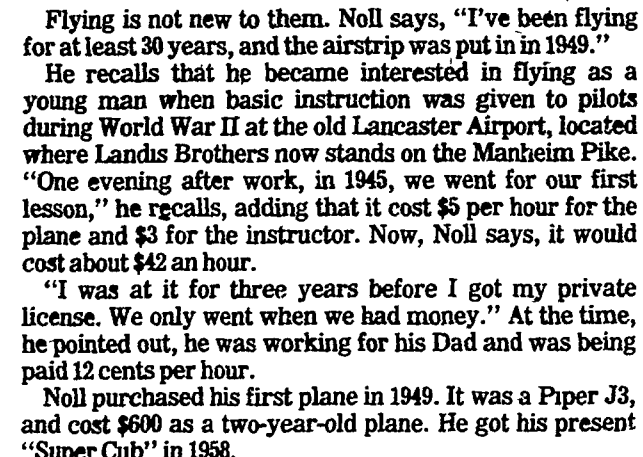
Despite his obvious enthusiasm for the flying, he says, "I don't fly more than 50 hours a year." He also admits, "I'm a fair weather pilot."

Most flying farmers own airplanes for a combination of business and pleasure. Since airplanes are certainly not a necessity for this part of Pennsylvania, Noll says he uses it for business but flies mostly for pleasure. "Not many people do things just for fun," he says with a smile.

In the Midwest and the West, Noll observes, "They use their planes to check cattle. Their plane is as important to them as their combines. They often fly into town for supplies. We're so close to everything that we don't have that much opportunity to use the plane."

The Nolls farm 44 acres at their home on the Rohrerstown Road. They have broilers and raise hogs and steers, along with corn and wheat. Their son, C. Robert, works with them and farms near Mountville. The airplane is frequently used for short trips to the second farm.

Verna is a busy farmwife, being actively involved in Farm Women Society 18, and in the Black Rock Auxiliary, the Rohrerstown Fire Company Auxiliary and the Rohrerstown Mennonite Church.



Verna and Bob Noll enjoy taking a quick airplane trip in good weather. Here they prepare to take off in their Piper Super Cub at their landing strip near Rohrerstown.

The Nolls' airplane is as important to them as a car is to most people. It is often used for short trips and for pleasure trips. They both agree it is a terrific way to see the beautiful areas in central Pennsylvania.

When she was selected as Flying Farmer Queen, Verna was crowned by the outgoing queen and received roses and a trophy from Cessna. The 1980 queen will represent the Flying Farmers and participate in their activities.

She is very much at home in her kitchen, enjoying baking and cooking. She also likes to sew and maintains a small garden. She grew up on a farm in the Lititz area.

One of her big interests, not surprisingly, is that she likes to travel, although much of her travel, far and wide, has been done by commercial airline. A favorite trip in their private plane is to Harrisonburg, Virginia, to visit their daughter and her family. The Nolls have three daughters and a son, and six grandchildren.

Verna will attend functions like Ag Progress Days where she will tell the story of the Flying Farmers, and she hopes to do as last year's Queen did by attending the Farm Show and having brunch with Governor Thornburgh.

Another opportunity for Verna as Pennsylvania's Flying Farmer Queen, will be attending the national convention in San Diego where she will participate in a contest for the International Flying Farmer Queen title, along with 49 contestants.

One of the big advantages of membership in the Flying Farmers, according to Verna, is that it is a family organization, "where members get to know families. We have programs that appeal to all family members."

Bob characterized their meetings as "interesting and educational. We always have a chapter meeting, then tour areas of interest."

The objective of the flying farmer organization is "to sponsor education and research in agriculture and aviation." They also work toward the development of public acceptance of light aircraft and want to encourage the use of "close-in" landing strips for towns and cities.

The flying farmers promote safe flying through pilot proficiency checks and educational clinics and they work toward obtaining favorable legislation for the safety and economy of general aviation.

Verna Noll enjoys cooking and baking in her farm kitchen and will combine her role as farm homemaker with her duties as Flying Farmer Queen.

As the Flying Farmer Queen, Verna acquired a scrapbook of previous winners, along with other general information. Here she looks it over in her farm kitchen.

While regulations are not a problem in Pennsylvania, Noll pointed out that more and more air space is becoming controlled, which means that the ordinary guy who wants to fly for fun has to purchase more and more expensive equipment to fly within this controlled airspace.

Furthermore, Noll noted that in the West, where flying is more a necessity to check out huge ranching operations, regulations are establishing the necessity of having huge fuel tanks on farms. Gas suppliers are reluctant to deliver and farmers cannot afford huge reserves.

Members of the Flying Farmers, Noll explained, also receive a 10 percent discount on their insurance.

For Verna, the prospect of representing Pennsylvania's Flying Farmers is an unexpected pleasure and one she is looking forward to. With flying so important to their lives, she is anxious to tell others about the joys of flying.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

"Mom, what's that funny-looking thing propped behind the door to the stairs?"

"What funny-looking thing?"

"You know, that folding metal thing with blue legs and flowered pink material on it?"

Oh, that thing. That, my dear, is an ironing board. Yes, it is something left over from the "olden days," when I was younger.

You see, once upon a time we used that contraption every week for a job called "ironing." There was this electrical appliance, kind of triangle-shaped with a handle on top, that got very hot when you plugged it in. When it go too hot to touch, then it was ready to use. You'd spread clothing out over boards like the one behind the door, and push the hot iron over the cloth to smooth and press the wrinkles out of it.

"Wrinkles? What are wrinkles?"

Well, back in those ancient times, there were no such things as polyester double knits or electric clothes dryers or fabric softeners. When clothes were washed, the fabric dried looking like something that had been lost under the bed for a week or two. Then we had to stand for hours holding that hot iron and pressing those creases out. As I remember, there was also a thick, gooey liquid called "starch" that you dipped the shirts and blouses in to make them real stiff and itchy when you wore them.

"Why?"

You know, I used to wonder the same thing when I was a kid. I never got a sensible answer, either.

We little kids used to learn how to iron on simple, flat things like hankies and cotton dish towels, before they'd let us go on to the harder stuff like shirts or dresses. And, seems I've even heard of people that actually ironed denim jeans and tee-shirts, like the ones Daddy wears to the barn and gets coated with mud and manure. No, it doesn't make much sense, does it?

"Ge, I think I heard somewhere recently that some of those wrinkly fabrics might be coming back. You're liable to have to learn to iron, after all, before you grow up."

"Yeah, it is a silly idea."

"You're right. Some man designer probably thought it up"

Morning, noon or night, make friends with the incredible edible egg

While eggs are familiar to all of us as breakfast fare and basic ingredients in almost all baked goods, today we're featuring eggs as the spotlight of luncheon or dinner menus.

Since eggs are a high-protein, relatively bland food, they add valuable nutrients to any dish and combine well with foods from any of the basic four food groups.

For instance, in the milk group, eggs are great with cheese in quiches, omelets, souffles and casseroles. Eggs make a great addition to snack dips, as well as holding up their end in the dessert menu in custards and puddings.

In the fruit and vegetable category, hard-cooked eggs, either mashed or sliced, make a great addition to any leafy salad. And most any fruit makes a delicious omelet filling

Meats and eggs are a natural combination in casseroles; and in the cereal group, eggs combine beautifully with either rice or noodles.

Once you get eggs out of the breakfast slot in your mind, there are almost limitless ways to use them. And today we've given you some recipes to almost guarantee that you'll never fall into the eggs-are-only-for-breakfast trap again.

Scotch Eggs are an unusual use of hard-cooked eggs. In this recipe, hard-cooked eggs are wrapped with a filling of sausage, breaded and deep-fat fried. Half-hour Dinner will get you back on schedule with a quick dinner idea. And Eggs Pizza will interest the under-twenties in your clan. So try one or try them all and pick your favorites. It's no yolk, it really is the incredible edible egg.

When the family's appetites need perking up, eggs can be the main dish or the piece de resistance. Hardly a person breathes who would not enjoy the lucious richness of Pots de Creme. Why not try some soon.

EGGS ST. DENIS

¾ cup chopped lean ham
4 tablespoons chopped onion
1 tablespoon chopped cooked liver
2 tablespoons chopped mushrooms
2 tablespoons butter
dash of white wine or lemon juice
6 eggs
6 slices of toast
6 slices of boiled ham
salt and pepper to taste

Make sauce (1½ cups) by cooking chopped ham, onion, liver and mushrooms together in butter. Add wine or lemon juice. Break each egg into a saucer. Slide eggs into deep fat (not too hot). Keep turning eggs over with perforated turner to keep eggs round and to get whites to cover the yolks. Place slices of buttered toast on plates. Place a slice of ham and an egg on each slice of toast. Pour sauce over. Serves 6.

B. Russell, Pine Bush, N.Y.

POTS DE CREME

6 ounces of semi-sweet chocolate
½ cup hot brewed coffee
4 eggs
3 tablespoons sugar
¾-1 teaspoon brandy or rum extract
whipped cream, optional

Place chocolate pieces in blender container. Blend at medium speed 10 seconds. Scrape down sides of blender container with a rubber spatula. Add coffee. Blend at medium speed 5 seconds. Add eggs, sugar and extract. Blend at medium speed until smooth, about 30-40 seconds. Pour into 6 pot de creme cups or small sherbet glasses. Refrigerate overnight. Garnish with whipped cream if desired.

STUFFED EGGS DELUXE

4 hard-cooked eggs
2 tablespoons of soft Danish Bleu-cheese
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon diced chives
2 tablespoons mayonnaise or salad dressing salt and pepper to taste
paprika

Split egg lengthwise and remove yolks. Mash the egg yolks and combine with the remaining ingredients. Mix together until fluffy. Fill the egg whites with the mixture and sprinkle each with a little paprika.

Mrs. Charles Biehl, Mertztown

TEXAS BAKED EGGS

1 15-ounce can chili with beans
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
¼ cup chopped green pepper
4 eggs

Combine chili and ½ cup of the cheese and green pepper and press into bottom and sides of two individual (1½ cup) baking dishes or large custard cups. Break two eggs into each chili-lined dish. Sprinkle with remaining ½ cup cheese. Bake in preheated 350° F. oven until eggs are set, 30-35 minutes.

WORLD'S EASIEST SOUFFLE

butter
grated Parmesan cheese
4 eggs
4 ounces sharp Cheddar cheese, cubed
3 ounces of cream cheese, cubed
⅓ cup milk, or light cream
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
½ teaspoon onion salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard

Butter bottom and sides of 1-quart souffle dish or casserole. Dust with Parmesan cheese. Set aside. Combine remaining ingredients in blender container. Cover and blend at medium speed until smooth, about 30 seconds. Blend at high speed another 10-15 seconds. Carefully pour into the prepared dish. Bake in preheated 350° F. oven 25-30 minutes or until puffy and delicately browned. Serve immediately.

SCOTCH EGGS

12 hard-cooked eggs
1 egg, beaten
⅓ cup fine dry bread crumbs

Divide sausage into 12 equal portions. Shape each portion into patty and wrap completely around a hard-cooked egg, pressing edges together to seal. Dip sausage-wrapped eggs in beaten egg; then roll in bread crumbs until completely coated.

Cook eggs in preheated 375° F. deep fat until golden brown and heated through, 7 to 9 minutes. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve hot or cold.

EGGS PIZZA

6 eggs
⅓ cup water
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon oregano
dash of pepper
2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup pizza sauce
½ cup shredded Mozzarella cheese

Mix eggs, water, salt, oregano and pepper with fork. Heat butter in a 10-inch omelet pan or skillet with ovenproof handle until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in egg mixture. Mixture should set at edges at once. With pancake turner, carefully draw cooked portions at edges to the center so uncooked portions flow to bottom. Tilt skillet as necessary to hasten flow of uncooked eggs. Slide pan rapidly back and forth over heat to keep mixture in motion and sliding freely. While top is still moist and creamy-looking, spread with pizza sauce and sprinkle with cheese. Broil until cheese melts. With pancake turner, slide from pan onto serving plate. To serve, cut into wedges. To make handle ovenproof, wrap it with aluminum foil.

QUICHE INTERNATIONAL

1 9-inch pie shell
6 eggs, beaten
½ cup chopped cooked chicken or turkey
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 can condensed cream of celery soup, undiluted
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon salt

Brush pie shell with small amount of the beaten eggs. Prick bottom and sides with a fork. If using metal pie pan, bake shell in preheated 450° F. oven until golden brown, about 5 minutes. If using pie plate, bake shell at 425° F. Cool on wire rack. Reduce oven temperature to 375° F. for metal pan or 350° F. for pie plate.

Sprinkle chicken and cheese into pie shell. Beat together eggs and remaining ingredients until well blended. Pour over chicken-cheese mixture. Bake in a preheated oven until knife inserted near center comes out clean, 30-35 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes before serving.

HALF-HOUR DINNER

¾ cup uncooked regular rice
1 can condensed cream of celery soup
¾ cup water
1 tablespoon butter
1 10-ounce package frozen peas.
2-2½ ounces of sliced mushrooms
6 eggs
½ cup shredded Swiss cheese

In a large frying pan, combine rice, soup, water and butter. Cover and bring to boil. Reduce heat to simmering. Simmer covered 5 minutes. Stir in frozen peas and simmer covered 5 minutes longer. Stir in mushrooms. Make 6 indentations in rice mixture. Break an egg into each indentation. Cover and continue cooking over low to medium heat until eggs are almost set, 3 to 5 minutes. Sprinkle with cheese. Cover and cook until eggs are done, 5 to 7 minutes.

HAM'N EGG CREPES

12 crepes
1 can crushed pineapple
1 can condensed cream of chicken soup, undiluted
1 cup dairy sour cream
6 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1 cup finely chopped cooked ham
1 tablespoon chopped chives
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Drain pineapple, reserving ¼ cup of syrup. Combine ½ can soup with drained crushed pineapple, sour cream, eggs, ham, chives and mustard. Set aside. Combine remaining ½ can of soup with ¼ cup reserved pineapple syrup and set aside. Place about ⅓ cup ham and egg filling on each crepe and roll up. Place filled crepes in a greased oblong baking dish. Pour sauce over the top. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Bake in a preheated 350° F. oven 30 minutes, or until hot and bubbly. Makes 4-6 servings.

DIFFERENT DEVILED EGGS

8 hard-cooked eggs
juice of ½ lemon
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons salad dressing
½ cup finely shredded dried beef

Slice the eggs in lengthwise halves. Scoop out the yolk and mash. Add the lemon juice, mustard, salt, salad dressing and dried beef. Combine well and fill each egg white with the mixture. Garnish with minced parsley and a sprinkle of paprika.

Mrs. Carl S. Bacon, Felton

EGG AND POTATO SKILLET SUPPER

¼ cup butter
4 medium potates, cooked and sliced
1 medium onion, sliced
1 tablespoon parsley flakes
½ teaspoon paprika
8 eggs
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup pepper

In a large frying pan over medium heat, melt butter. Add potatoes, onion, parsley and paprika. Cook, stirring occasionally, until potatoes begin to brown and onion is tender, about 5 to 7 minutes. Reduce heat to medium. Meanwhile, beat eggs, milk, salt and pepper together with a fork. Pour egg mixture over potato mixture. As eggs begin to set, gently draw pancake turner completely across bottom and sides of skillet, forming large soft curds. Continue until eggs are thickened throughout but still moist.

It is better to remove the eggs from the pan when they are slightly underdone, because heat retained completes the cooking.

BASIC CREPES

3 tablespoons butter
3 eggs, slightly beaten
½ cup milk
½ cup water
¾ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt

Melt butter in 10-inch omelet pan or 8-inch crepe pan. Meanwhile in a bowl, beat eggs, milk, water and melted butter. Blend in flour and salt until mixture is smooth. On medium heat, heat buttered omelet pan until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water For each crepe, pour scant ¼ cup batter in pan, browned on bottom; remove from pan or turn and brown other side. (Crepes to be filled need only be browned on one side). Stack between sheets of paper toweling or waxed paper until ready to use. Crepes may also be frozen. Spread scant ⅓ cup filling on each crepe Serve 2-3 crepes per person. Makes approximately 12 crepes Crepes should set to a thin lacy pancake almost immediately If too much batter is poured into the pan, pour off excess immediately. If there are holes, add a drop or two of batter for a patch.

Junior Cooking Edition

Today, in honor of egg month, we're featuring egg recipes for junior cooks.

From the basics of good soft-cooked eggs to a Toad-in-the-Hole, our junior cooks will enjoy these young crowd pleasers. So why not fry something new today?

SOFT-COOKED EGGS

Put eggs in a single layer in a saucepan. Add enough water to come at least 1 inch above the eggs. Cover and quickly bring just to boiling. Turn off heat. If necessary, remove pan from burner to prevent further boiling. Let eggs stand in hot water 1 to 4 minutes, depending on the desired doneness. Immediately run cold water over the eggs or put them in ice water until cool enough to handle.

To serve, break the shell through the middle with a knife. With a teaspoon, scoop egg out of each half shell into a serving dish Sprinkle with grated cheese or bacon if desired.

HARD-COOKED EGGS

Cook eggs exactly as for soft-cooked eggs, except allow the eggs to stand 15 to 17 minutes for large eggs. Run cold water over the eggs until completely cooled. Note: Eggs should always be hard-cooked rather than hard-boiled. When an egg is boiled, the white gets tough and the outside of the yolk turns green from the reaction of the yolk to the heat.

SPOONBREAD

4 eggs, separated
2 cups milk
3 tablespoons butter
1 cup cornmeal
1 teaspoon baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar

In a small mixing bowl, beat egg yolks at high speed until thick and lemon-colored, about 5 minutes. Set aside.

In large saucepan over medium heat, combine milk and butter. Cook, stirring constantly, until butter melts. Stir in cornmeal, baking powder and salt. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens, about 3 minutes. Remove from heat. Beat in yolks and set aside. Wash and dry beaters. In large mixing bowl, beat egg whites and cream of tartar at high speed until stiff but not dry, just until whites no longer slip when bowl is tilted. Gently fold cornmeal-yolk mixture into whites. Pour into greased 1½ quart baking dish.

Bake in preheated 375° F oven until knife inserted halfway between center and outside edge comes out clean, 30-35 minutes Serve immediately.

FORGOTTEN COOKIES

6 egg whites
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
1½ cups sugar
3½ ounces flaked coconut
½ teaspoon vanilla
6 ounces semi-sweet chocolate pieces
¼ teaspoon mint extract few drops of green food coloring
1 cup chopped nuts
½ cup finely chopped drained maraschino cherries few drops red food coloring

Beat egg whites and cream of tartar until foamy. Add sugar, alittle at a time until sugar is dissolved and whites are glossy and stand in soft peaks. Divide egg whites equally among 3 bowls. Fold coconut and vanilla into mixture in first bowl. Fold chocolate, mint and green coloring into second bowl, and fold nuts and cherries along with the red coloring into the third bowl.

Drop by rounded teaspoonfuls onto greased cookie sheets. Place in a preheated 350° F. oven. Immediately turn the oven off. Let cookies stand in the oven until dry and crisp, several hours or overnight.

Expanded protein testing is approved

NEW YORK — A U.S. Department of Agriculture official said Tuesday that USDA will adopt a rule May 1 which will extend permissive official testing for protein to all classes of wheat except for mixed and unclassed.

Leland E. Bartelt, administrator of USDA's Federal Grain Inspection Service, said all official agencies, unless exempted, will be required to provide official testing for protein upon request.

Only official agencies designated to provide services at interior locations are eligible to apply for an exemption. To a large degree, such exemptions will be based on the volume of wheat inspected by an agency.

"Official protein testing will be provided strictly on a request basis under the U.S. Grain Standards Act," Bartelt said. "Wheat buyers and sellers, both in internal and foreign commerce, are entirely free to choose whether or not to use official protein testing services."

FGIS has been providing official protein testing services upon request for hard red winter and hard red spring wheats at export elevators since May 1978.

"We expect requests for the service to increase when testing is available at all specified service points, and is extended to soft red winter, durum and white wheats," Bartelt said.

For domestic lots of wheat, including inbound lots at export port locations, official agencies will be authorized to use any FGIS-approved protein testing method. For export lots of wheat shipped from export port locations, only an FGIS-approved near-infrared reflectance machine may be used.

Bartelt said the near-infrared reflectance machine is the only method currently available that is capable of providing the rapid and accurate results needed.

Marketing wheat on the basis of protein content has become increasingly important since protein content has been proven to be a reliable indicator of wheat quality for milling purposes, Bartelt said.

TOAD-IN-THE-HOLE

1 slice bread
1-2 tablespoons butter
1 egg
salt and pepper
1 slice Cheddar or American cheese

Cut out center of bread with a 2-inch round cutter. In a small fry pan over medium heat, melt butter. Add bread slice and cutout and cook on one side until golden brown. Turn bread over and break egg into center hole. Reduce heat and cook egg to desired doneness, 4 to 6 minutes. Season with salt and pepper. Place cheese over the egg. Cover and cook just until the cheese melts, 1 to 2 minutes. Serve immediately.

POPOVERS

3 eggs
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon salt

A very hot oven creates steam inside a batter that pops bread to magnificent heights. Preheat the oven to 425° F. In a small mixing bowl, beat eggs at medium speed until foamy. Blend in milk and butter. Add flour and salt. Beat at low speed until smooth, about 3 minutes. Fill greased popover pans or muffin tins or 6-ounce custard cups until half full.

The log cabin, traditional symbol of the American frontier, was a foreign invention, a building style brought to the New World by Swedish and German immigrants.

Despite its name, West Virginia's New River is actually the oldest river in North America, maintaining its ancient course for a hundred million years. It is also probably the most concentrated dose of white water in the United States—with 21 major rapids in one 15-mile stretch.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Spring brings its own particular kind of work. Seeding is uppermost in farmers' and gardeners' minds. As we've had a late and wet Spring, everyone tries to take advantage of the sunny days.

My sugar peas were planted at least two weeks late this year. But maybe it won't make that big a difference at harvest time. I heard of a fellow who planted his peas in March and then went to Florida for two weeks. When he came back and saw only bare ground in his garden, he accused his neighbor of mowing off his peas. Apparently, they simply had not sprouted as yet.

Just before the garden was worked, I dug some parsnips and the last of my leeks which I'd blanched over the winter. And while I was working outside, I gathered some young dandelion plants as no Spring would be complete without dandelion salad on the table.

When I trim our black raspberries, it hurts me—thorns all over my hands. But when I trim our blueberries, its hurts me a different way. You see what I mean is that after studying the big bushes and trying to decide which branches to eliminate it really hurts me to saw off an old six foot high limb in order to get more light to the other three and four year old wood which I'm told will bear the most berries. We've had our bushes for many years and in the Fall their bright red leaves form a nice edging between the field and our driveway.

The other day I was very surprised to see a pair of wild geese in my garden, just a few feet from the house, when I looked out my kitchen window. They even allowed us to take their picture. They've decided to stay here on the Conestoga and nest as I often hear and see them flying low over our meadow as they are disturbed by fishermen and hikers. They too are busy in their own way.

ABOUT BUYING MAJOR APPLIANCES

When you decide to buy a new washer, dryer, refrigerator, or any major home appliance, choose the appliance that best fits your needs. Consideration such as features, capacity and styling should be important in making your selection. Construction and cleanability must also be part of your total requirements. These vital product areas should be well thought through before making an appliance buy.

But consider too, the manufacturer. Does the manufacturer have a reputation for quality? Is that reputation justified? Compare different brands. Talk to sales people about the care and concern that the manufacturer puts into its line of appliances. Quality products usually have a quality reputation. Use your own judgement to determine if the product meets your standards of quality.

Does the manufacturer back its guarantees with a solid warranty that is easy to understand? Getting through the fine print on some warranties can be confusing, so look for one that is comprehensive, understandable, and states the warranty limitations clearly.

Does the manufacturer offer reliable after-the-sale service by trained technicians who are factory authorized? Factory authorization is important because the service companies must live up to the quality standards set forth by the manfuacturer. And, you will be assured that your service technician is thoroughly knowledgeable about your appliance.

Remember, your main concern when shopping for the right appliance should be you. Your appliances should provide you with a happier, more convenient lifestyle now, and in the years to come.

POULTRY AND EGGS ARE ECONOMICAL PROTEIN SOURCES

Poultry and eggs continue to be two of the most effective weapons against the high price of protein sources. They are excellent choices for use in nutritious, yet cost conscious meals.

You can take better advantage of these bargains when you know which quality factors to look for in these products. Just by checking label information, you can predict the tenderness, meatiness and appearance of poultry and the interior quality of eggs.

Lean poultry is an important part of a healthy diet. There are two U.S. Department of Agriculture insignias you may see on poultry. One is the inspection mark, which means that the bird is safe and wholesome to eat. The inspection mark does not tell you anything about the tenderness or meatiness of the bird. For information about these factors, look for the USDA grade and class of the bird.

All poultry sold in supermarkets has been inspected for wholesomeness, and the inspection mark is displayed on many consumer packages. But not all poultry is graded for quality. Look for the grade mark for information about the meatiness of the bird. U.S. Grade A chickens, turkeys, duck and capons are the meatiest and have the fewest tears in their skins.

You can predict the tenderness of a bird by looking for the class or age. Young birds, usually labeled as broilers, fryers, and roasters, are the most tender. Older birds, which are good for stewing, baking and soups, are often labeled as stewing hens.

The three grades for eggs, U.S. Grade AA, A and B, describe the interior quality of the egg and the appearance and condition of the shell. The higher the grade, the higher the yolk and white of the egg will stand when broken out of the shell. U.S. Grade AA is the most attractive, but the lower grades are equally nutritious and less expensive. The labeled size of eggs actually describes the weight of one dozen eggs. Large eggs weigh 24 ounces per dozen; Extra Large, 27 ounces and Medium eggs weigh 21 ounces per dozen. By calculating the cost per ounce you can determine which is the best buy for the money.

Curt Shreiner prepares for grilling in National Pork Cook Out King contest

BY RUTH ANN BENEDICT
Staff Correspondent

NEW FRANKLIN — "It is funny the way this whole thing happened" said Curt Shreiner, New Franklin, the 1979 PA Pork Cook Out King, with a grin. "It would never happen that way again."

Twenty-three year old Curt, along with his parents Robert and Ina, sister Amy, and grandparents David and Goldie Reichard of Shady Grove, will be traveling to San Antonio, Texas, April 24-26, for the National Pork Cook Out Contest held annually by the National Pork Association. In San Antonio, Curt will compete against 22 other State Pork Cook Out Kings for the national title.

Cooking pork chops on this gas grill once a week is a regular thing for Curt Shreiner, new Franklin 1979 PA Pork Cook Out King, who is traveling to San Antonio, Texas, for the National Pork Cook Out King Contest on April 24-26. Says Curt, "I have to keep in practice."

It all began last August at the Franklin County Fair stated Curt. "My mother was the main instigator of the whole deal, She found out about the contest and wanted my grandfather to get in it He would have nothing to do with it.

"Then she asked me. I never said yes to her and still haven't said yes to that first contest. She came home after working with the baked goods at the Fair and told me she had entered me in the contest. I figured that she would forget about it so I didn't say much. But as the contest got nearer she started getting me ready and I knew she was serious.

"The night of the contest it rained. Water ran down through the tent and it was the first time that I had ever used a gas grill and that made me nervous. "My pork chops looked all brown and shriveled. When they announced the second place winner I started to clean up my things, figuring that I didn't win. Then they announced the winner and it was me. I turned around and said 'what'. I just couldn't believe it.

"I use a curried smoked pork chop recipe and I realized later that the curry tends to make the meat brown anyway."

Winning the Franklin County Contest made Curt eligible for the state contest held during the Adams County Apple Festival at the South Mountain Fairgrounds in Arendtsville last October. It also rained during this contest.

Despite the rain, Curt Shreiner became the 1979 PA Pork Cook Out King. And ever since then, Curt says he has been giving pork cooking demonstrations at the shopping malls in the surrounding areas.

"The South Central Region Pork Association has really been good to me. They sponsor my pork for my cooking demonstrations and C. Eugene Wingert, St. Thomas, books shopping malls for me on the weekends.

"Everyone wants to know where I get my inch thick pork chops. You can't buy them in a store they tell me" But Curt says you can find them if you look hard enough. All the meat that Curt uses comes from a local butcher shop in Chambersburg where the Shreiners have been dealing for years.

Cooking isn't quite as new to Curt as the contests. "We are an active family. I am always on the go, between my job as a bank teller, coaching little league, and playing

Nancy Bennetch, state Farm Women treasurer, books hectic schedule

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

MYERSTOWN - Busy farm wives still magically find time to participate in those volunteer activities that make the world a more pleasant place. Membership in the Pennsylvania Society of Farm Women is one of those special "extras" that has made rural life such a joy for Lebanon County's Nancy Bennetch.

Active in the Farm Women on local and county levels for many years, Nancy currently serves as the treasurer of the state society. Having handled the Bennetch farm records for many years, Nancy comes to the accounting office well-experienced for the job.

The Bennetch registered Holstein dairy operation is located at Myerstown R2. Husband Marlin and son Bill operate the 285 acres in corn, hay and wheat, and the 72 head of milking animals, plus an equal number of young stock. Daughter Margie is a registered nurse at nearby Lebanon Veterans Hospital. Next month, the family circle will expand when Bill brings home his new bride.

A town girl when she married Marlin 23 years ago, Nancy chuckles with the remembrance that "I knew nothing about the farm until then." Raised in the town of Richland, just three miles away, Nancy went into nurses training in Philadelphia and then served in the Army nursing corps for a seven-year stint. Back home in Lebanon County, she accepted a job caring for a private patient just a half-mile down the road from the Bennetch farm Before long, the nursing career was laid aside in favor of becoming a full-time farm wife

When oldest child Margie was eight, Nancy was invited to join Group 2 of the Lebanon County Society of Farm Women. She liked what she saw at that meeting.

"Once you begin, you really get involved," is how Nancy sums up her feeling about the Farm Women. "And we have such a wonderful group, a really good organization."

After heading her local Group 9 for two terms, Nancy moved up from secretary to second vice-president and then into the presidency of Lebanon County Society during 1975-76. As county president and now as a state officer, attendance at board meetings, state activities and social functions is an important part of her position.

But perhaps more important than holding meetings, the Farm Women organization has the opportunity and responsibility to instruct and inform about rural life.

"I think it's pathetic that some non-farm people think farmers have nothing to do on a rainy day," she worries. "And some experts predict that in the near future there will be no rural life left on the East Coast, just one long string of houses and commercialism."

"We must work at promoting rural life, especially by supporting our youth," adds Nancy. "It's so difficult for youth to get any kind of start in agriculture now, with costs the way they are; in fact, it's almost impossible for a young person to begin farming from scratch."

Changes in that trend are highly unlikely, she fears, pinpointing the continuing inflation and parallel energy shortage as two of the farmer's biggest ongoing problems.

"How can farmers keep paying the climbing interest rates, when at the same time their prices continue to drop?" is another major concern. Citing the example of hog farmers faced with a severely depressed market, Nancy sees widespread agriculture bankruptcy as a frightening possibility.

Busy Lebanon County dairy farm wife, Nancy Bennetch, keeps the account books in order as the Pennsylvania Society of Farm Women state treasurer.

Responsibility for the books of the state Farm Women is just one additional job on a list of community activities that keeps stacks of papers rolling onto Nancy's desk.

As treasurer of the Richland chapter of the Federation of Women's Clubs and secretary of the Homemaker's Camp at nearby Camp Swatara, Nancy finds herself sorting into piles the various transactions she must record. She'll be coming up next for secretary of the Women's Club, has served as the Lebanon district representative to the board of Penn Laurel Girl Scout Council for six years and is on the county agriculture extension committee. Although not currently practicing her nursing profession, Nancy does chair a county nursing scholarship committee and is a member of St. Luke's Lutheran Church.

But even busy people need to relax, and Nancy does that with a myriad of hobbies. Sandwiched between meetings, minutes and accounts records, she finds time to squeeze in some reading, practice at the piano, a bit of sewing and "all kinds of handcrafts." Gardening and the care of her house plants also add enjoyment to this busy farm wife's daily routine.

"I like to eat, too!" confesses Nancy with a grin, admitting that she really does enjoy food preparation, especially baking, and finds satisfaction in the security of lots of garden produce in the freezer.

Maryland Charolais dam gets Sterling award

HOUSTON, Tx. — John W. Stump, of Street, Maryland, was awarded the American-International Charolais Dam of Distinction Award for his cow, JS Miss Hilaria Ala 302.

One of five purebred cows in the breed to receive the award, Miss Hilaria brought the first Sterling Dam performance award of this type to the Stump farm. She was given the award for producing 5 calves in seven years, for an average calving interval of 371 days.

The calves from this award-winning cow had an average adjusted 205 day weaning weight of 637 pounds.

Two of the cows to receive the Diamond Dam award were owned by Bauman Ranch, Carpenter, Wyoming. They were the second and third cows to receive this particular recognition.

The dams receiving the Diamond Awards were BR Miss Abbey 2, and BR Miss Abbey 34. They follow the first Diamond Dam of Distinction, also a Bauman Ranch cow, Mabel 6 Twin.

In order to qualify for the Sterling or the Diamond Dam of Distinction Award, a cow must have calves either 5 calves by 7 years of age or 10 calves at 12 years of age, each calf having an adjusted 205 day weight ratio of 101 or greater.

In addition, the dam must have a regular calving cycle that averages one live calf every 365 days. Twin calves are counted as one calving and no ovum transplants are allowed.

Alcohol fuel co-op elects new officers

HARRISBURG — The production of alcohol as a farm fuel got a boost Monday when a Farmers Union cooperative in York County met to elect its officers for the coming year.

York County FUEL, as the cooperative is known, is the first farmer-owned and controlled cooperative formed in the state of Pennsylvania. The thirty original members and all those who will join in the future own the operation and share cooperative stock

The meeting was held at the York County Extension Office with the organizational meeting following a general meeting of the membership

In board organization matters, George Hoke, of Spring Grove, was elected president; Victor Hebel, of Stewartstown, was elected vice-president, and Marian Furman, of Dillsburg, was elected secretary The full board also selected Lewisberry resident, Doris Goodlander, as treasurer of FUEL Remaining board members are Albert Bentz, of Thomasville; Trond Grenager, of Lewisberry; and Frank Goodlander, of Lewisberry.

FUEL stands for Farmers Union Energy League, which filed its constitution and by-laws with the Pennsylvania Department of State several weeks ago. Monday's meeting was the last in a series of three necessary to meet state requirements

On February 19 a meeting of interested members voted to establish a fuel producing cooperative, on March 10 they met again to select temporary directors, and the formal April 7 meeting fulfilled necessary state requirements.

Committees for the selection of a plant site and for equipment evaluation will be named at the next board meeting These groups will report findings to the board for action

FUEL intends to develop a farm-related alcohol fuel enterprise for the benefit of farmer members. The group wants to demonstrate that on the farm plants and small cooperatives can make significant contributions to energy independence for America, similar to what is occurring in Brazil.

That nation several years ago decided to achieve a 100% alcohol fuel economy, and is well on the way to accomplishing that goal Alcohol is the fuel Henry Ford believed ideal for the motor car he developed. Cheap imported and domestic petroleum displaced alcohol however, but today's high crude oil prices are causing a re-examination of the distilled fuel - ethanol

The Farmers Union Energy League expects to develop information on engine modifications for using straight alcohol fuel The cooperative planning is now directed to a plant that will produce 160 to 190 proof alcohol, which, when used straight in modified gasoline engines, will eliminate foreign petroleum from the farm fuel picture. This application is different from the use of alcohol to produce gasohol. That product is 90 percent petroleum

FUEL President George Hoke said many of the members are concerned that gasoline and diesel fuel will become increasingly scarce for farm operations

"Planting, cultivation, and harvest operations don't allow much discretion of fuel use — you've got to have fuel to plant the seed to get a crop Alcohol fuel can be available because it will be domestically produced by our cooperative," Hoke said

Persons interested in the operations of the Fuel Cooperative should contact Vice-President Victor Hebel, R 2, Stewartstown, 17363

Curt Shreiner

ball myself, and many times I will fix my own meals and sometimes make enough for the rest of the family

"We practically eat in shifts around here so cooking has been with me for a while." Curt said that his family has really helped him out.

"My grandfather bought me a gas grill similar to the one we will use in the national contest and now cooking pork chops once a week is a regular thing for me I go through the whole bit so I can keep in practice.

"And everybody is so excited We all will be wearing the same red checked shirts at the contest. They are my fan club and cheering section.

"You must use the same recipe that you used at the first contest" stated Curt. The sauce in Curt's recipe is an old recipe from his grandparents which he slightly changed.

"Also my table setting, appearance, how neat or messy I am, and how my pork chops taste is what I will be judged on. "My cooking procedures and table setting actually are a lot of my total score.

"It has all been a really good experience for me I have met some really good people," said Curt. "The best thing I will get out of this experience is the experience itself Seeing those shriveled brown pork chops at the first contest and then winning. It has really been funny from the start, stated Curt

"Me not saying yes to the first contest. Then it raining at both contests. It would never happen that way again."

Asked if he felt he had a good chance at the national contest our 1979 PA Pork Cook Out King smiled and said "I will tell you when I get back "

The recipe Curt will use in the up-coming contest as well as some other favorites of the PA Pork Cook Out King are as follows:

CURRIED SMOKED PORK CHOPS

6 smoked pork chops (loin or rib) 1-inch thick
1 teaspoon curry powder
1 tablespoon King syrup
1 teaspoon brown sugar
3 apricots, whole or halves
1 medium sized onion, finely chopped (about ½ cup)
1 3-ounce can of mushrooms, drained and chopped
1 teaspoon butter
1 teaspoon water
dot of butter

Combine curry powder, syrup and brown sugar in a small bowl. Stir to make a smooth paste. Brush the chops with the curry mixture. Place chops on a grill 5 to 7 inches above the heat, broil 15 minutes.

During the remaining 45 minutes of broiling time, brush the chops with the curry mixture and turn them every 15 minutes.

In a small aluminum loaf pan, melt the butter and add mushrooms and onions. Saute until tender over the grill.

During the last 10 minutes of cooking, place the apricots, round side up in an aluminum pie pan, add the water and a dot of butter. Cover with another pie pan and place on the grill.

Remove the pork chops from the grill to platter and garnish each with an apricot half, round side up. Circle the chops with onions and mushrooms. Approximate cooking time is 1 hour. Serves 6.

CURRIED HAM STEAK

3 slices of ham (1 inch thick)
1 teaspoon curry powder
1 tablespoon King corn syrup
1 teaspoon brown sugar
1 teaspoon fruit juice or water

Combine curry powder, corn syrup, fruit juice and brown sugar in a small bowl. Brush on ham steaks every 15 minutes. Steaks should be placed on the grill 5 to 7 inches above the coals.

Ham steaks should be turned every 15 minutes and basted each time they are turned. Approximate cooking time is 1 hour.

A secret in doing pork on your grill is to cook it slowly and baste frequently. When you baste, use a very small amount, but frequently.

PORK BURGERS

1 pound ground pork Boston shoulder
1 medium onion, finely chopped
1 egg, beaten
garlic salt, salt and pepper (approximately ½ teaspoon each, depending on taste)
¼ cup Worcestershire sauce
2 teaspoons vinegar
¼ cup white sugar
1 cup catsup

Combine the ground pork, onion, egg, garlic salt, salt and pepper in a bowl. When well blended, shape into 4 patties about 1 inch thick. Place on grill 5 to 7 inches from the coals. Baste about every 15 minutes with the sauce.

Ag development specialist joins Delaware staff

NEWARK, Del. — Harry E. Brautigam, a specialist in agricultural development, has joined the research and teaching staff of the University of Delaware's College of Agricultural Sciences. He will be working out of the department of agricultural and food economics

According to Dean Donald F. Crossan, Brautigam will be helping the college develop agricultural programs in less developed countries such as Panama where there is a great need to improve food production practices.

A native of Nicaragua, Brautigam earned his undergraduate degree in business administration at the University of Guadalajara, Mexico. He holds a degree in economic development from the University of Manchester and a degree in agricultural economics from the University of Leeds in England. He has a PhD in agricultural economics from the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana.

His doctoral dissertation was based on the analysis of the Nicaraguan government's plan to open up a large, tropical zone in that country to agricultural development through colonization. The purpose of his study was to determine the degree of compatibility between development objectives for the region and the area's resources.

Harry E. Brautigam

His appointment is part of an overall University commitment to overseas teaching and research under the federally funded Title XII program, says Crossan. Universities around the U.S. have been asked by Congress to strengthen their overseas programs through funding provided by this program. Title XII focuses its efforts on the poorest of the poor in less developed countries. Three of its main target areas are agriculture, nutrition and human health.

With Brautigam's appointment, the University now has two Title XII positions, one in the College of Agricultural Sciences and the other in the College of Marine Studies. Eventually there may be positions in other colleges on campus. He considers Delaware's approach to international development unique in that here not just an individual or group of individuals, but the entire expertise within a college has been made available to support the program.

At present he is working on a proposal for a project which would provide for agricultural scientists from Delaware to help agronomists at the University of Panama do more effective field work. This project would help the inhabitants of a specific region in Panama increase their agricultural productivity by improving the varieties of crops they grow, as well as the techniques for raising them. It would also help them develop a better marketing procedure for these crops.

"We're starting with Panama," explains the economist, "because the state of Delaware has long had a very good relationship with that country through the Partners of the Americas program. So far the emphasis has been on cultural exchange. Now we intend to take this further into the area of educational exchange. We have a lot of experise here in the college. We aren't limiting ourselves geographically, but Panama is a good place to start because of this existing link."

Deer browsing of hardwoods makes tree planting risky

STONE VALLEY — If you've been thinking of planting hardwood seedling trees on old fields, or clearcut sites in Pennsylvania, save your money. Such plantings tend to become feed for deer, landowners have discovered. Almost total loss has been confirmed in experiments at Penn State.

"Such plantings will not be successful until inexpensive measures are found to protect hardwood seedlings from browsing by deer," declared Robert D. Shipman, professor of forest ecology at Penn State.

To evaluate the feeding preferences of deer, two-year-old seedlings of paper birch, white ash, yellow poplar, sugar maple, and red oak were planted in the Stone Valley Experimental Forest of Penn State. These hardwood species were set out among two-year-old oak and hicktory sprouts developing from stumps after clearcutting–a common natural source of regrowth.

As a protection from deer, one-half of the planted hardwoods were surrounded with small-mesh plastic tubes, eight inches in diameter and five inches high. Japanese larch, a confier species, was also planted and was left unprotected since earlier research showed this larch was not preferred by deer.

Six years after planting, only the rapidly-growing paper birch has produced a large number of trees that had grown at least 6 and one-half feet above the reach of deer.

The other hardwood species managed to survive deer browsing, Shipman said, but grew slowly as most hardwoods do–with their tops still within reach of deer. Thus, the remaining white ash, yellow poplar, sugar maple, and red oak will undergo repeated deer browsing for another seven to eight years, he pointed out.

A current experiment is attempting to supply adequate natural sprouts from clearcuttings to discourage or divert deer from browsing planted hardwoods. Nursery-grown hardwood seedlings were planted in a test clearcutting six years ago when the land was cleared.

"It's still too early to see what has happened," Shipman stated. "For this technique to be successful, at least 250 hardwoods should survive above the reach of deer in each acre of clearcutting."

Shipman and associates are seeking answers to several questions. Are planted hardwoods, fertilized in a nursery, preferred by deer over natural hardwood sprouts from stumps?

Can planted hardwoods grow more rapidly beyond the reach of deer on good sites than on poor sites?

What is the loss in height growth of planted, unprotected seedlings?

To what extent are deer browsing on grasses, sedges, and other non-woody plants instead of three seedlings?

Working currently on the problem of deer damage to hardwoods is Joseph Stringfellow of Carlisle, graduate students in forest ecology. Stringfellow is studying feed preferences of deer on protected and unprotected planted hardwoods.

Many experiments have been carried out to solve the tree regeneration and deer problem in Pennsylvania, Shipman reported. Researchers have tried chemical repellents of many kinds--some sprayed directly on seedlings or by placing granular repellents near seedling trees to discourage deer from browsing.

Nitrogen fertilizers have been applied to black cherry seedlings to stimulate rapid height growth. Current experiments are evaluating fences of various types and wire or plastic mesh as cages around individual seedlings.

The combined cooperative efforts of private, state, federal, and industry forestry and wildlife organizations will be needed to find ways of bringing the deer herd into better balance with its constantly changing habitat, Shipman affirmed.

Brief answers to short questions

Sheila's Shorts

By Sheila Miller

Instant weather, flip a switch

A reader wrote to Lancaster Farming and asked "What are the stations in Pennsylvania for the instant weather stations?" She had recently received an instant weather radio as a gift.

Not owning an instant weather radio myself, I wasn't quite sure who could help me with the needed information.

Luckily, Barry Walton of the Millersville State College Weather Service, was able to lend me a helping hand.

He explained that the instant weather radios were actually referred to as a four-letter word – NOAA – pronounced as in Noah, the person who heard the original weather forecast and built an ark.

Walton said the broadcast on the instant weather stations run 24 hours a day. The forecasts are changed three to four times each day, depending on the weather.

The broadcasts give listeners the local forecast for weather during the next 24, 36, and 48 hours, along with a 5-day forecast. Travelers weather conditions are reviewed as far west as Chicago, and up into New Holland.

The amount of sky cover and the temperatures are given for the surrounding areas of the broadcast station.

Walton said the NOAA's are extremely useful for keeping track of special weather statements, like severe thunderstorm watches.

Most NOAA's, like Walton's radio, come equipped with a 3-frequency switch. "You have to keep switching the dial until you hear something," he said.

If you want to try to tune into a particular station, here are the station numbers for Pennsylvania, along with two in Maryland.

|---|---|
| Harrisburg | 162.55 mhz |
| Philadelphia | 162.55 mhz |
| Allentown | 162.5 mhz |
| Wilkes-Barre | 162.45 mhz |
| Williamsport | 162.5 mhz |
| Pittsburgh | 162.5 mhz |
| Erie | 162.5 mhz |
| Baltimore | 162.45 mhz |
| Hagerstown | 162.5 mhz |

The entire band of instant weather stations fall between 162.45 and 162.55. Depending on your location, your station may be overshadowed by another with the same broadcast frequency.

TRACTOR SAFETY HINT

One passenger is too many

Tractors are designed with only one seat. They are designed for operation by one person. Carrying a passenger is dangerous because he or she may fall off and be run over. Passengers also distract the operator and may cause accidents. Tractor manufacturers and safety experts recommend that tractors be operated by one person only.

Berks Conservation District honors top cooperators

BY LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Staff Correspondent

KUTZTOWN — The Berks County Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service and Berks County Conservation District presented awards to outstanding conservationists Friday evening, during their annual conservation banquet.

Held at the Kutztown Grange Hall, on April 11th, the event was well attended by approximately 275 people. Highlighting the affair was guest speaker Patrick Lantz, Division of Forestry Advisory Services, Bureau of Forestry.

Lantz briefly traced the history of forests in Pennsylvania and commented on their future. Once majestically dominating the state, the forests were almost wiped out by the late 1890's during the industrial revolution, the speaker related. At that time Pennsylvania was highest in wood production in the country.

The remaining forest land was also hurt by the World Wars, Lantz continued. It was virtually unmanaged up until that time.

Today the forests are again being looked on as a possible alternative to energy, but is fuel the best use for the forests? Lantz questioned.

Wood used for construction is more energy efficient than fuel wood, he stated.

"The multiple use concept for our forests is a real thing," the speaker said. Fuel wood should be obtained from misshapen, dead, or otherwise poor construction lumber, the audience was told.

The Eastern United States, including Berks County, has mostly hardwoods, Lantz explained to the audience, and demand for these trees will triple in the next ten years.

Presented with District Awards for outstanding conservation were the following: Jan Spirat, teacher, Fleetwood Middle School - Outstanding Conservation Educator; Joseph Leiendecker, Reading - Outstanding Conservationist; Bruce and David Younker, Bethel - Outstanding Forestry Managment; and Donald E. Landis, Myerstown - Outstanding Cooperator.

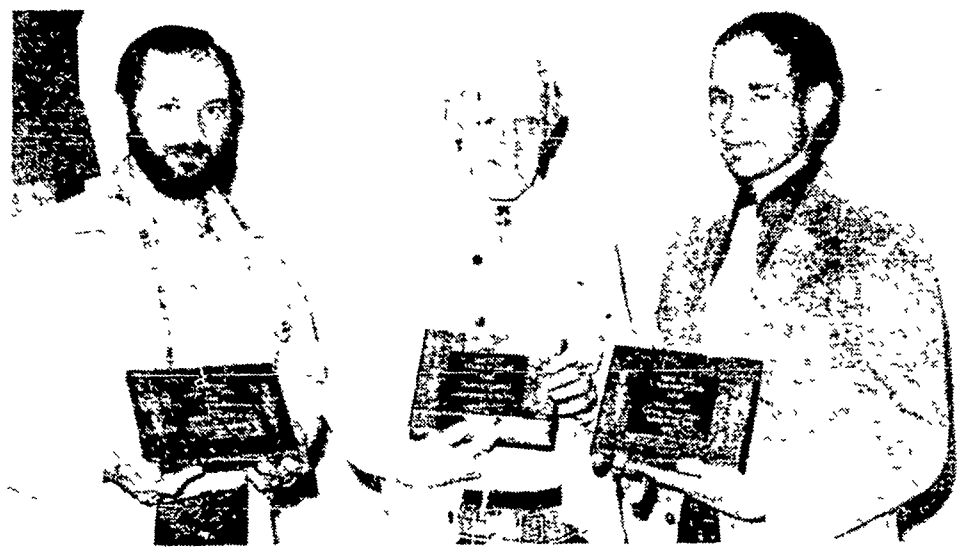
Ralph Spencer, and Wilson Rohrbach were awarded for twenty years of service to the ASCS, while Ernest Epting received an award for ten years of service.

Paul Keeney, Rehrersburg; Richard Aherne, Bernville; Thomas DeLong, Sinking Spring; and Red Wing Farms, Fleetwood, were presented with Conservation signs.

Mary Ann Rimby, Chairman of BCCD remarked on the past activities of the conservation district. This year a total of 116,000 evergreens were sold which is the highest record attained by the county and also highest for the State. Trees are avialable for pickup April 25 and 26, at the County Agricultural Center.

Rimby also noted that the district had 15,000 state game lands maps printed and distributed among sportsmans clubs.

Entertainment included a fashion show sponsored by F.M. Brown's Tack Shop, Sinking Spring. Models included the M.C., Jack Gounder and several employees from the Agricultural Center.



David Younker, of Bethel, left, was cited for outstanding forestry management; Joe Leiendecker, Reading, was named outstanding conservationist; and Jan Spirat, a teacher at Fleetwood Middle School, was named outstanding conservation educator at the Berks County Conservation meeting.

Donald Landis, Myerstown, was named outstanding cooperator at the Berks County Conservation Banquet.

USDA proposes termination of beekeepers indemnity

WASHINGTON, D C — Beekeepers whose bees are killed by insecticides approved for use by the government would no longer be eligible for federal indemnity payments under a proposal made last Friday by the U S Department of Agriculture.

The USDA proposal would become effective May 15, according to John Goodwin, associate administrator of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, the agency which oversees the program.

Legislation authorizing the program was passed in 1970 after beekeepers in the cotton-growing areas of Arizona and California reported heavy bee kills due to an extensive spray program to control the pink bollworm, said Goodwin

As of Sept. 30, 1979, $34.0 million had been paid to beekeepers in 48 states. Of this total, $18.76 million was paid out in the last five years.

The proposal was published in the April 8 Federal Register, Goodwin said

All comments on the proposal should be sent to Bob Cook, ASCS-EIPD, USDA, Box 2415, Washington, D.C 20013 They must be received before April 29

Townships may lose revenue sharing funds

HARRISBURG — If passed by Congress, President Carter's Revenue Sharing proposal could wreak financial havoc for Pennsylvania's townships.

Under Carter's proposal, revenue sharing entitlements to Pennsylvania townships would be cut by 7.7 percent, or $3 3 million. At the same time, funding to Philadelphia would increase by 20 percent, or $10 million — an increase at the expense of the state's townships.

Besides reducing Pennsylvania townships' share of funding, Carter's proposal does not take into account the 40 percent inflation rate which has undercut the value of Revenue Sharing since the program began in 1972 Carter's proposal would reauthorize General Revenue Sharing at its current funding level of $6.9 billion a year.

B. Kenneth Greider, executive director of the Pennsylvania State Association of Township Supervisors, Camp Hill, said it is "grossly unfair to force townships to shoulder most of the financial burden inherent in the Administration's program. The financial struggles of small communities don't always make the front pages of the newspaper, but they are just as critical - and sometimes more critical — than the difficulties faced by large cities Townships need their full share of General Revenue Sharing payments."

With inflation and local tax limitations eroding their ability to maintain basic public services, townships have come to depend rather heavily on the General Revenue Sharing program.

"General Revenue Sharing has been an extremely valuable source of aid to townships and, in many instances, has kept important programs going," said Greider. "During the last eight years, General Revenue Sharing has given township officials the flexibility they need to meet many locally determined needs."

If Carter's proposal to cut revenue sharing payments to Pennsylvania townships is approved by Congress, the impact on township services would be severe Services that would suffer if funding were cut include police, fire and ambulance, road construction and maintenance, public transit, waste disposal and senior citizen programs

Without revenue sharing funds, townships will have to increase taxes if these and other services are to continue at their present level

The Pennsylvania State Association of Township Supervisors supports renewal of the revenue sharing program as the General Revenue Sharing law now exists. Greider stressed that General Revenue Sharing is the one program which builds in at least some measure of equity at the federal level for townships.

"Most other national programs bypass townships largely because townships cannot afford the grantsmanship staff needed to pursue such aid," he said. "Revenue sharing, which is distributed with a minimum of red tape, has been the exception.

"We feel that if a program has been working well — and the overwhelming consensus is that revenue sharing has been — then it should be continued," said Greider. "If Congress believed that the concept of General Revenue Sharing was right in 1972 and 1976, then it is even more so today."

The Pennsylvania State Association of Township Supervisors has been joined in its support for revenue sharing reauthorization by the National Association of Towns and Townships, Washington, D.C., which represents the interests of local government officials serving over 13,000 predominantly small communities across the nation

Farmers meet shattercane: toughest weed since Johnsongrass

CHURCHVILLE, Md. — Shattercane is "every bit as bad as johnsongrass and it may be worse," says Lynn Warman, agricultural extension agent, Harford County, Md.

"We've spotted shattercane in almost every community in the county," Warman adds, "and I know it's been reported in neighboring counties, too. The weed is nothing but trouble," Shattercane has also been reported in southeastern Pennsylvania.

Lawrason Sayre of Churchville, Harford County, Md., is one farmer who has experienced shattercane. His first encounter came eight years ago when he rented a 100-acre tract of land from a dairyman who previously planted a soybean-sorghum mixture for silage.

"We planted corn on that acreage," Sayre recalls. "By the end of the season, all of these tall weeds with large seed heads were showing up in the field.

"I didn't know what the weed was at the time, but I could tell by looking at it that it was in the sorghum family." Sayre had used straight atrazine that year for weed control.

Farmers might find a week "worse than johnsongrass" hard to fathom. But increasing reports of shattercane--a weedy sorghum related to johnsongrass--have caused extension personnel to be concerned about this relatively new crop competitor.

The weed is a menance to row crops, particularly in warm, fine-textured soils, and in corn since farmers tend to use high doses of nitrogen fertilizer.

Shattercane is especially common in fields once planted to sorghum. No one has been able to pinpoint the weed's exact origin, but Warman and other agronomists speculate that shattercane is the result of natural cross pollination between different sorghum varieties.

"Ten to 15 years ago," Warman says, "it was very common for farmers in this area to plant sorghum with soybeans or corn for silage."

Shattercane, sometimes called wild cane, resembles cultivated sorghum during most stages of development. The plant's height ranges from three to 12 feet, depending on heredity, growing conditions, fertility and soil type.

Like johnsongrass, the towering weed competes with crops for sunlight, moisture and soil nutrients.

If left uncontrolled, a heavy infestation can cause total crop failure, particularly during seasons with limited moisture.

The main difference between shattercane and johnsongrass is that shattercane only reproduces from seed, not rhizomes like its infamous counterpart.

"That's why shattercane is so hard to control in row crops," Warman says. "Over the years we've learned to bring johnsongrass to its knees by using a combination of crop rotation, tillage, preplant herbicides like Eradicane, and spot spraying Roundup.

Lawrason Sayre, Churchville, Md., examines the panicle of a dried shattercane plant. He's one of a number of farmers in Southeastern Pennsylvania and Maryland to find fields infested with shattercane, a weed as difficult to control as Johnsongrass.

Shattercane

"There are several ways to control johnsongrass, but the only way to control shattercane is to prevent it from going to seed."

The enormous panicle of the shattercane plant contains up to 1000 seeds. Like cultivated sorghum, the density of the panicle depends on the individual plant's heredity. Some shattercane panicles are compact; others are loose and open. According to Warman, most of the shattercane in Harford County has a compact panicle.

The glume, or outer husk, that encloses each seed "shatters" upon maturity. Research in the southern Corn Belt--where shattercane is well-established--has shown that a field with one shattercane plant this year may have 100 plants by next year.

What's worse, shattercane seed can remain dormant in the soil for up to 12 years or longer, making infestation levels virtually unpredictable.

In addition, the weight of the panicle frequently causes tall shattercane plants to lodge. This often leads to clogged combines, a slower harvest and, of course, increased harvesting costs.

Since farm machinery--especially chisel plows and harvesting equipment--can spread shattercane seed to uninfested areas, farmers should always clean equipment throughly before moving to an uninfested field.

"Over the past 10 years," Warman says, "there's been a tremendous increase in the amount of corn harvested by custom combines. These combines have helped to spread shattercane seed from one farm to another. Migrating geese may have also helped to spread the seed."

Research in the Midwest has shown that shattercane seed will still be viable after passing through a silo or digestive track on an animal.

Farmers should avoid pasturing clean fields with livestock that have had access to contaminated silage or shattercane plants with seed. Do not use manure for fertilizer

Farmers who spot a few shattercane plants should cut off the panicles and carefully remove them from the field. If shattercane is beyond the hand-pulling stage, chemical or cultural controls will be needed.

Warman says crop rotation is the best way to control shattercane. Fields planted to small grains and hay will eventually crowd out most of the shattercane. Plants that do emerge will usually be cut before panicles develop, though crop quality will be lower due to the presence of the shattercane forage.

Since shattercane is not as widespread as other troublesome weeds, the University of Maryland and Penn State University have not yet developed an official shattercane control program for corn.

If corn must be planted on shattercane-infested land, Warman recommends delaying planting and incorporating a six-pound rate of Eradicane, a preplant herbicide. Sutan+ will also provide some control when used at the maximum rate.

Warman's herbicide recommendations are based on observations from local field trials and performance in the Midwest. Either herbicide should be tank mixed with atrazine or Bladex for broad spectrum weed control.

"Eradicane does a great job controlling shattercane," Warman says, "but unfortunately, it 'runs of gas' after four or five weeks. The shattercane that germinates after the Fourth of July will still have plenty of time to produce seed before harvest."

Farmers should keep in mind, though, that if not for the preplant application of Eradicane, they may not be able to establish a good stand of corn in a shattercane-infested field.

A shallow cultivation or furrowing will provide some mid-season shattercane control in corn. But since the weed emerges all season long, many shattercane plants will still escape after the crop is too tall for tillage.

"Corn growers can spot spray shattercane before it goes to seed with a foliar herbicide like Roundup," Warman says. "But Roundup will not have the same effect on shattercane as it does on johnsongrass."

Roundup works systemically on johnsongrass plants to kill underground rhizomes. Shattercane only reproduces from seed, making spot spraying less effective. Warman says Dowpon and paraquat can also be used to kill shattercane plants before they go to seed Farmers should check their herbicide's label for specific application instructions.

Unfortunately, Sayre could not confine the wild sorghum to the rented land he farms. Knowing a corn picker would help to spread the seed, Sayre cut the corn for silage.

"We were desperate," he says. "I thought I would stand a better chance confining the weed if I put it in the trench silo. That turned out to be a mistake."

The contaminated silage was fed to the cattle and manure was spread the following year for fertilizer. Before too long Sayre had shattercane all over his farm.

Two year later Sayre started working with University of Maryland agronomists and technical field representatives from Stauffer Chemical Company to control shattercane in corn. Over the years they have put out several test plots, using various herbicide rates and tank mixes and cultural practices to control the weed.

Sayre, who used to grow 120 to 125 acres of corn a year, has since put half of his corn acreage into hay and pasture to help control shattercane. He still grows corn on 60 acres, using high rates of Eradicane or Sutan+ with atrazine and/or Bladex to suppress the aggressive weed.

Sayre will continue working with specialists this year. Part of his corn acreage will be used to test the effectiveness of various chemical and cultural control programs.

Farmers who think they have shattercane in their fields should consult their extension service for positive identification and specific control recommendations.

YOU'VE HEARD THE TALK.

There's a better way to dry grain. It's called CHILLCURING™ because it means CURING without heat Here's what the talk is all about.

THE GRAIN

Every kernel of grain is alive when it comes out of the field It is a seed, able to grow because it has the ability to take on moisture Likewise, it can be kept in a state of preservation by removing the moisture already in it

But by heating the grain to dry it, the seed life is destroyed

By removing heat and moisture from the grain, it becomes dormant, and stays alive Then it can ripen to full weight, losing only water while keeping valuable protein, starches and sugar

THE SYSTEM

It's simple Grain goes from the field right to the bin With the unique AIRFRAME " and AIRFLOOR " the grain rests on a solid bed that allows maximum ventilation

Clean dry air is the best curing medium for the grain GRAINLAMPS " provide electric sunshine, cleaning and drying the air beneath the floor, before it passes through the grain

Fans force air under the floor Rising through the grain, this dry outside air carries away moisture and heat

At the peak of the bin a jumbo 40" turbine, the WHIRLCOOLER ", puts nature to work for you Wind and rising air keeps it turning, venting the system naturally

A special HARVESTAT " Control System monitors the curing process A simple setting controls the GRAINLAMPS " to make use of free, natural air

Cumberland Valley Eastern members talk leucocytes, re-elect officers

BY RUTH ANN BENEDICT
Staff Correspondent

FAYETTEVILLE — One hundred Franklin and Cumberland County dairy farmers and families turned out for the Cumberland Valley Local Annual Meeting of Eastern Milk Producers Association Inc., held at the Fayetteville Fire Hall here last Tuesday.

William Reasner, fieldman for Cumberland Valley Local, along with his wife Betty, spoke and presented a program on high leucocyte counts - prevention, causes and cures - while also showing slides on Standard Plate Counts - how plate counts are tested and read.

Reasner stated that some possible causes for high leucocyte counts are - mastitis; udder injury; colostrum milk; late lactation cows; and diseased cows.

He went on to say that these problems can be prevented or corrected by adopting good milking procedures and good sanitation programs.

He advised that when a high leucocyte count becomes a problem, the dairyman should: check the quarter of each cow with a strip cup or CMT test kit; remove positive cows from milking line; not allow milk to remain on cows after the udder is voided; discard milk from cows drying off on those recently fresh; and have a veterinarian diagnose the bacterial infection in the cow or cows and use the medication he prescribes to treat the infection (mastitis).

"If high leucocyte problems still persist after you have taken corrective measures, you may have improperly operating milking equipment and you should call in your equipment service fieldman.

"These problems should be corrected quickly, prevented when possible, because we all lose when we receive a contaminated load of milk.

"A farmer with a high leucocyte count can increase his income by 25 percent by producing milk with levels of 500,000 or less and that is well worth the effort," stated Reasner.

Reasner's wife, Betty, explained the testing of the Standard Plate Count through slides.

She also presented slides on three types of bacteria caused by different types of contamination and described the Direct Microscopic Count which is done at the laboratory to check milk loads for high bacterial counts.

Cumberland Valley Local President J. Wilbur Burkholder presented awards given by Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative to Carol Mummert, Chambersburg; and Timothy Smith, R5 Shippensburg.

The awards are presented yearly to an outstanding first-year 4-H member from both Franklin and Cumberland Counties. These winners are selected by the Extension Service on project work.

Carol is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Mummert and Timothy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Galen Smith.

Eastern Milk Producers Blue and Gold Awards were presented by George Stambaugh, district director, to the 1979 Cumberland Valley Local officers J. Wilbur Burkholder, Chambersburg - president; Ronald Helman, Chambersburg - vice-president; Raymond C. Shoemaker, Chambersburg - secretary; Richard Harshman, Greencastle - treasurer; Robert Helman, Jr., Chambersburg - delegate; and Stanley Burkholder, Chambersburg - alternate delegate.

During the business meeting all the 1979 Cumberland Valley Local officers were re-elected to the 1980 term of office.

Reports were presented to the group by J. Wilbur Burkholder, president's report; Richard Harshman, treasurer's report; George Stambaugh, district director's report; and Robert Helman Jr., delegate's report.

In special attendance were Franklin County Dairy Princess Carolyn Meyers and Cumberland County Dairy Princess Karen Hornbaker.

USDA to change rules on egg inspection

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Effective May 8, egg processing plants closed for more than 90 days because of managerial, financial or marketing problems may lose approval for mandatory inspection service by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

To resume operations, the plant must reapply to USDA to qualify for inspection — a prerequisite to processing, according to Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman.

Regulations have required USDA inspectors to periodically visit non-operating plants, unless plant officials requested USDA-approval be withdrawn.

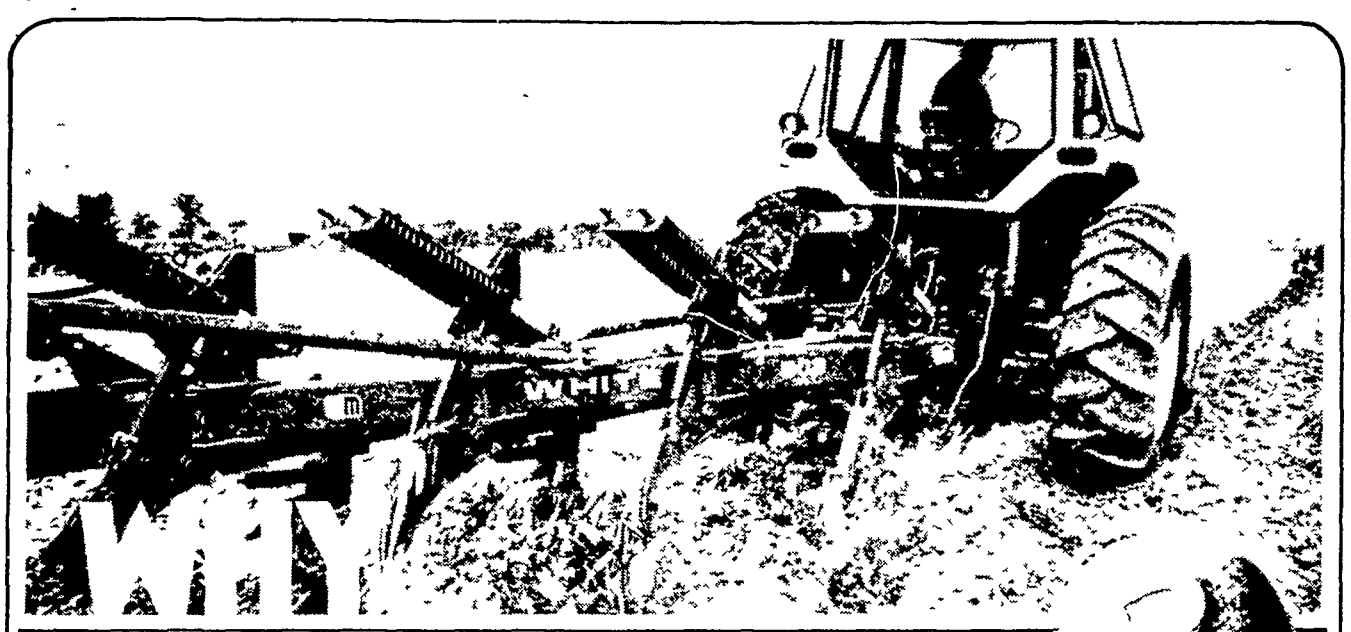
The changes will cut down on unnecessary plant visits, Foreman said. They will not apply to seasonal operations or to plants closed because of extraordinary circumstances such as fire or flood.

Other changes in the regulations include providing an alternate method for refuse disposal in egg products plants and the exclusion of "drums" as acceptable holding receptacles for liquid eggs, Foreman said.

To insure the wholesomeness of safety of egg products, USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service conducts mandatory continuous inspection of all egg products processing operations, under authority of the Egg Products Inspection Act.

The amended regulations were proposed Aug. 10, and four comments were received. None of the comments took issue with the substance of the changes, Foreman said.

The final regulations were published in the April 8 Federal Register, available at local libraries.



UNIPEL® 20-10-10
is a good fertilizer for Spring plowdown:

If it's ideal for Fall plowdown, (and it is!) you know it has to be good for Spring plowdown, too

Half of its high Nitrogen component is nitrate Nitrogen Goes to work immediately to help decompose plant residues to release their nutrients and provides a quick growth "kick" for early-planted crops in cool soils — such as corn and oats

The other half of its Nitrogen is long-lasting Becomes available as the soil warms up in Spring Then goes to work feeding plants continually through the growing season

There's also quick-acting and long-lasting Phosphorus to team with Nitrogen and readily-available Potassium to help establish good plant root growth and feed plants all-season long for good stalk and leaf growth That chemical combination of N and P also helps increase Phosphate uptake and enhance fertilizer efficiency

In a sentence, you've got a lot going for you with just one Spring plowdown application of UNIPEL 20-10-10 Let's discuss how we can start the program soon

Reports were given on Easter egg painting for the Jefferson Easter Egg Hunt, the bake sale which was held at the Hanover Market and the 4-H auction at the 4-H Center in Bair.

Tree Planting at the J.E. Baker Company in York, where 50 York 4-H members planted 5,000 evergreen seedlings at various locations around the Quarry was discussed.

The club discussed their flower blub sale, and participation in the 4-H Expo which will be held on April 25 and 26 at the Delco Plaza in York. The club will have a Petting Zoo at the Jefferson Health Fair, May 3.

Members were encouraged to participate in the County Demonstration Day to be held May 14, at the 4-H Center. At this event, members may either give a demonstration or a speech in order to try to win a trip to Penn State for the 4-H State Days Competition.

Blue Forms are due May 16 in order to be eligible for a National Award. The Jefferson Club has the 4-H News Reporter assignment for the month of May.

The program for the evening was a presentation on meats identification and judging which was given by three of the four members of last year's state winning team. The members were Jon Miller, Robert Livingston, and Bill Wise. Unable to attend was LeRoy Bowles, the other member of the team.

The team presented slides of retail cuts and carcasses of the three species-beef, sheep, and swine. They team discussed how to give reasons, what judging involves, and what you can get out of it.

The next meeting will be held May 13 at 7:30 p.m. also at the Fire Hall. The program for this meeting will be a conservation film by Mr. Lecrone, and demonstrations and public speeches by club members.

Soprano soloist Jean Bluder entertained during the afternoon session with a program of vocal music and piano accompaniment.

Speaker for the program was York County farm wife Joyce Bupp. Her presentation traced the farmer's contribution to the American economy, his varied and versatile roles as steward of the soil, scientist and businessman, and the changing role of the farm woman today.

Special guests included representatives of Lebanon, York, Cumberland, Dauphin, Franklin, Somerset and Montgomery Farm Women societies.

Women to hold their annual convention recently. About one hundred members and guests attended the day-long program of business, entertainment and fellowship, highlighed by the election and installation of new county officers.

Jean Yarnall, Oxford R1, will head the Chester County organization as president. Her vice-president is Lu Girvir of Oxford. Outgoing president Ethel Walker, Nottingham, was chosen to fill the office of secretary; and Lenore Binkley, Oxford R1, was re-elected as the treasurer.

State Farm Women president Helen Hess, Lancaster County, gave a brief report on upcoming state activities and presided over the installation of the new officers. She noted that it was her first appearance at this year's slate of county conventions wearing the newly-designed president's jewelry. # Lebanon Co. seeks farm land preservation input

BY SHEILA MILLER

LEBANON — When a public meeting is scheduled in competiton with Friday evening shopping, movies, and going out to dinner, the fact that the auditorium in the Lebanon County Municipal Building was not filled to over-flowing is not surprising.

But, in a county where agriculture plays an important role, it was surprising when less than 50 people turned out for an open discussion on how to preserve farm land.

The meeting, which was designed to gather public input on how to keep the agricultural land in Lebanon County from being buried under asphalt and shingles, was sponsored by the Lebanon County Farmers Association, the Lebanon County Conservation District, and the Extension Service.

County Commissioner Ed Arnold stressed that the purpose of the meeting was to gather the opinions and ideas of farmers on how best to tackle a complex problem. He added the suggestions from groups such as builders and realtors would also be welcome

But, few of the citizens attending the meeting had many comments.

In part, this may be due to the fact the panel of five speakers, in their lengthy discussions, may have answered the questions in their minds

Earl Meyer, the assistant director of the Lebanon County Planning Department, stated the concern for farm land preservation was well founded.

He explained the current community plans developed by the County were based on the core-growth principle—that is, they focus on population concentrations.

The present-day zoning defines high density residential areas around existing populated areas These areas are planned for sewerage and water.

Outside of the high-density areas are the suburbs, or low-density residential areas. These are defined as areas of expected expansion within the next 20 years.

Also around the high population density areas are the commercial and industrial areas, located close to highways, railroads, and existing business areas.

Meyer pointed out that everything that doesn't fit into any of these categories is thrown into agricultural zoning, receiving the last and least attention.

He added the planning commission is looking at six alternative methods for helping to preserve Lebanon County's farmland.

First, he said, is differential assessment, where the land would be taxed based on its current use rather than its market value.

Secondly, the purchase and lease back alternative would allow the government to buy the farm from the land owner, and then turn around and lease it back to the farmer.

Meyer discussed the next two alternatives as being similar. The purchase of development rights would allow the farmer to maintain the ownership of the land, but would restrict the land use for future sales. In this case, the purchase would be made by a unit of government, either local, county, or state.

Transferring development rights, Meyer explained, would allow a developer to buy the development rights from a farmer in an agricultural zone and transfer the right to a higher density area. The purchase would be a floating market, Meyer added.

The last two alternatives Meyer mentioned were agricultural districts and agricultural zoning. The difference between the two, he said, are one's voluntary and the other is mandatory.

Ag districts provide a tax incentive to the land owner to keep the farm for agriculture. Farmers in a particular area could band together to protect their farming rights, he said.

Ag zoning helps to preserve farm land, Meyer noted, by requiring large lot zoning in agricultural areas. "Where the minimum lot size is 2 to 5 acres, people are financially discouraged from developing the most productive soil."

Meyer added the planning commission will be reviewing these alternatives over the next 6 months. This period of time, he stated, is the information gathering time which he said he feels is important.

Chris Allen, legislative analyst for the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, told the group the 1975 policy on land use adopted by the PFA members called for voluntary farm land preservation where farmers would get compensation throught the purchase of development rights.

"We want to preserve farmland not just prime soils-if they're not being used in productive farming," Allen concluded.

Dave Schreffler, of the Millcreek Township Planning Commission, gave the group a local example of farmland preservation that's working.

He explained that the township realized their agricultural resources were valuable and needed to be preserved.

Based on the farm's soil types, present land use, closeness to other farms, size of the farm, and the direction of development pressures in the area, the township developed agricultural districts.

Screffler noted the size of the farm is looked at for the purpose of determining whether it would be an economically feasible farm. Local farmers established a minimum size of 50 acres, in contrast to the state's minimum of 116 acres.

The township developed an agricultural advisory board made up of three farmers, and a representative from either the Soil and Water Conservation District or the Extension agent, along with one supervisor and one member of the planning and zoning board for the township.

The Agricultural Industry District in Millcreek Township is defined as being "comprised primarily of existing agricultural areas of the township and those areas where environmental conditions are most conducive to agricultural pursuits

"Agriculture shall be viewed as a specialized form of industry with unique needs such as large land area. It is a land use characterized by the production through biological and botanical processes of saleable commodities as a result of the conjunction of raw materials (soils, seeds, plants, water, fertilizer), manpower (labor and machinery), and energy (solar and other) to produce marketable products the sale of which supports diversified local economy of the Township.

"It is the purpose of this district to protect and stabilize this economic activity by preserving prime farm land, a prime resource not readily reclaimed, to maintain and protect the recharging and quality of ground water vulnerable to pollution because of subsurface limestone formations, and to provide aesthetic relief from urban development and open space for the recreation and refreshment of the citizens."

Development is prohibited in ag districts except for the building of homes for the farmers family. These homes would be built on nonprime farm land after the farmer has filed an appeal with the township advisory board.

"Ag districts encourage the farming business," concluded Schreffler, "by reducing the zoning restrictions, such as set back distances for buildings, and giving the farmer fewer hassles."

Development is prohibited in ag districts except for the building of homes for the farmers family. These homes would be built on nonprime farm land after the farmer has filed an appeal with the township advisory board.

"Ag districts encourage the farming business," concluded Schreffler, "by reducing the zoning restrictions, such as set back distances for buildings, and giving the farmer fewer hassles."

Dan Cook, a farmer and director of the Pa. Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Planning, Research, and Economic Development, refreshed the group's memories on the state legislation that has been passed to help save farm land.

The Clean and Green Law, Act 319, recently amended by Act 725; House Bill 1778, restricting foreign ownership, Senate Bill 756, exempting ag co-ops from certified audits; Senate Bill 276, setting up an agriculture review board for any ag land condemnation, and Senate Bill 1011, reducing the permit fee to $25 for an ethanol still

Cook said he understood the plight of the farmer He said farmers begin to lose political control when the township begins to urbanize

"What brought the people to the country are the things they try to move out after they elect their own representatives to the local government."

Summing up the information program, Amos Funk, chairman of the Lancaster County Agricultural Preservation Board, told what is being done to save 278,000 acres of farm land in that county.

"Land is an important nonrenewable resource that should be used wisely," Funk stated. "But, it won't be preserved unless the farmers on the land want to keep it that way. And right now, I'm not sure many of them do."

Funk told the group that nine townships in Lancaster County have agricultural districts. "The farmers go along with the districts because they feel the zoning can always be changed—but the deed restriction idea is permanent."

He added the deed restriction plan is as voluntary as it can be and still be effective. The farmers are given the chance to voice their opinions at public hearings before the township adopts the deed restriction policy.

Funk predicted that in 5 to 10 years the price of the farm land in the preserve areas will be sold for a higher price than farm land outside of the preserve. "The farms in the preserve will be assured the ability to farm."

This argument disputes the claims of many farmers, Funk said, who feel the deed restriction will lower the value of their farm because they won't be able to sell it for development.

With all of the information and comments to digest, the Lebanon County Planning Commission has its work cut out during the next six months.

However, they are still looking for ideas and opinions from farmers in their county, and Commissioner Arnold said he encouraged public input in developing the farm land preservation program.

Use Ridomil® 2E fungicide for control of blue mold

What is Ridomil

Ridomil is a new type of soil applied systemic fungicide that effectively controls two major tobacco diseases black shank and blue mold

Ridomil is taken up by the roots and provides systemic action, destroying the disease causing fungi both in the plant and in the soil

Ridomil is registered for the control of black shank on flue cured tobacco and blue mold on all types of tobacco

How Ridomil works

Ridomil is absorbed through the plant's roots and moves with the plant sap throughout the plant

Translocation from the soil through the roots to all parts of the plant is more rapid than by leaf absorption It is for this reason that soil treatment is recommended

Signs of Life

Taking the biggest jump in 16 months the Minnesota-Wisconsin price, adjusted to 3.5 percent butterfat, leaped 24 cents to $11.59 in March.

After gaining only ten cents in five months from October to February, the 24 cent increase in one month could only be credited to the anticipated 85 cent increase in the support price to come after April 1. So, what might have appeared to be signs of life in the market were only the dealers hurrying to buy milk for manufacturing at prices a little higher than the last five months - before they have to start buying it for a lot more when the new support price starts to take effect.

This was also born out by the fact that butter, powder and cheese prices, on the average, didn't change that much in March But, if the products could be sold for the new support prices in April, than the March milk price was a bargain.

So, in the process, you got a 24 cent boost in your Basic Formula Price the likes of which you haven't seen in nearly a year and a half. However, it's still 61 cents away from the full increase and that's going to be a lot harder to come by this Spring.

With butter manufacturing up 19 million pounds over the first three months of last year, cheese up 43 million and powder up 60 million pounds, the dairy product cupboard isn't exactly bare. In fact it's far from it.

In addition, cheese has lost some of its earlier demand with lower meat prices. And butter sales are off taking a back seat to the low priced spread by penny pinching consumers. Your increasing milk production will also compound the problem.

There's going to be a lot of dead weight to lift to get milk prices up to the support level by government purchases. And it's going to take several months to do it.

Leaps and Bounds

Even that 24 cent jump in the Basic Formula Price from Minnesota and Wisconsin wasn't enough to help your blend price in Order 2 for March as you continued, for the fourth consecutive month, increasing milk production by leaps and bounds.

This time it was a record leap of 4.6 per cent over February (corrected for 28 days) after bounds of 2.5 percent last month and four percent each month for January and December over the previous month.

You are now up to 922 million pounds for March in Order 2. That's the highest production for the month since 1966 — 14 years ago — when we were setting national records in milk production.

In fact, there were only three months in the last six years that you had higher production in Order 2. Thank goodness your Class I sales are hanging in there around 13 million pounds a day.

But with your leaping and bounding production, Class I utilization dropped to 43.3 per cent. That's 2.5 per cent lower than February and the worst March in 25 years, except last year during the Teamsters' Union strike in New York City.

We haven't seen a billion-pounds of milk a month since May 1970. But with two months more to go, I'll bet you will do it this year.

Bottom Line

So, where did all this leave you?

Take a Class II price in March of $11.54 that was 17 cents better than February and a Class I price of $13.62 that was only three cents better. Add a Class I utilization 2.5 per cent less and a 20 cent take out for the Louisville Plan. Put them all together and they make $12.08 the uniform price in Order 2 for March milk.

Telling it quickly doesn't help to ease the pain of a price that's 16 cents less than last month and only 95 cents better than last year. But that's about what you can expect for the next few months.

Even increasing Class prices propped up by price supports may not be able to make up for 30 and 40 cent Louisville Plan take outs over the next three months along with declining Class I utilization due to increasing production.

Much depends on how fast the Basic Formula Price can be brought up beyond $12.00 from its present $11.59 by government purchases.

It's going to be a hard job with no help from supply or demand so don't look for much farm price improvement before July.

Helps local clubs feed and stock trout

Raising trout keeps Arthur Ames in the swim of things

BY PAT KAUFFMAN

NEW HOLLAND — Those you're after this season were mere 3-4 inch fingerlings last year.

Somewhere in the past year, those fingerlings were stocked in nurseries and fed, usually twice daily. Then just before the season, they were netted from their surroundings and stocked in local streams. While the Pennsylvania Fish Commission stocks most of the streams, many local sportsmen's clubs also do their share to assure a good supply for eager anglers.

Arthur Ames, New Holland, is a member of three such clubs — Penn Dutch Sportsmen, Northeastern Lancaster County Rod and Gun Club, and Beartown Sportsmen He explained that since he retired from Armstrong, he finds helping with the trout rearing keeps him active. Ames said all three clubs start young fingerlings which they obtain from the Pennsylvania Fish Commission, in June Then throughout the year, they house the fish in spring-fed nurseries, feed graduated mixes of feed, and beginning early April and into May, stock the trout in open streams

Penn Dutch Sportsmen last season, stocked Spring Ike, Cedar Run and Groff's Run in addition to conducting their annual fishing derby. In total, the club stocked 2891 trout The fingerlings are received free of charge from the Fish Commission providing they are stocked in open waters. The 1600 pounds of feed that were required to raise the fish cost the club $358 57 Total cost per fish raised was 12¢

While the feed and fish are relatively inexpensive, and the care not difficult, the facilities are extremely important The water must be fresh, which generally means a spring-fed holding area for growing the fish According to Ames, given proper food and water conditions, the fish should grow about 1 inch per month.

The Northeastern Club leases spring-fed nurseries on the Harry Burkholder farm, New Holland. Here in cement pools, the fish are held throughout the year. Three areas approximately 8 feet x 12 feet held the 3,000 fingerlings until they are legal size.

Incorporated into the holding areas are screens to separate the various nurseries and a long water wheel the width of the pool to aerate the water. Here the Fish Commission brings a truck to stock the fish for the club, usually providing a small quantity of starter feed, and frequently, a terramycin feed additive to protect the fish from the stress of the move.

The trout are then fed a variety of mixes starting with a number 3 salmon crumbles. These crumbles contain approximately 50% protein along with fat and fiber. The size of the crumbles increases gradually and the protein decreases as the fish grow. Generally, Arthur notes, the fish are maintained on a 5/32", 36% protein pellet.

Penn Dutch Club leases its nursery space at the farm of Norman Wenger. The spring on the farm dates back over 200 years according to Ames and is known as the Wenger-Groff spring. This strong old spring starts in the basement of the Wenger home and feeds out to stone enclosed ponds with picturesque arches and a gentle drop. This is the Groff's Run headwater. Here the club hopes to raise approximately 5,000 trout for the 1981 fishing season. In addition, the club plans to hold approximately 500 palomino and brown trout over until next year to grow to trophy fish size.

Ames noted that the club decided this year to stock 20 marked fish about ½ mile downstream from the nursery. In less than three days, 17 of the fish had worked their way upstream through the watercress islands to the end gate. And sure enough, there they were, rising to the surface begging for feed, their tags glinting in the sunlight.

Arthur explained possible problems in growing the fish include two conditions — popeye and finwear. Popeye is generally a result of less than desirable water quality and is characterized by the fish's eyes bulging from their head. Finwear generally results from overcrowding and is harmless. It's characterized by white edges on some fins.

Ames also noted that one of the problems the club is concerned about is the theft from the nurseries of trout by Blue Herrings, a protected species of bird, and by two-legged dirty birds.

All three clubs will hold junior fishing rodeos in the next few weeks and stock the local streams. Then the pools will be scrubbed, new feed rations bought and the fingerlings delivered to start the yearly cycle all over again.

As you reel your prize catch in, the plans will already be in motion for raising next year's hatch. And behind those plans, are local clubs and individuals like Arthur Ames who are working for the benefit of all area sportsmen.

Soybean growers ask assurance there will be no reserve

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The American Soybean Association Monday urged Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland to take immediate action to use foreign food assistance programs to move any soybeans purchased by the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Such a move, said ASA officials, would assure the soybeans and soybean products purchased by CCC to offset the recent resale of soybean contract rights, purchased after the Soviet embargo, will not hold down market prices in the future.

"It appears that USDA now intends to move ahead with plans to purchase from 10 to 15 million bushels of soybeans from farmers and country elevator operators in the next few weeks," said ASA President Allan Aves in a letter to Bergland.

"ASA does not quarrel with the contention that such purchases will stimulate market prices, but there is little doubt that future sales on the domestic market from such reserves would have a dampening effect on soybean prices."

Aves pointed out that ASA has always opposed a federally held reserve on the basis that such reserves overhang the market and interfere with the operation of the free market system. Farmers and the grain industry have always maintained adequate grain stocks and are prepared to do so in the future, he said.

"Any soybeans or soybean products purchased by the Commodity Credit Corporation should be isolated from the domestic market and should be used only in foreign food assistance programs under the Food for Peace program (PL 480) or for resale under the intermediate term credit program authorized under the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978," Aves said.

"These restrictions will assure that the soybeans and soybean products purchased by CCC now will not hold down market prices in the future," he concluded

Bureau forms economics division

PARK RIDGE, Il. — American Farm Bureau Federation President, Robert B. Delano, announced Tuesday the formation of an economic research division. John K. Hosemann was named senior economist to head up the new AFBF unit.

Hosemann, a native of Mississippi, has a masters degree in agricultural economics from Mississippi State University and did doctoral work at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. He joined the AFBF staff in 1973 and for the past two years has worked as research economist assisting the chief economist, W.H. "Gene" Hamilton, who retired April 1 after 40 years of Farm Bureau service.

The economic research division will be responsible for expanding the federation's economic research capability and will serve as resource for the organization on technical economic aspects of public policy issues and discussions.

Other staff members of the new division are Ross C. Korves, research economist, and Sue Amigoni, research assistant. Korves is responsible for expanding Farm Bureau's use of the Wharton service in agricultural outlook and policy analyses. Amigoni is in charge of the division's reference materials, agricultural data and general files.

Hosemann's new responsibility will also include research projects for the AFBF Research Foundation, according to Delano.

NEBA annual meeting tops best year ever

HAZELTON - NEBA recently held its sixteenth Annual Meeting at the Gus Genetti Motor Lodge in Hazelton. Approximately 150 voting delegates, guests, directors, and personnel attended.

According to NEBA President, Gary Rickard, the Association enjoyed its best financial year ever. Rickard pointed out the completed Young Sire Development Complex, hay and storage barn, and improvements on buildings and grounds were paid for from cash flow.

General Manager of Sire Power, W. Lewis Campbell was the feature speaker at the meeting. Campbell's inspiring talk on The Decade of the Seventies brought attention to changes in cow numbers and DHIA, genetic advancements in A.I. and the dairyman in the future.

Campbell said the future is bright for the dairyman and not to be fearful of new techniques and practices in the dairy industry. He said political downfall and inflation has been the enemy of all, but not to lose faith as a dairyman.

He pointed out the comparison of the increase of milk prices to the average breeding fee. The price per 100 pounds of milk has doubled whereas the average breeding fee in the last ten years has risen from $7.22 to $11.31.

"Today's dairymen are better educated, more knowledgeable, and manage larger herds. They have opportunities for almost unlimited sire selection", says Campbell.

"The future of your co-op is up to you. NEBA is going into the 80's financially strong and the dairyman should demand good service from highly proven bulls for continued success," said Campbell in his concluding remarks.

At the meeting, returing NEBA Vice-President, Chet Hale was honored with plaque in appreciation of long and dedicated service.

James Howard, Wyalusing, was elected as the new director for NEBA. John Epler, Northumberland, is the new Vice-President.

Also six new Junior Directors were elected to attend NEBA Board meetings. These young farmers serve for a one year term to acquaint them with the functions and responsibilities of Board Members. This provides a way for participation and suggestions for the benefit of NEBA.

Margin Stout, NEBA sales and service director, reviewed the financial report.

Stout said the progress can be attributed to experienced district managers combined with a good technician force and superior genetics from the Sire Power bull battery.

CCC purchases 43.9 million bushels of wheat

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Commodity Credit Corporation has purchased an additional 43.9 million bushels of wheat under its special wheat purchase program aimed at taking out of the commercial market a quantity equal to that suspended from shipment to the Soviet Union. The 43.9 million bushels purchased under the invitation issued March 20 brings total purchases to 60.3 million bushels.

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland said the wheat purchased will be isolated from the market and used only for overseas food assistance programs after the U.S. Congress approves the Food Security Act.

Wheat purchases announced today include 37,051,841 bushels of hard red winter, 4,479,292 bushels of soft red winter and 2,323,478 bushels of white. Later today the department will report the amount purchased in each state and the weighted average purchase price.

CCC announced April 7 that it will also offer to buy wheat at declared prices, beginning last Tuesday. Purchases will be made on a first-come, first served basis. County offices of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will be notified of the local purchase price. Farmers who wish to know the acceptable purchase price in their county should contact their ASCS office.

Penn State dairy expo to honor Obie Snider

UNIVERSITY PARK — Penn State's 55th Dairy Exposition – climaxed with Show Day May 3 – will be an official part of the 125th anniversary celebration of the University, it was announced this week.

"Show Day" May 3 at the University dairy barns will feature Penn State students competing for fitting and showing honors. The overall champion of all breeds will be selected in late afternoon.

Other features of the Dairy Exposition include a dairy cattle judging contest held April 12 and the annual Dairy Princess Contest scheduled for April 23 at 7:30 p.m. in 117 Borland Laboratory on the campus.

Special events of "Show Day" May 3 will include milking contests for women, both independent groups and sororities; milk "chugging" contests for fraternities and independent groups; and a calf dressing contest. Well known people in the field of agriculture will compete in a milking contest.

The annual awards banquet on May 3 will conclude exposition activities. The banquet will be held at 6:30 p.m. in the Hetzel Union Building ballroom.

The year's distinguished alumnus in dairy science, Obie Snider of Imler, will be honored at the banquet. Snider and son, Bruce, own and operate Singing Brook Farm. Snider has been a national director of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America. He played a major role in forming the Pennsylvania Dairy and Allied Industry Association, which manages the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show. Snider has been president of this organization for a number of years.

In 1960, Snider received the Master Farmer Award of Pennsylvania. The Pennsylvania Jaycees named him as the Outstanding Young Farmer in 1969. He received the Charles Cowan award for the Outstanding Contribution to the Pennsylvania Dairy Industry in 1975.

The Penn State Dairy Science Club finances the Exposition by selling hoagies at home football games and cheese boxes at Christmas time.

Will producer costs figure in dairy supports?

BURLINGTON, Vt. — Will the costs of producing milk play a role in the determining of future government dairy price supports?

It would seem that way if feelers put out recently in a speech by a leading USDA economist are any indication.

Speaking before the Northeast Dairy Conference, Howard W. Hjort, the USDA's Director of Economics, Policy Analysis and Budget, called on dairy industry leaders to cooperate in any future development and testing of new dairy policy standards.

"We can all be certain that the cost of producing dairy products will be a factor of even greater importance in dairy price support policy in the future," he said.

"Producers and consumers are both better off if supports generally track producers' costs of production and if the market signals for production adjustments can be clearly understood,"

A cost of production index provides a much earlier warning of changing economic circumstances and a good cost of production estimate would be much more reliable as an indicator of corrections that must be made, he explained.

Hjort cited recent circumstances in which price supports have been rising faster than the per unit cost of milk production.

He estimated that it will cost the average dairyman between $11.24 and $11.50 to produce each hundredweight of milk in 1980.

The support price was boosted to $12.36 on April 1 and is scheduled to rise to somewhere between $13.00 and $13.25 on October 1.

"By most economic measures, dairy farmers are making money and have very strong economic incentives to produce milk," he said.

"In response to these incentives, production is increasing rapidly, much more rapidly than commercial use."

The USDA economist said the cost of the dairy support program will be at least $800 million, and very likely even larger this year.

"To be blunt," he said, "the program is in trouble."

"It is providing producers with strong economic signals to increase production at a time when milk and milk products are in surplus supply. It is inflexibly increasing support levels and consumers' costs at a time when retail prices are already high and food price inflation a matter of serious national concern. And, it is providing producers increases in returns not fully justified by costs."

He said there is danger not only in the increased program costs, but in possible consumer backlash.

Agee sentenced for meat scam

ANNAPOLIS — Walter F. Agee was convicted on Friday, April 11 for operating a bait and switch meat scheme in LaVale, Maryland.

He was sentenced to a two year prison term and was fined $5000 by Judge Getty.

According to Lacy DeGrange of the Maryland Department of Agriculture Weights and Measures, Agee pleaded guilty to nine counts involving the sale of inferior meat at the former LaVale Country Meat Store, located along the National Highway.

Agee was arrested last November when he opened another store, known as the Beef Quarter Meat Store in Roscoe, Pennsylvania.

Agee, of Indian Head, Fayette County, was found by MDA's inspectors to have sold meat that contained maggots. His sales were also found to be less than the quantity and quality advertised, according to the state inspectors.

DeGrange added that it is not known at this time if the sentence will be appealed by Agee and his representative Attorney Tim Finan. SM

Apple referendum vote to close Thursday

HARRISBURG — A referendum is currently being voted on by apple growers in Pennsylvania. Growers with 500 or more apple trees of all ages will be determining the fate of the Apple Marketing Program in the state—whether or not to keep AMB for an additional five years.

The referendum period started on April 11 and will continue until 4 p.m. on Thursday, April 24. A two-thirds vote in favor is needed for the program to continue and for the referendum to pass.

According to Alan Gallagher, marketing representative for the Pa. Apple Marketing Board, ballots were mailed out to the eligible apple growers.(The Pa. Department of Agriculture maintains a list of the growers with 500 or more trees of all ages.)

Paul Pitzer, president of the State Horticultural Association of Pennsylvania, Inc., said the association "enthusiastically endorses this program".

"We need advertising and promotion to move our apples in an orderly fashion," he said. "Pennsylvania has been the leader in pushing Eastern Apple Promotion and now seven states—Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and Pennsylvania— are cooperating. This must be continued and strengthened."

To fund the Apple Marketing Board and its promotional activities, there is a 5 cents per bushel check-off on apples sold for fresh market use, said Gallagher, and 2 cents per hundredweight on apples sold for processing.

The 1978 fruit tree survey showed 40 percent of the one to three year old apple trees were Red Delicious and 11 percent were Golden Delicious, noted Pitzer. "This means more apples for the fresh market during the 1980's — we will need advertising and promotion."

The two-thirds vote in favor of AMB should not be too difficult to realize if the feelings of seven Adams County apple growers hold true for the rest of their fellow fruit growers.

These seven spoke out in favor of the referendum, and some had already returned their ballots.

Tom Oyler, Sr., Biglerville, said he voted for the program. "With the production of apples skyrocketing, apple growers need all the help they can get. And, the Apple Marketing Board is a source of help."

Don Hollabaugh, also of Biglerville, echoed Oyler's sentiments. He said he voted for the referendum because apple growers need the legislation to try to get the marketing situation straightened out.

Melvin Worley, a nurseryman and apple grower near York Springs, said he too is in favor of keeping AMB. "We have to do something to market our apples—we can't expect the West coast to do it for us."

Worley added the sale of nursery stock has been exceptionally good this year, which he said is an indication of the growers intentions to higher production.

He said he felt last year's apple sales were poor; and with more apples on the market, the apple industry shouldn't slack up on promotion.

Floyd Kuhn, another Adams County apple grower, said he believes in promotion and therefore is in favor of the referendum.

He added it is hard to know whether the advertising and promotion done by AMB has helped his apple sales. But, he said, he does know he is satisfied with the local representative of the growers who acts in their behalf on seeing how the check-off money is spent.

Kuhn added the check-off is quite low compared to other states.

Another apple grower agreed with Kuhn on the small amount the apple growers are taxed.

Mrs. Wayne Woerner said she felt the AMB was doing a good job in publicity and promotion with the small amount of money they were working with. She noted that Washington state growers pay more for their promotion, and that she would probably be willing to pay more on the check-off if it was needed.

Kuhn said he too would not oppose a slight increase in the check-off rate. "But if they increase it too rapidly, it will make me mad," he added.

John Bream, an Adams County apple grower who also favors the referendum, said he would have to check to see what the other states are paying for their promotion. He said he wouldn't want it to be higher in Pennsylvania than anywhere else.

One of the Adams County apple growers who's been in the business of raising and marketing apples for many years, Robert Lott, Biglerville, said he thinks most people are in favor of the referendum. He said he will be voting 'yes' on the question for the third time since its establishment.

The apple growers won't have long to wait to find out the results of their ballot cast. The result of the vote will be announced soon after the ballots are counted on April 25. The votes will be tabulated by a Teller Committee made up of growers.SM

Whereas, The postal service is considering dropping Saturday mail deliveries. And whereas, said practice would double the work on the following Monday, often necessitating extra help on that day, and whereas, many newspapers and others depending on six day deliveries would hunt other means of servicing their customers. # Area FFA public speaking winners selected

BROWNSTOWN — With words that carried deep and meaningful feelings, Doug Hershberger, of Solanco High School, presented "The Cry of the American Farm Boy" to win the Area FFA Public Speaking Contest Monday at the Brownstown Vo-Tech School.

Hershberger completed a sweep of individual honors by also capturing first place in the extemporaneous competition.

Top winner in the parliamentary procedure contest was the team from Owen J. Roberts High School, Chester County.

The area contest included individual and team competitors from Lancaster, Chester and Delaware counties.

"What can be done for an American farm boy like myself who wishes to purchase the farm of his dreams?" Hershberger asked in his winning presentation.

Answering this central question on the minds of many farm youths in these times of inflated operating costs combined with dwindling market prices and availability of land, Hershberger called on fellow FFA members to take three essential actions.

These include slowing non-agricultural development of prime farmland, conservation of all resources and getting involved in governmental activities.

Six sires from Pa. dam to enter AI stud

ELBURN, Ill. — Six young Holstein sires – all out of the same dam and all born within 10 days – have just arrived at Curtiss Breeding Industries for AI service. This is the first time in the history of the artificial insemination industry that so many bull calves of the same litter have been incorporated into a single AI stud at the same time.

Utilizing the twin techniques of super ovulation and embryo transplant, Curtiss geneticists carefully planned the pedigrees of these young bulls, as part of the Curtiss Young Sire Program.

Planning started with their dam, Mowry-C Princess Corrine. She was mated as a yearling heifer because of her pedigree potential. She has since classified 85 points and has completed two national milk records for junior two-year-old Holsteins.

The Blair County cow topped all previous highs on twice-daily milking with 29,220 pounds milk and 1042 pounds fats in 305 days after first-calving at the age of two years, five months.

Then she went on to 34,020 pounds of milk and 1234 pounds fat in 365 days. Now milking as a three-year-old she has produced 26,173 pounds milk and 1044 pounds fat in her first 231 days on test. Her USDA cow index, calculated January, 1980, is +2120M +72F +$241.

This cow, sired by Paclamar Bootmaker, is a paternal sister to Curtiss' new headline sire Boss Man, the top-selling Holstein in the United States in 1979. In addition, Corrine is a daughter of the second highest milk-producing cow of the breed - the first in history to produce over 50,000 pounds of milk in a single lactation--Mowry Prince Corrine "2E-92".

Corrine's best record was 50,759 lbs. milk and 1,548 lbs. fat in 365 days as a nine-year-old. Her most recent USDA cow index is: +2038M +46F +$198.

Curtiss officials say they believe this dam-daughter combination now has the highest consecutive generation cow indexes in the Holstein breed.

Following super ovulation, Corrine was bred with semen from two sires simultaneously. These sires had been carefully selected for blood type, so exact parentage could be determined by blood analysis of the resulting calves.

These six bull calves, out of Mowry-C Princess Corrine, all have been incorporated into the Curtiss AI stud.

Embryos were transferred to recipient animals, and the resulting litter of six bull and two heifer calves was born during March, 1979. Blood tests show four of the bull calves were sired by Milu Betty Ivanhoe Chief, two by Poverty Hollow Milestone.

All six of the bull calves passed their on-farm tests for admittance to the Curtiss stud, and are now in isolation at Elburn Here they will undergo extensive health, semen production and fertility tests, and will be entered in the Curtiss Blue Chip progeny testing program. Curtiss specialists expect them to be available for service in June or July.

Del. soybean board to draft checkoff

DOVER, Del. — During the April meeting of the Delaware Soybean Board, Joe Hughes was selected to serve as chairman and Clark Calloway as Vice-chairman of the Board.

The first business of the Board was to draw lots determining the length of each member's term. Receiving one-year terms were: Henry Retz, Middletown; Clark Calloway, Bridgeville and Robert E. Dukes, Laurel. Those receiving two-year terms were: Joe Hughes, Felton; C. Wesley Webb, Goldsboro and William Vanderwende, Bridgeville.

Three-year terms were drawn by: William Cross, Middletown; Olin Gooden, Woodside and John Hastings, Laurel.

The Delaware Soybean Board will be drafting a soybean development order during April. The soybean development order is the basis of establishing a self-help program managed by soybean producers. Through a check-off, funds can be collected to assist such functions as education, research, production and market development relating to soybeans.

Soybean producers are encouraged to participate in the drafting of the development order by contacting their Board members during April. After the preliminary order has been drafted, a series of public hearings will be held to encourage further producer participation.

Following the hearings a referendum will be held on the final development order.

We still have plenty of waxy-seed available for the grain farmers and also Waxy Hybrids are great for cattle and hog feeders. In this area they should plant WAXY—MAIZ Hybrid seed-corn. College feeding trials show 10% better gains on 7% less corn with WAXY fed to cattle. We have several WAXY-MAIZ Hybrids for this area. They yield the same as yellow dent corn, but have higher energy starch. Hogs gain better and get to market faster on WAXY-MAIZ. We can show you how to boost cattle and hog feeding profits.

MICE applications available in Maryland

BALTIMORE — In preparation for the third annual Maryland Institute of Cooperative Education or MICE as it has been more popularly labeled, some 300 applications have been distributed to 4-H agents, vocational agriculture teachers and cooperative youth committees throughout the state. Scheduled for June 10-12, the conference again will be held at Summit Lake Camp in the Catoctin Mountains near Emmittsburg.

The conference was created in 1978 as an educational forum for Maryland high school and college youth 16 to 21 years of age. It was designed as a workshop and idea exchange center with particular emphasis on cooperative theory and operation

The program provides an opportunity for the cooperatives of Maryland and the Maryland Council of Farmer Cooperatives to educate agriculturally oriented youth on the value and strong points of the cooperative way of doing business. Stimulating discussions on the present problems and future challenges which face farmers and their cooperatives often take place. Leadership development is also stressed during the two-day event.

Each year delegates to MICE are selected to represent the state's delegation at the American Institute of Cooperation's National Institute of Cooperative Education.

Youth delegates to the Maryland conference will be selected from written applications on the basis of leadership, achievement and ambition as well as their interest in cooperatives, agriculture and agribusiness.

Jack M Gay, Farm Credit Banks, Baltimore, and chairman of the 1980 MICE Planning Committee said, "The 4-H agents, vo-ag teachers and cooperative leaders in the state are asked to make applications and information available to outstanding youth interested in agricultural cooperative education." He continued that youth may also nominate themselves for consideration by submitting an application.

Forms must be submitted to Chairman Jack Gay postmarked no later than May 1, 1980. Additional applications may be obtained from Robert J. Beiter, Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics, University of Maryland, College Park, Maryland 20742.

Total 1979 livestock sales record $56.3 billion

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Higher cattle prices pushed the value of U.S. livestock marketing transactions in 1979 to a record $56.3 billion, according to an annual study done for Livestock Marketing Association.

The Volume and Value study, which is unique in that it surveys marketing transactions, showed that last year's transaction value for cattle and calves rose 30 percent to $46.1 billion, from the 1978 figure of $35.5 billion. The 1979 total was posted on a transaction volume of 106.4 million head, down from the 1978 total of 114.1 million head.

The total transaction value for livestock – which includes cattle, hogs and sheep – was up 24 percent from the 1978 figure of $45.6 billion, the previous record, and up 66 percent from 1977's $34 billion.

The higher prices paid to cattle producers were reflected in the average per head value of cattle and calves, which hit $433 last year, up nearly 40 percent from the 1978 figure of $311.

Although the volume of hog transactions rose sharply last year, to 110.5 million head compared with 98.5 million head in 1978, the value of those transactions remained unchanged at $9.5 billion. Hog producers also saw the average per head value drop to $86, from 1978's $96.

The 1979 volume figure for cattle, hogs and sheep was 229.4 million head, up from 225.2 million head in 1978.

The study is done for the Kansas City-based trade group by Allen Enterprises, Topeka, Kan. The survey's unit of measure is the "livestock merchandising transaction," defined as the transfer of title on one head of livestock.

Animals sold more than once during the year are included as more than one transaction, and the value is the dollar amount of all transactions.

LMA officials pointed out that the study recognizes that most livestock are merchandised more than once during their lifetime, and surveying each transaction results in a more realistic picture of the nation's total livestock commerce than the industry's usual inventory or slaughter figures.

Livestock and meat value of commerce – which includes cattle, hogs, sheep, beef, pork and lamb – rose 18 percent to $89.5 billion, from the 1978 figure of $75.7 billion.

Increased marketing of cattle and calves was shown by the merchandising turnover rate, or the number of times the average head changes ownership. That figure in 1979 was 1.92, up from 1978's 1.76. The corresponding figure for hogs dropped slightly to 1.18, from 1.20 in 1978.

The percentage of cattle and calves slaughtered which were sold by marketing firms also increased, to 66 percent last year compared with 62 percent in 1978. However, the corresponding figure for hogs fell to 19 percent, from the previous year's 21 percent.

The value of sheep transactions rose to 17 percent, to $700 million, while the volume dipped slightly to 12.5 million head, compared with 12.6 million head in 1978.

The majority of livestock continue to travel under 100 miles from marketing point to destination. Last year 68.1 percent of feeder cattle, 77.6 percent of butcher cattle, 81.9 percent of butcher hogs, and 87.2 percent of feeder pigs traveled under 100 miles.

The value of horse transactions jumped from $598.6 million in 1978 to $837.8 million last year, posted on a volume of 1.05 million head, compared with 972,000 head in 1978.

For 1980, the study projects that the livestock transaction volume will increase to 234.3 million head, while the value will drop slightly to $56.1 billion. Although the estimated per head value of cattle and calves is expected to be up slightly to $435, hogs are predicted to drop to an average per head value of $82.

French aggies seek farm work

LANCASTER — French agriculture students are seeking spots on Pennsylvania farms where they spend a month working and improving their English.

The students are from the Ecole Nationale Superieure d'Agronomie of Rennes, France. It is one of three national colleges of agriculture in France.

They will be in Pennsylvania for one month between July 1 and September 30 to learn more about cattle breeding while improving their English.

Farmers interested in sharing their language and technology with the French students can get in touch with David Yoder, General Manager of Atlantic Breeders Co-op, at 1575 Apollo Drive, Lancaster 17601, or call him at 717/569-0413.

The New White 5100 Seed Boss... A Breakthrough in Planting Accuracy

ACCURACY

The new White® 5100 Seed Boss™ Planter represents a breakthrough into a new era of accuracy. Accuracy that can payoff with increased germination, better stands and higher yields for you.

Exclusive new dual depth gauge wheels with walking-beam linkages allow both wheels to act with complementary action. So when one gauge wheel goes over a large clod or rock, the other remains in contact with the seedbed. As a result the height of the two wheels is averaged and the double-disc opener raises only half the height of the obstacle. Gauge wheels on competitive models act in tandem causing the seed disc opener to raise the full height of the obstacle. The White payoff . . . greater seed depth accuracy.

More gentle seed handling with a new pressurized metering system adds greater uniformity in seed spacing. A central blower provides constant air pressure to each metering unit. (Individual row blowers on 4-row models). Air then "holds" the seed in a cell on the seed disc until a gentle brush cut-off allows it to fall in a natural trajectory through the seed tube. The design of this system essentially eliminates forward motion of the seed, minimizing roll and bounce in the seed trench. The White payoff . . . greater in-row accuracy with minimal seed coat damage.

New constant-pressure press wheels exert uniform down pressure on the sides of the trench to consistently firm moist soil around the seed despite changing soil or terrain. The White payoff . . . optimum germinating conditions.

A host of standard performance and convenience features are integrated into every 5100 Seed Boss. Features such as a 7x7-inch main frame, hydraulic markers, quick population change transmission and new 1½ bushel seed hoppers. And it's all ready for you in 8-row folding, 6- and 4-row models.

See Your White Dealer for Accuracy that pays off.

Agrispon vows fight to finish to get a product label

BY CURT HARLER

HARRISBURG — The president of SnCorp, manufacturer of Agrispon, has promised to fight all the way to the Supreme Court in an effort to get the product labeled in Pennsylvania.

As reported last week in Lancaster Farming, the State Agriculture Department's decision to deny a label registration for Agrispon in Pennsylvania was upheld by a state hearing examiner.

This means that after 30 days the product can not legally be sold in the Commonwealth.

The Department said it could find no data to substantiate claims made by SnCorp for their product.

Agrispon makes two basic claims: that it inhances generation of soil nitrogen; and, that it is non-toxic. It also had a longer version of a proposed label which had 26 claims.

The Department's final order to stop sale of Agrispon in Pennsylvania gives SnCorp of Dallas, Texas; and local distributor J&J Agri-Products of Dillsburg 30 days to stop the sale of the product.

But Roland Russell, 7616 LBJ Freeway, Dallas, Texas, president of SnCorp said, "We never walk away from anything like this.

"This won't stop before it gets to the Supreme Court and a lot of heads will roll along the way," he predicted.

Russell said he had confidence in the American system. He said the American people would not allow one small group of people to stand in the way of a product's being put on the market.

"Anyone with an open and fair mind would recognize that this is a good product and a good company," he said.

Tests at Penn State said just the opposite about the product. In fact, the decision to deny Agrispon a label in Pennsylvania was based in large part on tests done at the University, as well as results from other states and testimony presented at a long series of hearings late in 1979.

"If it's as bad as Penn State says it is why are they taking five months to fight it and all the expense of this action?" he asked.

He indicated a poor product would go broke under its own weight.

Russell again refused to reveal exactly what is in Agrispon.

Our label is all they need to know," he said. "They don't have to know how we culture it."

SnCorp has hinted that they feel there is some sort of conspiracy to keeep them off the market involving Penn State and the Agriculture Department.

Much of the money given the University for research projects comes from private industries often in competition with Agrispon.

SnCorp had no proof to offer.

"If they were fair-minded and looking for alternative methods they'd let me spend my money on research and development instead of hearings," Russell said.

"I can't give Penn State money since our funds are tied up in the courts in Pennsylvania," he added.

SnCorp has until early May to file further legal action and obtain a temporary injunction against the Agriculture Department's stop-sale order.

To date, stop sale orders have been issued against 21 products under the provisions of the state Fertilizer, Soil Conditioner, and Plant Growth Substance Law of 1977.

Farm Talk

Jerry Webb

"Maybe the best way to keep the peace is to have the most tractors." That's the headline from an agricultural promotion piece distributed by the Agriculture Day Foundation. It was part of a kit designed to help the media observe National Agriculture Day.

The promotion piece went on to point out that an exploding world population has tremendous food demands that many countries are not able to meet. "Those who have land don't have technology. Those who have technology don't have land. Many have neither. But we have both."

The Ag Day promotion suggests that we need a foreign policy that puts our agricultural capacity to work in a way that will save millions from starvation, win the U.S. stronger friendships and help American agriculture find additional profits abroad to finance better food values at home.

That was just one piece from a kit that contained perhaps a dozen items on the Agriculture Day theme, "Thought For Food."

Agriculture Day was launched in 1973 by a Minneapolis agri-business publisher and is held annually to help educate the American consumer about American agriculture – its contribution, concerns, and challenges. It's truly a national observance now with volunteer events and activities throughout the country to give nonfarm consumers a chance to learn more about the world's most productive food system

Another Ag Day promotion piece said, "Before you complain about the high cost of food remember it's a mixed bag." It showed the contents of a shopping bag, including toothpaste, light bulbs, and other nonfood items usually bought at the supermarket and lumped into the food budget. The mixed bag showed how a consumer can spend $40 on Tuesday and have nothing to eat by Saturday

"With inflation nipping away at him daily, the consumer looks for culprits and the farmer often becomes the target. Too often the shopper forgets that the farmer as well as food processors, packagers, transporters and distributors, also face inflated fuel, labor and equipment costs

'In spite of rising food expenditures, which according to government reports have more than tripled in the last 20 years, food in still a bargain. If egg prices increased at the same rate as transportation costs since 1958, eggs would cost over $3.40 a dozen."

The Ag Day information goes on to point out that if milk prices increased at the same rate as housing costs in the last 20 years, milk would costs over $4.50 a gallon. Compared to current prices, the average American family spends about 17 percent of its income on food, compared to 27 percent in Germany, 31 percent in England, and 32 percent in Japan.

Other Ag Days themes dealt with the need for chemicals in modern agriculture, the cost and value of the many services provided by those supposed culprits the middlemen, and information that pointed out that cotton isn't cloth, corn isn't cereal, and sheep aren't sweaters.

A farm coloring book included in the kit provided something for the kiddies and also gave good basic agricultural information. Things like, "An acre of the farmer's land is nearly the size of a football field. With a large tractor and plow, a farmer can plow an acre the size of a football field in about 16 minutes." Or, "On one acre of land a farmer might grow enough wheat to furnish your family with bread for nearly 10 years." Other interesting agri-facts:

On an acre of ground, an American farmer might raise enough potatoes for your family to have French fries one meal every day for more than 20 years.

The hamburger meat from a single beef steer will make about 720 quarter-pound hamburgers – enough for your family to have hamburgers each day for nearly six months.

One pig that the farmer raises could furnish your family with about 20 pounds of bacon, 30 pounds of ham, 30 pounds of pork chops, and 80 pounds of other meat.

Those are just a few examples of the kind of coloring book information that was provided for the younger generation. I hope consumers take the Agriculture Day theme seriously when they sit down at their dinner tables and think a little about food – where it comes from, what it really costs, and how fortunate we are in this country to have such a bountiful supply.

Choosing a tractor using Nebraska method

The purchase of a tractor is a major investment that requires careful consideration of various makes and models before a final purchase decision is made. The Nebraska Tractors Tests are a valuable source of information for comparison, and for predicting a particular tractor's performance.

Several factors detailed in the tests—fuel efficiency, maximum available power, lugging ability, and gear spacing—should be considered in tractor evaluation. These factors will affect your long range cost of operation.

Fuel Efficiency

Fuel Efficiency deserves high priority as it will help determine farm fuel costs for many years to come.

The efficiency with which a tractor converts fuel to useful work is best represented by a horsepower-hours per gallon (hp-hr per gal) value. The fuel efficiency rating for tractors is similar to the miles per gallon rating for cars; the larger the value, the more efficient the tractor.

The Nebraska tests give horsepower hours per gallon value for 8 Power Take-Off (PTO) tests and 4 drawbar tests, which may be very confusing.

The best way to compare various tractors is to use average value for Varying Power PTO Performance Tests which averages tests 6 different loads on the power take-off shaft. The test provides the most accurate relative fuel-efficiency rating of a general usage tractor.

A difference of one or two horsepower hours per gallon will make a significant difference in the fuel bills paid over the lifetime of a tractor.

The effect upon fuel efficiency of the gear-up and throttle-down practice is illustrated by the Drawbar Performance Test — 50% of Pull at Reduced Engine Speed. The fuel efficiency rating for this test should be compared against the value given for the same load at wide-open throttle.

A comparison of the Nebraska tests on diesel and gasoline powered tractors also reveals that diesel engines use fuel much more efficiently than gasoline engines. For the same amount of work done, a diesel tractor consumes about 30 percent less fuel than a gasoline engine.

Horsepower Ratings

Another important consideration is a tractor's available power. The tractor tests provide information on maximum PTO horsepower, an convenient ments to compare the relative size of most tractors.

This does not tell a farmer how much power will be available in the field, however. Because the maximum available drawbar horsepower is determined in test situations on a concrete track, the rating does not provide an accurate indication of what to expect in the field.

Lugging Ability

Another series of tests that you should consider when purchasing a tractor are the Lugging Ability in Rated Gear tests.

The ability of a tractor to pull through momentary overloads without shifting gears is extremely important.

This lugging ability is evaluated in the Nebraska tests by dropping engine speed at 10 percent increments from rated speed to at least 50 percent of rated speed.

For normal field operations, the first 20 percent reduction in engine speed is critical. A tractor whose pulling power rises substantially during this first 20 percent reduction in speed has excellent lugging ability characteristics.

After this point, pulling power should not begin to decline until a 30 percent reduction in engine speed occurs.

Gear Spacing

From the Nebraska Tractor Tests you can also determine the number and spacing and tractor gears.

A reasonable number of evenly spaced gears for field operations, within a normal field speed range, permits a greater number of choices for operating the tractor at a speed and power level appropriate for a particular implement.

This is very important for sprayers, where speed influences application rate. Tillage equipment also produces the most desirable results within a fairly narrow field speed range.

A transmission with several evenly spaced gears offers greater opportunity to gear-up and throttle-down while maintaining a reasonable field speed.

Wild Dogs

Scientists believe wild dogs were the first animals to be tamed by people — at least 12,000 years ago The first wild dog to be tamed probably was a wolf, and it is believed that most pet dogs are its descendants

Check spray gear now, save money later

LANCASTER — Farmers and custom applicators can save pesticide dollars this year if they take time now to inspect their spray equipment for operating efficiency.

As elementary as it sounds, the key to economical and efficient pesticide use is to apply materials only at the rate needed. No farmers violate this intentionally, but defective spray equipment may apply more or less pesticide than needed.

For example, applying too little herbicide usually leads to poor weed control and yield reductions. On the other hand, applying too much herbicide may increase potential for crop injury, in addition to wasting herbicide dollars.

Roller and centrifugal pumps are most commonly used with herbicide sprayers, but both have advantages and drawbacks.

Roller pumps produce moderate flow rates at high pressures, are fairly easy to maintain, and they will operate efficiently at tractor PTO speeds. However, the rollers of the pump can wear and must be replaced after continuous use.

Abrasive materials like wettable powders and limestone can cause extensive wear and should be avoided in roller, gear, industrial vane or other rotary-type pumps.

Abrasive materials can be used safely in centrifugal pumps, as well as in diaphram or squeeze hose pumps. Centrifugal pumps also deliver high volumes of liquid at relatively low pressures

Centrifugal pumps require a high speed power source, however, and usually will not operate efficiently at tractor PTO speeds.

Constant agitation in the spray tank is essential to insure an evenly mixed herbicide.

Without sufficient agitation herbicides can settle to the bottom of the tank causing uneven application; the spray mixture coming from the top of the tank will not contain enough herbicide to control weeds, while the bottom part of the tank will contain a higher concentration of herbicide that may cause crop injury.

Thorough, yet moderate, agitation is needed to mix herbicides properly. Excessive agitation when tank mixing, however, may cause one of the chemicals to settle in the spray tank.

Proper agitation in the spray tank insures even herbicide application continuity.

A faulty pressure regulator may cause inconsistent weed control in the same way insufficient agitation does.

By increasing or decreasing pressure, volume of herbicide applied will be increased or decreased. A pressure regulator is essential for maintaining consistent delivery of the spray mixture.

Growers can choose from three types of nozzle tips, all of which deliver various spray patterns: flat spray, cone spray and flood spray nozzles.

There are two basic types of flat spray nozzles: flat fan and even spray.

The first is designed for broadcast applications and may have an "F" designation. The spray of the adjacent flat fan nozzles must overlap for even distribution.

An "E" designation applies to even spray nozzles designed for band spraying. It delivers an equal amount of herbicide across the spray pattern.

Both types of nozzles work best at a pressure above 20 psi. Pressure above 40 psi should be avoided to reduce spray drift.

Cone spray nozzles are usually designed to operate at higher pressures than flat spray nozzles to produce fine spray droplets.

There are two general classes of cone nozzles: hollow cone and solid cone, both of which have large orifices to reduce clogging. The solid cone nozzle mainly operates at extremely high pressures and is best suited for insecticide applications.

Operating efficiently at a pressure range of 30 to 50 psi, the hollow cone nozzle delivers a small volume of spray well suited to post emergence applications.

The swirl chamber – a popular type of hollow cone nozzle – can operate at pressures below that of flat spray nozzles and still deliver an even coverage of pesticide.

For broadcast applications of preplant incorporated and preemergence herbicides, a small volume of liquid is sufficient to give adequate coverage of the soil and good weed control results. Therefore, flat fan and swirl chamber nozzles are usually preferred.

Flood type nozzles are useful for high volume coverage at low pressures; capacity is measured at 10 psi. These nozzles deliver a spray of large droplets in relation to flat spray and cone nozzles. This is an advantage where spray drift could be a problem.

The flood type nozzle's spray pattern must overlap the adjacent nozzle's pattern by 50 percent for even herbicide distribution.

Nozzle tips are probably the most neglected and abused component of the sprayer. Yet, they are the most critical factor concerning even distribution of herbicides on foliage or on soil surface.

Nozzle tips wear when used heavily. The orifice in the nozzle tips will become larger, delivering more herbicide than needed.

Game Commission proposes several season changes

HARRISBURG — Return of a four-week general small game season, a longer turkey season in northcentral Pennsylvania, and legalization of the harvesting of all bears highlight changes from the past in seasons and bag limits proposed for the 1980-81 hunting license year.

The Game Commission is proposing that the fall archery deer season open this year on October 4 and close on October 31. Under current proposals, the early small game season for squirrels and grouse would open on Saturday, October 18, and close on Saturday, November 29.

The regular small game season for rabbits and pheasants would open on Saturday, November 1, and end on Saturday, November 29, under the proposals. A one-week quail season is proposed to open on Saturday, November 1, and to close on Saturday, November 8.

It is proposed that the turkey season open statewide on Saturday, November 1, and close in all of the state except the northcentral area on Saturday, November 15. The turkey season in northcentral Pennsylvania is proposed to continue until Saturday, November 22.

The regular antlered deer season is proposed to open on Monday, December 1, and close on Saturday, December 13

The statewide anterless deer season is proposed for Monday and Tuesday, December 15 and 16 Proposed anterless deer license allocations for 1980 total 410,600, a slight reduction from the 1979 figure of 423,950

Tentatively, a one-day bear season is being proposed for Monday, November 24 For the first time since 1925, the harvesting of all bears, including those under one year of age, would be permitted, under current proposals.

When cub bears were first protected in 1925, the average cub weighed about 35 or 40 pounds at the time of the bear season Today, some cubs weigh over 100 pounds at the time of the bear season. At the same time, some adult bears weigh less than 100 pounds, and it is virtually impossible for hunters to distinguish between small adult and large cub bears

All states in the eastern part of the nation that are north of Pennsylvania permit harvesting of cub bears The percentage of cub bears in the total harvest in those states is similar to the percentage of cubs which are taken in other states where their harvest is not permitted.

Since there is not yet a bear hunting license to control the number of hunters and where they go, the Game Commission proposes to restrict bear hunting this year to 29 counties which make up what is essentially the prime bear range in the state

These are the counties where it is proposed to permit bear hunting in 1980: Bradford, Cameron, Carbon, Centre, Clarion, Clearfield, Clinton, Columbia, Elk, Forest, Huntingdon, Jefferson, Lackawanna, Luzerne, Lycoming, McKean, Mifflin, Monroe, Pike, Potter, Snyder, Sullivan, Susquehanna, Tioga, Union, Venango, Warren, Wayne and Wyoming.

The closure of certain counties to bear hunting would not be a "first" for Pennsylvania. Certain counties were closed to bear hunting in 1938, 1939 and 1940.

Conflicts which developed in the past due to different starting dates for raccoon hunting and trapping would be eliminated this year under a common proposed starting date, October 25, for both seasons.

The raccoon hunting season is proposed to continue through January 31. The fox hunting season, which is also proposed to open on October 25, would be scheduled to continue through February 28

The trapping season for skunks, opossums, raccoons, foxes, weasels and coyotes would be open for the week October 25 through October 31, but then would be closed through November 8. The trapping season is proposed to re-open November 9 and close on January 31

The closed trapping period from November 1 through November 8 would give small game hunters using dogs a period of trap-free activity.

Mink and muskrat trapping is proposed to begin November 27 and conclude on December 14 Beaver trapping is proposed for February 14 through March 15.

A one-week hunting season is being proposed for snowshoe rabbits (varying hares) from December 26 through January 1

The winter hunting season for cottontail rabbits, squirrels and grouse statewide and pheasants in northern Pennsylvania is proposed to open on December 26 and close on January 10.

Under proposed seasons, winter archery and flintlock muzzle-loader deer hunting would begin on December 26 and conclude on January 3 Flintlock hunting will again be permitted statewide.

The spring gobbler season for 1981 is proposed to open on May 2 and close on May 23.

No closed season is proposed for the coming year on woodchucks.

Bag limits for all species this year are unchanged from the past, except that the Game Commission is proposing a daily and season limit of five beavers in Crawford, Monroe, Sullivan, Bradford, Pike, Susquehanna and Wayne Counties.

Action on seasons and bag limits will be taken at the meeting of the Game Commission in Harrisburg on June 4.

It comes in a package as small as a Federal Crop Insurance policy. Because All-Risk Crop Insurance takes a lot of the worry and concern out of crop production.

It's a good feeling, too, to know your crop investment is protected from planting to harvest. And because you're covered, All-Risk Crop Insurance provides the needed incentive to spend a little more in fertilizers to produce a more profitable crop.

It's important to have crop insurance that covers the money you've laid out for seed, equipment, fuel, fertilizer, chemicals and labor. Costs that are continuing to build with each crop year.

Call your FCIC representative and find out how you can use Federal Crop Insurance to build peace of mind from planting time on — with no premium to pay until harvest time.

Holstein Convention outlines program

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Some 2400 Holstein leaders, Association delegates and dairy families will meet in Nashville, Tennessee, June 28 to July 2, to take part in the 95th annual national convention of the Holstein Association of America.

Farm use of mini-computers, cattle blood-typing, future Association programs and bylaw revisions, and USDA research priorities will be featured on the convention program at the Opryland Hotel.

Outside the formal schedule, families will enjoy the attractions of the Nashville area—Grand Ole Opry, Country Music Hall of Fame, Andrew Jackson's home, Belle Carol Riverboat and the Opryland U.S.A. park. Social activities will start Saturday and Sunday, June 28-29, before the business meetings on Monday and Tuesday, June 30-July 1.

Dr. Jerry Caldwell, director, immunogenetics laboratory, Texas A & M University, will outline cattle blood typing and its uses for holstein breeders, at an early bird session, Monday, at 8 a.m. Richard Nelson and Irma Robertson, of the Association will define problem areas and animal registry procedures

At 8 a.m., Tuesday, Paul T. Chandler, of a Tennessee livestock management firm, will moderate a panel discussion on the new role of computers in dairy herd management Chandler will introduce the management tools that are available through the use of small computers.

A panel of Holstein breeders will describe computer management systems in operation at their farms. The dairymen who will participate on the panel are Tom Spike, of Michigan, and Peter DeGroot and Tom Sawyer, of California.

Convention business will be conducted on Monday and Tuesday. Delegates will act on a series of bylaw revisions and convention items, and elect officers and members of the national Holstein Association board of directors.

Association staff members will present a panel discussion on what Association programs will be available in the future. Long-range management goals, field services, and applications of on-line data processing will be discussed.

Anson R. Bertrand, director of science and education, U.S. Department of Agriculture, will be the featured speaker at the convention. Bertrand serves as policy advisor to the Secretary of Agriculture and directs the government's efforts in agricultural extension, education and research.

On Sunday, June 29, the Tennessee Holstein Association has arranged a number of leisure activities including two separate bus tours to sights in the area. A "discover music city" tour will be taken to the homes of Minnie Pearl, Eddy Arnold, Tammy Wynette, the late Tex Ritter and Hank Williams, Sr., then stop on "music row" where the Country Music Hall of Fame and Country Music Wax Museum are located. The tour includes the State Capitol, Fort Nashboro, the original Grand Olde Opry House, and the Governor's Mansion.

The second tour of the day will be taken to a walking horse farm about 100 miles from Nashville to visit two world champions. There will also be a training demonstration at the farm.

The third option will be Opryland, U.S.A., a park situated not far from the Opryland Hotel. The musical theme park features some 15 show productions and more then 20 rides for the whole family.

Special activities for juniors will be held throughout the days of the convention. In addition to all the shows and the tours, juniors will be invited to a hospitality mixer at the Opryland Hotel. A field trip, on Monday, the 30th, to the University of Tennessee, will feature a Holstein genetics workshop. In the evening, the juniors banquet will present the 1980 Distinguished Junior Members, after which a Tennessee hoedown complete with Hillbilly costumes and a hog-calling contest will be held.

On Tuesday morning, there will be workshops for juniors on financing a dairy operation and good dairy record keeping.

The convention banquet, on Tuesday evening, will highlight comedian Jerry Clower. Clower has been named Country Comic of the Year for the past six years by major country music publications. He is co-host of a national TV show, "Nashville On The Road."

At 10 a.m., Wednesday, a rare spectacular will take place on the stage of the Grand Ole Opry House. Where stars performed on Saturday night, U S. Holsteins will be sold on Wednesday. It's a first for the grand Ole Opry House.

The sale will end the 1980 Holstein Convention

Of the Angus bulls, Sam Wylie, Nottingham, Chester County decided he liked his bull so much he'd buy him and take him along back home for his cows. He consigned and sold the bull to himself for $3400.

The Limousin bull was consigned by Joseph Hlatky, Manns Choice, Bedford County, and sold to Lloyd L. Reaver, Gettysburg, Adams County.

Bull nominations for the 1981 Performance Testing program will be open from May through August 31, 1980. Bulls born between October 1, 1979 and April 15, 1980 will go on test from the end of September 1980 through March 1981, with the sale set for the last Friday of March.

Carroll County, MDA to stamp out Johnsongrass

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture, Wayne A. Cawley, Jr. says he is confident his meeting with the Carroll County Weed Control Board has resolved many of the problems hampering an effective Johnsongrass Control Program for the county.

Johnsongrass is the only weed officially declared "noxious" in Maryland and poses a serious threat to agricultural crop production because of its rapid spread when left unchecked. Maryland law provides that MDA may assist counties in a cooperative effort to prevent that spread.

For Secretary Cawley, the Thursday meeting was the first with the Carroll County Weed Control Board since its appointment by the Board of County Commissioners last January. The Board is chaired by Russell Brehm of Westminster and has seven members, including ex-officio member Robert L. Jones, the county extension agent.

One apparent reason for a lack of effective johnsongrass control enforcement in Carroll County has been a long standing vacancy in that program's supervisory capacity. A major result of the joint Westminster meeting was determination by the Weed Control Board to fill that current vacancy. Applications for the job close today.

Information relating to that position may be obtained by telephoning the Carroll County Extension Office at 301/848-4611.

Secretary Cawley says, "MDA fully responsibility to eradicate johnsongrass wherever possible. The law calls for court action if necessary, and when non-compliance with the Johnsongrass Control Program in Maryland requires that drastic step we will take it.

"I am very optimistic the Johnsongrass Control Program is going to move forward in Carroll County. I wholeheartedly endorse the concept of the Johnsongrass Control Law, MDA will steadfastly enforce it and with the active support of the County Weed Control Board, Carroll County farmers and consumers both will benefit from the results."

CCC offers to buy wheat at stated prices

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Beginning last Tuesday, the Commodity Credit Corporation will offer to buy wheat at declared prices, Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland said today. Purchases will be made on a first-come, first served basis, he said.

CCC has been buying corn and wheat by issuing invitations to sellers asking them to submit bids offering their grain for sale.

County offices of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will be notified of the local purchase price Sellers may then offer a specified quantity of wheat at the posted county price thru the county ASCS offices. A farmer must have title to and possession of the grain at the time an offer is submitted.

For farm-stored grain, in the event CCC is not able to accept delivery within 30 days after acceptance of the offer, CCC will pay the farmer storage at the rate of 0685 cents per bushel per day beginning on the 31st day after acceptance until delivery of the grain is accepted by CCC.

No storage will be earned by the farmer if delivery is delayed by the farmer.

Payment for warehouse-stored grain will be made when the farmer delivers acceptable warehouse receipts to the country office.

Payments for farm-stored grain will be made when the producer delivers warehouse receipts for the grain or a completed commodity delivery notice showing quantity and quality delivered to the county ASCS office.

If requested by the producer, advance payment of up to 80 percent of the purchase price (bushels offered times the basic county purchase price) will be made after the offer is accepted

Bergland said wheat purchases will continue until a quantity equal to that suspended from shipment to the Soviet Union has been removed from the market.

GREAT GRAIN HANDLING SYSTEMS BEGIN WITH GOOD PLANNING AND M-C DRYERS

Now Available!

M-C DRYBINE™

The ENERGY SAVING IN-BIN DRYING SYSTEM

The new Mathews Continuous In-Bin Dryer is a combination storage drying and cooling bin designed to save you money It is efficient fast, easy to manage and costs less to operate The drying process is fast, while the cooling process is slow, eliminating stress cracks and damage caused by fast cooling There is nothing else like it on the market The Mathews design requires no wet holding bin or separate bin for cooling

- Saves energy for profitable operations
- Proven high capacity results (357 bushels per hour)
- Eliminates the most common problems found in other in-bin dryers
- Low per bushel costs

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS...

As wet grain enters the top of the bin, it flows into the upper drying chamber as harvested, with no need for a wet holding bin This upper chamber holds up to 4 feet of wet grain (2250 bushels)

Every seven minutes, a continuous flow auger makes a complete revolution around the upper drying floor, drawing the dried grain into the lower cooling area

Hot air is introduced under the upper floor to dry the wet grain and to heat the surface of the grain that is distributed into the lower cooling chamber The air that is used for cooling the grain picks up heat during the cooling process This heated air is then used again in the drying process, saving on fuel costs

When not being used for drying, the bin will store 8500 bushels of grain

Reduce gasoline storage losses

As energy costs cut deeper into farm profits, farmers are seeking ways to reduce fuel consumption whenever and wherever possible. There are several ways to reduce the amount of fuel wasted in your operation.

One of them is the manner in which fuel is stored, easily overlooked but fairly simple to correct. Fuel-tank color, location, type of filler cap, plus fuel leaks and fuel quality all influence fuel losses.

Tank Color

Fuel tanks painted a dark color are subject to high evaporation losses. If your storage tank is rusty or dull red, you can cut evaporation losses one-third by painting the tank with white or aluminum paint.

For example, a red fuel storage tank exposed to direct sunlight will lose approximately 10 gallons per month through evaporation, whereas a white tank in the same location will lose about 6 gallons per month.

You can expect to recover the cost of the paint in approximately one year, through gallons of gasoline saved.

It is a common misconception that the law requires all fuel storage tanks to be painted red. Most states in the Northeast have no restrictions on tank color, except for small portable containers. Check on local regulations with your fuel supplier or local fire marshall.

Tank Location

Shade makes a substantial difference in the amount of fuel that evaporates from a fuel storage tank. Shaded tanks lose 75 percent less fuel than tanks exposed to sunlight.

Intense sun in summer and the lighter grade fuels required for easier engine starts in winter make evaporation losses a year-round problem.

Tank shading can be provided by a large tree, but in most instances a tree will not provide sufficient shade during winter months.

An open-front shed constructed over fuel tanks is the most effective means to provide shade. The front of the shed should face away from the sun, and openings should be provided below the roof to prevent heated air from being trapped over the tanks.

If properly shaded, tank color has little effect on fuel loss. Buried gasoline tanks, of course, have almost no evaporation losses.

Filler Caps

You should look critically at the filler cap on your fuel tank.

A pressure-vacuum relief cap will cup evaporation losses in half. This small item may reduce evaporation losses by 40 to 50 gallons per year for a red, unshaded storage tank.

Pressure-vacuum relief caps are designed to open at 2 to 3 psi pf pressure or 1/16 psi of vacuum. It is a good practice to closely watch the tank for a few days following installation of such a cap because pressure buildup may cause new leaks to occur.

The nozzel on a gravity-flow tank may be the source of particularly troublesome leaks. A shut-off valve at the tank should eliminate these leaks

Pressure-vacuum relief caps will not work on fuel pumps designed with an air bleed. Check with the pump supplier to see if it will hold the pressure created by the cap.

Fuel Leaks

If a fuel storage system leaks a drop of gasoline every 2 minutes, approximately 35 gallons per year are being lost. That's enough fuel to plant 50 acres of corn!

Examine all connections between the tank outlet and the hose nozzle, as well as the hose itself. Are any of the connections moist or caked with dust? Does the ground indicate fuel leakage from the hose or tank? If so, both fuel and money are being wasted.

Fuel leakage can often be corrected by simply tightening connections. In more stubborn cases, it may be necessary to disassemble the system and apply a thread sealant during reassembly.

Replace cracked or damaged fittings or hoses, and be sure that the fuel filler is clean and sealing properly.

Fuel Quality

Losses are only one aspect to consider when trying to reduce gasoline evaporation. Nearly as important is the reduction in gasoline quality that occurs with evaporation.

Fuel composition varies depending on the season of the year. Winter-grade gasoline vaporizes more readily than summer-grade. Although the lighter, winter-grade fuel aids in easier starts and more rapid warm-ups during cold weather, the more volatile or lighter components of winter-grade fuel are more easily evaporated during storage.

Under certain storage conditions, fuel delivered as a winter-grade gasoline will, through evaporation of the lighter components, change to the equivalent of a summer-grade gasoline.

As this deterioration occurs, the percent of gum content increases in the gasoline. When such gasoline is used, an engine starts harder and requires more choking. Also, the gum is deposited in the carburetor, in the intake manifold, on the valves, and lacquer deposits form on the pistons and cylinder walls.

All of these factors cause unfavorable engine operations, excessive engine wear, and excessive fuel consumption.

Above all, take all necessary safety precaustion when using, storing, or handling gasoline.

-Locate tanks at least 50 feet from buildings, preferably both downwind and downhill from the buildings.

-Provide a sturdy tank-support stand.

-Label each tank in large letters as to contents, e.g.: GASOLINE, DIESEL.

-Label each tank: FLAMMABLE - KEEP FIRE AND FLAME AWAY.

-Keep the area around the tank free of weeds, high grass, debris, rubbish and litter.

-Shut off engines when refueling.

-Do not smoke or light matches around fuel.

-Keep a dry chemical extinguisher handy at all times.

Until now, most ventilation systems had one drawback. Air inlets had to be opened and closed by hand.

This was time consuming — and pretty much a matter of guesswork

Now, Chore-Time has eliminated this problem.

The Chore-Time system has a mind of its own and adjusts inlets — in conjunction with fan operation — to maintain air pressure at a constant, preset level

This provides a degree of air and moisture accuracy never before possible in poultry and livestock buildings.

The new inlet control (pictured) is just one of many exclusive features that make Chore-Time air systems number one in performance and reliability.

Recalling the birth of the broiler industry

FELTON, Del. — J Edward McIlvaine was halfway through high school the year the broiler industry was born. That was back in 1923, the year Mrs. Wilmer Steele of Ocean View, Del., decided to sell her entire flock of spring chickens for meat, rather than keeping the pullets for her laying flock.

That historic decision triggered a chain of events that revolutionized poultry production in the U.S It's also the reason for Delaware's present multi-million dollar share of the broiler business. That was 57 years ago With each year that passes, it's harder to find someone who remembers how it all began.

But Ed McIlvaine, who was honored recently for more than 40 years of service to the Delaware Poultry Improvement Association, remembers quite vividly One of DPIA's founding members, he's served as its president, vice president chairman of locals and for the past 20 years as its treasurer.

While Mrs. Steele was raising that first flock of meat birds, he was a teenager busy dividing his time between chores on the family grain farm near Stockley and school in Georgetown, covering the five miles in-between in a horse-drawn wagon. But by the time he graduated two years later, he was already supplying hatching eggs to the infant industry. Since then, most of his life has been involved with broilers and the people who grow them.

A heart attack last July forced him to retire after 38 years as manager of breeder flocks at Townsend's, Inc., Delaware's biggest integrated broiler company But this experience has hardly clipped his wings. At 72 he's just a busy as ever — collecting photographs and objects to document the early history of the poultry industry. These will be on display when the state's new farm museum in Dover finally opens its doors, hopefully sometime .later this year.

Retired poultryman Ed McIlvaine recalls he was a teenager driving a horse and wagon to school during the year Delaware's broiler industry was born.

In the beginning, he recalls, there wasn't any year-round broiler production The only time you got broilers or "fryers" was in the spring. The rest of the time you settled for an occasional tough stewing hen

Chickens back then were usually the farm wife's responsibility, he says. Like their neighbors, his mother kept a small flock of Barred Rocks — a popular, black and grey speckled all-purpose breed. The eggs they laid gave her something to use in trade on her weekly trips to the local country store.

Early each spring she would set a batch of eggs under a "broody hen" or two. The pullets that hatched out were added to the laying flock to replace old hens due to be retired to the stew pot.

The young cockerels were fattened up and eaten If you had any extra fryers or "springers," as they were also called, you might sell these in town. Some were even shipped live by railroad express up to Philadelphia But until Mrs. Steele sold her entire replacement flock this way, nobody realized what a profitable venture this could be.

McIvaine says the idea of raising chickens for meat rather than eggs came along just in time to save a lot of Delmarva farmers from financial disaster.

Three things happened in the early 1920's that seriously threatened previous sources of local farm income. The first was range paralysis — a disease that attacked the commercial flocks of White Leghorns used in table egg production on some farms. The second was the failure of a profitable strawberry industry as plants were wiped out by a virus called red stele disease. The third was a decline in the area's seafood industry, largely due to failure of the oyster harvest on Delaware Bay.

Salvation from all three disasters came, most unexpectedly, from the barnyard flocks of Mrs. Steele and others. Within a few years there were small independent broiler operations all over Sussex county.

To raise all these broilers chicks were needed. So pretty soon some farmers were operating hatcheries. These, of course, needed good fertile eggs, lots of them.

It didn't take much to realize that it was far more profitable to sell eggs to one of these hatcheries than it was to trade them for a "credit slip" at the country store. Before he was out of high school, Ed McIlvaine and his family were producing hatching eggs instead.

His first flock was pretty small — only about 300-400 hens. But as time went on he added more housing until he had 1500 hens, one of the largest breeder flocks around. At first they delivered the eggs to the hatchery themselves in the family's Model T Ford Later, a hatchery truck made the rounds, collecting eggs from his and other farms

Care of the chickens was still largely the job of the wife and other family members, he recalls Because they were out working the land, he and other farmers didn't have time to feed the hens and gather eggs

The rapid growth of broiler production on the peninsula meant good business for local grain farmers like himself at the start, before the advent of commercial feeds. He remembers mixing feed for his own flock with a shovel, using grain by-products from a nearby water-powered grist mills, scraps from a meat rendering plant, and oats grown on the farm

Later, in the 30's and 40's, commercial feeds were shipped down the peninsula by rail. The mash and chick feed was bagged at first in plain white sacks bearing the company's tradmark, and then in colorful printed cotton that could be used to make aprons and other things for the home.

That's about the time they started processing broilers on the peninsula, rather than shipping them live to East Coast markets The first ones were simply killed and plucked — in the so-called "New York" style. They were processed in plants left over from a by-then defunct tomato industry Sussex county was dotted with these old canneries, he says

Besides raising grain and hatching eggs, McIlvaine also worked briefly for the State Board of Agriculture in the 30's, taking blood samples from hens in breeding flocks around the state in a program aimed at eliminating pullorum, an egg-transmitted disease which took a heavy toll of young broiler chicks

"If that program hadn't been successful," he says, "the broiler industry could never have survived"

(Turn to Page D26)

Ed McIlvaine helps set up exhibit on early broiler industry that will be on display when Delaware's farm museum in Dover opens its doors--hopefully later this year

WE'RE GROWING BETTER

Blood-testing kit shown by Ed McIlvaine was used back in the 1930's by the Delaware State Board of Agriculture in a program to wipe out deadly pullorum disease in broiler flocks.

Oldest broiler grower

The lower part of the state was full of small, independent broiler operations trying to make a go of it with practically no effective medications, and little knowledge of the nutritional needs of the chicken What was needed was some organization to bring them all together, so that these and other problems could be dealt with more effectively.

One evening in 1938, McIlvaine and a number of other hatching egg growers were gathered around the stove in a farm kitchen in Lewes, talking about the need to improve the quality of hatching eggs and get year-round production. This was the start of the Delmarva Poultry Improvement Association

From the start, the main purpose of DPIA was to improve the quality of all poultry production in the state, table eggs as well as broilers. McIlvaine recalls the monthly gatherings of locals in farmhouse kitchens or school buildings to hear speakers talk about disease and management and marketing problems Sometimes he and other successful growers would be called on to share their expertise.

In 1941 he went to work for Townsend's, Inc , as manager of their breeder flocks. For a number of years he was also responsible for actually developing the strain of birds they used as broilers. There were many changes in the broiler bird, as poultry began to be processed on the peninsula The early birds had dark pinfeathers which showed up much too well on a freshly plucked carcass. So he and other breeders worked to develop lines that had white ones instead.

Anyone who's lived through the last 50-odd years on Delmarva and has been active in the poultry business has seen some dramatic changed.

"I doubt this era will ever be matched in terms of the rate of this change," he says "I drove a horse to school Now they're sending rockets to the moon and beyond."

Retirement doesn't seem to have slowed Ed McIlvaine down much.

"I'm much too active a person not to keep busy," he says.

This explains his present involvement with the farm museum. He looks at the work he's doing now — collecting and arranging materials for their poultry exhibit — as a kind of personal biography.

Order 4 milk price $13.00 for March

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine Friday announced a March 1980 base milk price of $13.00 per hundredweight and an excess milk price of $11.49.

The weighted average March price was $12.85 and the butterfat differential for the month was 15.0 cents.

The March base milk price was down five cents from February 1980 but was 73 cents higher than last March.

Order No. 4 prices are announced for 3.5 percent milk f.o.b. plant location within 55 miles of Philadelphia, and also within 75 miles from the nearer of Washington, DC or Baltimore, MD. There is a 6-cent direct-delivery differential applicable to producer milk received at plants located within 55 miles of Philadelphia.

Shine said producer receipts totaled 474.7 million pounds during March, an increase of 1.7 percent from the previous month on a daily basis, and 2.4 percent above last March.

Class I producer milk totaled 245.1 million pounds and accounted for 51.64 percent of total producer milk receipts during the month, down from 54.56 percent in February and well below the 57.21 Class I utilization percentage last March. Base milk accounted for 90.14 percent of total producer milk receipts in March, the same percentages as a year earlier.

There were 7160 producers supplying Order 4 handlers during the month and the average daily delivery per producer of 2139 pounds was up 35 pounds or 1.7 percent from February and was 3.7 percent above last March.

Ask the VMD

Leon Riegel Tim Trayer Edgar Sheaffer

Clippin' toenails — stop before red signal

A reader asks:

I need to trim some of my cows hooves that have gotten too long over winter. Any advice on how-to would be appreciated, especially how short?

Dr. Riegel comments:

Cattle with long hooves lead to cattle with sore feet, usually from bruised heels.

This can be a tremendous economic loss because cows that are sore and uncomfortable standing have decreased conception rates, decreased milk production, and lose weight. Therefore, it is with good reason that you concern yourself with trimming hooves.

The first thing that's necessary for trimming a cow's hoof is adequate restraint of the animal. If you are strong enough and the cattle are cooperative, this can be accomplished in a stall with the cow's leg held up while you're doing the trimming.

As you become weaker or the cattle being trimmed become less docile, more elaborate means of restraint have to be devised.

The ultimate in restraint which is used by most professional foot trimmers is a table where the cow can be strapped fast, her legs tied down, and then she can be turned over on her side.

You will also need a pair of hoof nippers and a sharp hoof knife. In most cases, this is all the equipment that is necessary to do the job. But, wood chisels with mallots, saws, and electric disc sanders have been used.

The actual trimming of the hoof is something that's difficult to describe. It's best to learn how by watching someone else, hopefully someone who has become expert at trimming.

When trimmed properly, the hoof wall should be trimmed parallel with the sole of the foot and the toe shortened, but not too short that you draw blood.

This reminds me of an incident which I encountered my first year in practice. I was called out one evening to find a cow standing in a stall in a big pool of blood.

The farmer had taken a chisel and had cut the toe much too short on not one, but both hind feet. Blood was all but spurting from what was left.

I was appalled at the sight of this, thinking, "How could someone do such a thing — trim a foot so short, not stopping before the bleeding had become so bad that it needed massive pressure bandages to stop it?".

I soon found out how this could be possible when I was told the farmer was color blind and didn't realize what he was doing until his son came in the barn and discovered his costly error.

Tips for farming terraced land given

LANCASTER — Building terraces can help to control erosion...but, it is only the first step.

How well terraces do their job of protecting farmland depends on how they are farmed, according to Edward Petrus of the Lancaster Office, Soil Conservation Service.

"Many farmers are working over their terraces rather than with them," said Petrus, "because they claim it is easier. However, this tends to wear down the terrace ridge, which may cause premature failure."

This is especially true of the newer terraces, which outlet underground in a pipe By plowing and planting properly, the effective life of the terraces can be extended several years.

The Soil Conservation Service has been promoting several ideas for farming terraces. For conventional plowing, these are divided into working with a one-way plow and working with a two-way plow.

In most cases, either method involves plowing the terrace in a back furrow pattern to maintain the ridge. Then, the areas along the terraces are plowed, leaving any odd areas in the middle between terraces. Finally, this is trimmed to uniform width and plowed, adds Petrus.

This maximizes erosion protection since point rows are in the middle of the strip, he said.

More funds asked for soybean research

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Soybeans growers testifying on Capitol Hill have urged Congress to increase funding on the use of soy oil as a substitute for petroleum and to restore $500,000 in special soybean research grants and $250,000 for cyst nematode research.

Budget increases in research, according to ASA Research Foundation Vice President, Charles Hamon of Valley Falls, Kansas, would help farmers and consumers by reducing production costs and developing new uses for soybeans

In testimony before the House Committee on Appropriations and the Senate Subcommittee on Agriculture, soybean producer Hamon told Congressmen that agricultural research has proven to be a sound investment of tax dollars.

"We invest less than two percent of our nation's research and development budget in agricultural research," he said. "Yet it can be proven that the average annual rate of return on investment in agricultural research in recent years has been 42 percent on every dollar invested and for soybeans the return has been 34 percent."

Homan said soybean growers are particularly concerned over the Administration's proposed $353,000 budget cut in funding the Northern Regional Research Center, where scientists are studying industrial applications of soy oil as a substitute for dwindling petroleum supplies Noting that progress is currently being made in the use of soy oil for uses as automatic transmission fluids, fuel substitues and less-polluting, water-based, solventless industrial coatings, Hamon said budget cuts at this time would be counterproductive to the Administration's commitment to reduce oil imports.

Hamon also urged Congress to restore $500,000 in special soybean grants and $250,000 for cyst nematode research. He pointed out that although the U S has doubled soybean acreage in the last 15 years, demand has continued to increase

"Most economists agree that the world demand for soybeans will continue to increase at a rate of five percent annually," he said

"At present production rates, such growth will put a severe strain on the capabilities of U.S farmers to produce sufficiently to fill the demand. The supply of land is finite so any increases will have to come from increased production."

Hamon urged Congress not to cut back on research, but rather to look ahead and plan for growing world populations which will put increased pressure on the U.S. food supply.

"What we need," said Hamon, "is not a reduction in agricultural research that is mission-oriented toward national goals. Research to reduce soybean production costs will help achieve our national goal of increasing farm exports which in turn aids the U.S. balance of trade."

In addition to research funding Hamon said the American Soybean Association supports the Committee for Agricultural Research, Extension and Teaching in its request for an $11,657,000 increase in Hatch Act funding. He said the land grant university system has demonstrated its value to the nation by providing research and educational programs that have made United States farmers the most productive in the world

Hamon cited the President's recommended FY1981 budget calling for increased spending on worldwide market development for U.S. soybeans and other commodities as a positive step to aid farmers Noting that soybean growers are already investing $4.8 million of their own funds in market development, Hamon urged Congress to adopt budget provisions that would increase government investment in soybean market building activities by $2 million in the 1981 fiscal year.

"These programs have been enormously successful in the past and, provided sufficient funding is available, can and should be expanded into other areas of the world where greater market potential exits," he said.

Hamon also suggested areas where the federal budget might be trimmed to make funds available for essential research and market development.

He cited federal travel assistance to individuals and representatives of public interest groups wishing to testify on proposed rules and regulations as one area where expenditures could be cut drastically.

He also called for budget cuts in the costs of implementing and administering regulatory programs such as the Soil and Water Conservation Act which he said would place substantial burdens on farmers and taxpayers if fully implemented.

Disease control key to gardening success

NEWARK, Del. — Was your vegetable garden plagued by diseases last summer? Now's the time to make sure you don't run into the same problems again this year.

University of Delaware extension plant pathologist Bob Mulrooney says there are several ways to control diseases in your garden.

One is by rotating crops so that you don't get a pest buildup in any particular spot. In a small plot this may be difficult, but you still ought to be able to alternate plants like tomatoes from one end of the garden to the other

If you lost tomatoes to verticillium or fusarium wilt diseases last year, by all means do not plant them in the same location again — or for that matter, eggplant, potatoes, or peppers. That soil is a reservoir for wilt now and you should wait at least two years before growing another one of these crops in the same location.

Sanitation is another cultural practice which can help eliminate diseases in your garden this summer Take the time to spade under any plant refuse left over from the last growing season Until this has been worked into the soil it, too, could be a source of infection.

A third way to make sure you have fewer problems next summer is to make sure you plant disease-resistant varieties of fruits and vegetables.

Sometimes you'll see the initials VFN or VF in the plant name. This indicates the diseases it's resistant to Varieties with excellent wilt resistance include Big Girl, Better Boy, Spring Set, Jet Star and Supersonic. For canning, Heinz 1350 is a good resistant tomato, said Mulrooney.

Cucumbers are another crop where disease control is important. Look for hybrids resistant to cucumber mosaic and scab. Some are also resistant to powdery mildew, downy mildew, and anthracnose

For snap beans, Mulrooney suggests you look for rust and mosaic virus resistance.

Sometimes you may run into problems of keeping quality in vegetables grown for winter storage. Most of the new improved winter squash varieties are pretty good keepers, though black rot control fungicides may still be necessary in a wet season on this crop

If you plan to grow onions for storage, remember that yellow varieties tend to keep better than white ones.

A misconception of many home gardeners is that disease resistance is the same thing as immunity. But even resistant varieties won't withstand heavy disease pressure, warns Mulrooney. Given the right environmental conditions or a very high level of pathogens in the soil or spores in the air, many plants can become infected which under normal conditions won't show any disease at all.

Sometimes, too, you'll run into problems because of bad timing. Late-planted summer squash, for instance, will often be hit by a lot of mosaic virus, which is transmitted by aphids.

Three international bridges – two of them almost "twins" – speed traffic between Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Niagara Falls, Ont.

The Rainbow Bridge, near the falls, and the Lewiston-Queenston Bridge, about six miles downstream, are the look-alikes. The Whirlpool Rapids Bridge is located midway between the other two.
